Whispering Chicago Feels Roosevelt Is the Man

Convention's Secrets an Open Book; Even Farley's Mind Is Read

Glass to Nominate

SENATOR GLASS will place James A. Farley in nomination for the Presidency at the Chicago convention, it is indicated as 64 House members sign demand that President Roosevelt be nominated. Page 2.

Have You Heard?

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Chicago, July 11.—"Pst, pst! Have you heard?"

This whispering convention city tonight is getting crossed up on its secrets.

For lack of real news everybody has a secret. They are open secrets and meet each other coming back in a 10-minute stroll around headquarter's hotel.

The only one worth knowing is locked by remote control from Washington behind the uncomfortable new zipper tied across the mouth of James A. Farley.

Even Farley's secret is out of the bag if you are to judge by the cut and dried acceptance by all leaders present of a third-term geared convention.

May Put Over a Fast One

These four supposed facts are so taken for granted by the early arrivals that should they explode as most secrets do, the Democrats might have a convention next week and not a ratifying rally.

They are:

1. That the President will be the nominee, virtually demanding a party loyalty pledge in return for acceptance.

2. That Postmaster General Farley will step down as National Committee chairman, and later step out of the President's Cabinet into not one but two private business ventures.

3. That Secretary of State Cordell Hull, or just possibly Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas will be the Vice Presidential nominee, hand picked in any case by the President.

4. That President Roosevelt will put over a fast one on Republicans by making his defense message pledge that no American troops will be sent to Europe the salient foreign affairs plank in the Democratic national platform.

It is rank heresy even among anti-third termers here to suggest that Mr. Roosevelt, with two-thirds of the delegates hog-tied and waiting, might not run.

Farley Almost Slips

A reporter even made a $1 bet on this score, just to get an argument. All he got was a football rush of takers.

Between secrets and bad bets, all the talk here is about the Philadelphia convention, now and then just to keep the record straight some one takes a run down to Chicago Convention Hall just to count those 22,000 yawning seats and gain reassurance that come Monday all will be filled and creaking.

Once a day, Farley holds a press conference, which he spends wrestling with his conscience and his secret. Today he almost slipped and gave the newsmen a story.

"The nomination for President," Farley was saying, "probably will come next Thursday."

Reporters pricked up their ears. Did he say "nomination," singular?

Without being accused, the Postmaster General flushed a deep red.

"Now, boys, be a little careful," he said. "I may have said "nomination," but, of course, I should have said 'nominations.'"

Those who believe the President is a draft candidate, and they in-

Willkie Close To Roosevelt In Popularity

Republican Has 47% To President's 53%, With 1 of 10 Undecided

By Dr. George Gallup,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Princeton, N. J., July 11.—Evidence that the Democrats will have a real fight on their hands in attempting to beat Wendell Willkie for the Presidency is revealed in a Nation-wide survey by the Institute. While it is only the State-by-State polls conducted after the Democrats have named their candidates for President and Vice President next week that will have any significance, nevertheless today's results give some indication of the Willkie strength.

U. S. Jobs Hit Peak; Housing Shortage Seen

District Faces Problem as Arms Program Advances

Simultaneously with news that Federal jobholders in Washington have increased to an all-time peak came warning of a housing shortage here before jobs created by the defense program are filled.

Rufus S. Lusk yesterday told the Connecticut Avenue Association, lunching at the Mayflower Hotel, that instead of increasing this summer, apartment vacancies already have decreased. Should the defense program bring 30,000 new jobholders to Washington, as has been predicted, he said, "it is almost a dead certainty that by the end of another 12 months apartments will be practically filled." He said the demand for new houses will increase in proportion.

The Civil Service Commission reported that Federal agencies in May added 18,850 employes, bringing the total employed by the Government to 977,880. Of these, 1,250 were added in Washington, bringing the total here to 130,937. Largest increases were in the War, Navy, Agriculture and Interior departments.

The local Federal pay roll reached $23,298,161 monthly.

Outside of Washington, 17,584 new employes were added to executive department field forces, bringing the total field force to 847,053. It was estimated that since May added employes have brought the grand total above the million mark, well above the World War peak of slightly more than 900,000.

While the Washington total sets an all-time mark in Federal employment here, the national total has been exceeded once.

16-Month-Old Boy Seriously Hurt By Father's Truck

Sixteen-month-old John Judson Thomas was at Georgetown Hospital in serious condition last night after he was run over by a truck which, police said, was operated by his father, Porter Thomas, at their home in East Falls Church, Va.

The baby was playing in the yard when his father backed the truck out the driveway, the police report said. Unseen by his father, John wandered into the path of the heavy vehicle.

The child suffered a fractured leg and possible internal injuries.

Plans Ready For 35,000 Planes in '42

Aircraft Industry Hopes to Produce 25,000 in 2 Years With R. F. C. Help

A coordinated plan to produce 25,000 warplanes for the Army and Navy within the next two years was announced yesterday by the National Defense Commission.

Representatives of the aircraft industry, R. F. C., War and Navy departments, and the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, the Commission stated, have worked out a vast plant expansion and standardization program which should give the Nation an air force of 35,000 first line planes by July 1, 1942.

Dr. George J. Mead, aeronautical adviser to the Commission, announced that warplane orders totaling $100,000,000 have been placed with manufacturers since July 1 as a start toward the 25,000-plane goal. Contracts were negotiated with the plane builders without competitive bidding, he said, making possible the unprecedented speed.

Navy Bill Completed

Meanwhile Congress completed action on the $4,600,000,000 naval expansion bill and sent it to the White House. Minor Senate amendments were speedily agreed to by the House in order to get the measure before President Roosevelt as soon as possible.

Initial funds for constructing more than 200 warships authorized by the bill are included in the $4,848,000,000 supplemental defense program presented to Congress Wednesday. They would give the Nation a "two-ocean Navy" capable of defending our shores against any combination of foes.

The 25,000-plane program will be made possible by a huge expansion of aircraft factories throughout the country, partially financed by R. F. C. loans. Jesse Jones, Federal Loan Administrator, said arrangements have been completed with the Defense Commission for the loans, which will be made at the normal rate of 4 per cent.

The speed with which the House has been acting on defense measures was abruptly slowed down a little after the Navy vote, however, when objection was raised to a $25,000,000 appropriation to enlarge the Tennessee Valley Authority for defense purposes.

Unanimity Blocked

Representative McLean (Republican), of New Jersey, blocked an attempt to take up the measure by unanimous consent, declaring the TVA was "taking advantage of the national defense situation to enlarge its facilities."

Chairman Woodrum of the House deficiency appropriations subcommittee, urged McLean to withhold his objection, stating that Edward R. Stettinius, jr., and William S. Knudsen, of the defense commission, had declared additional TVA power is necessary to speed up production of aluminum for airplanes and for other defense needs.

The measure had been rushed through the Senate and House appropriation committees earlier in the day because officials declared the lack of power was delaying the defense program.

To Standardize Plans

Representatives Taber (Republican), of New York, and Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, backed up McLean, however, and the bill was forced over until after the recess for the Democratic national convention.

Mead said the Army and Navy have agreed to standardize their specifications and inspection work as a means of speeding production of planes. While the large orders will be confined for the present to established types of aircraft, the N. A. C. A. is proceeding with enlargement of its research plants at

Bombs Fall Near King as Raiders Harry Britain Through Day and Night; Hands Off at Havana, Hull Tells Nazis

U. S. Secretary Rebukes Berlin For Its Warning To Latin-America

The United States yesterday rebuked Germany for attempted intimidation of American nations due to participate in the Havana conference next week.

Within a few hours, however, the Americas were confronted with a British warning that Britain would not permit the proposed cartel for handling all American surplus products to send any of them to German-held countries.

The new double-pronged problem sprang up just as there was a lessening of tension here over threatened hostilities at the French island of Martinique, within the American neutrality "safety zone," where French warships and planes are attempting to return home and British warcraft have taken up positions to prevent the move. There were indications here that a solution was being worked out by which the French craft, both naval and air, would remain in waters of this hemisphere. One report, however, said the French had rejected a suggestion that the aircraft carrier Bearn be interned in a United States port.

Hull Makes Rebuke

The rebuke to Germany came at Secretary of State Hull's press conference, when his comment was asked on the Nazi message to Central American republics advising them to take no action at the Havana meeting that would be contrary to neutrality.

Secretary Hull declared that the advice, generally interpreted in diplomatic circles as a "warning," was a species of intimidation of nations whose sovereignty was entitled to the fullest respect.

He cautioned Berlin, in effect, that there was no theory on which she might thus attack the sovereignty, freedom of action and integrity of any American republic.

The Secretary declared the Havana meeting, opening July 20, was strictly an Inter-American conference called to consider matters relating solely to American affairs. Emphasizing the importance this country attaches to the manner in which the conference is to be conducted, it has been decided that Secretary Hull personally will lead the United States delegation, sailing in a few days.

The German "warning" was delivered to Costa Rica, Guatemala and Nicaragua by Dr. Otto Reinebeck, Nazi Minister to the five Central American republics. It was said to have been in form of "observations," but was interpreted by diplomats as attempting to interfere with the course those countries might take at Havana.

Subs Draining British Larder, Germans Say

Tell of Shortages; Sinkings Exceeding 1917's, Berlin Opines

By the Associated Press

Berlin, July 11.—Germany proclaimed tonight that her U-boats, bent on a starvation blockade of England, had exceeded even the rate of Imperial Germany's unrestricted underseas campaign of the World War in destruction of British ships and British food.

In the six-week period ended July 8, said a communique, 677,000 tons of "enemy commercial shipping" was sent to the bottom by submarines alone, and this quickened tempo was attributed to the "favorable bases" which Germany acquired on the English Channel and Atlantic coasts after knocking out France.

The claimed rate of destruction thus was more than 100,000 tons a week, against a weekly average of less than 65,000 tons lost by the United Kingdom by action of every kind during the 21-month period of unrestricted U-boat warfare loosed by Germany in February, 1917.

British Shortages Envisioned

Merchantmen sunk by the air force were not included in the high command's figures, although bombers have been busy for weeks, especially against convoys. Only today it was announced that German fliers had raided harbor facilities, airports and armament factories in the south and southwest English coasts.

Summarizing naval activity against British commerce since the beginning of the war, the service Dienst aus Deutschland asserted 3,000,000 tons of neutral and "enemy" vessels had been destroyed.

Army Flier Leaps To Death as U. S. Bomber Crashes

Somerset, Pa., July 11 (AP).—A twin-motored Army bomber, crippled by motor trouble, crashed in flames atop Laurel Mountain, in the Alleghanies' "Graveyard of Aviators" late today after the pilot, Lieut. N. R. Dick, of Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio, leaped to his death.

The ship en route from Mitchel Field, New York, to Wright Field, Dayton, skimmed treetops, plowed into a small clearing.

The dead man, whose parachute failed to open during the 500-foot plunge, was identified by papers and his name on the parachute. A flight book carried the notation "Sgt. Carpenter, crew chief."

A scrap of note paper that fluttered from the officer's pocket said "Lt. Dick you are OD (officer of the day) tomorrow instead of Thursday," indicating Dick would not have been on flight duty if original plans had been carried out.

Beady-Eye Bandit Escapes; Is Caught

The "beady-eyed bandit" who terrorized Northwest Washington for weeks before being captured last February, disappeared yesterday afternoon at Lorton Reformatory, but was recaptured by guards six hours later.

N.Y. State Capitol Guarded After Mail Bomb Threat

By International News Service

Albany, July 11.—Gov. Herbert H. Lehman revealed tonight that a threat has been made to blow up the New York State Capitol Building tomorrow.

A heavy guard of State troopers and city police was thrown about the $25,000,000 structure after Albany's Postmaster John P. Hayes notified the Governor that a postcard, threatening to bomb the capitol, had been received.

Despite the threat, Gov. Lehman and other State officials were at their offices as usual.

The Governor declined to discuss details of the affair. He said authorities believe the postcard "might be the work of a mischievous child."

Heavy wooden doors at the main entrances of the Capitol were closed tonight for the first time since the World War.

War of Nerves In West Indies

Fort de France, Martinique, July 11 (AP).—The British cruiser Fiji arrived today off this tense French island possession within the American neutrality zone and advised the populace not to be alarmed over the roar of guns they might hear—that it would be merely firing practice.

The French, in response, asked that it be undertaken out of sight and sound. The British agreed.

France Decrees End of Capitalism; Political System Of Kings Revived

By the Associated Press

Bern, Switzerland, July 11.—Defeated France upset the hourglass tonight and turned back to the old provincial system of a bygone day, with an authoritarian base and a seat of government in the glittering palace of kings in German-occupied Versailles.

Capitalism and socialism are things of the past!" cried Marshal Philippe Henri Petain, 84-year-old head of state by decree, in a radio address from Vichy heard over France and in neighboring countries. "It is now necessary to fight against all internationalisms."

Then he outlined France's new system, a strange medley of the political past and the political present.

Napoleonic Powers

After he had spoken the French radio announced that effective tomorrow Petain would succeed President Albert Lebrun as head of the French state and would become chief of the executive department of the government, a president and prime minister all in one.

He will have full legislative power until a new Chamber is formed, and, in case of serious internal or external crisis, he is empowered to legislate without consulting the Chamber at all.

The powers Petain will assume are greater than any held since the Third Napoleon.

His powers will resemble those exercised by the dictator of Nationalist Spain, Francisco Franco. He will be backed, moreover, by a politically wise triumvirate, Pierre Laval, Adrien Marquet and Gen. Maxime Weygand.

Lebrun Enters Discard

With his resignation tomorrow, Albert Lebrun, last President of the Third Republic, goes into the discard

This, the marshal said, is what is to supplant the dead French Republic:

A government of 12 national ministers, with headquarters at Versailles, but some of the ministers to function in Paris, which also is in Nazi hands.

Each of the 30-odd French provinces—which were important units in royal and imperial France—to have its governor and complete civil staff, and the 90 prefects of departments to be stripped of much of their power.

As Petain told the country of his use of the powers to re-form France, so sweepingly granted by Parliament, he coughed wearily and frequently into the microphone.

"Capitalism Outmoded"

"The international capitalistic system is outmoded," he declared.

"The base of our new state must be work, the family and the fatherland.

"The government already has passed through difficult hours.

"It has suffered a new trial—this time from England, which has ungratefully attacked the French fleet demobilized in its harbors after unjustly accusing us of being willing to let it pass into the hands of Italy and Germany.

"Attacked today by England, France is forced to make new sacrifices.

"I need your confidence."

[Petain's condemnation of "international capitalism and international Socialism which exploited and degraded France" strengthened reports that the former popular

Italians Claim Hits on Hood And Ark Royal

42,100-Ton Battle Cruiser Set Afire, Says Rome Bulletin

Copyright by New York Times

Rome, July 11.—The Italian high command claimed in today's bulletins that Italian air force units "seriously damaged and set afire the 42,100-ton battle cruiser Hood," and "hit twice with large-caliber bombs the 22,000-ton aircraft carrier Ark Royal" in the encounter with British naval forces which occurred on July 9 near the Balearic Islands in the Western Mediterranean.

In the Ionian Sea, according to the communique, another British battleship was hit by two large-caliber bombs. An investigation is under way to ascertain the extent of the damage inflicted on the enemy, both during this air raid and those previously made south of the island of Crete.

Malta's naval base, the high command adds, was bombed intensively yesterday morning and in the late afternoon, with the result that "fires were started and hits scored in the arsenal and aboard ships in the harbor." Three enemy planes, it is claimed, were shot down by the Italian bombers. Two Italian airplanes did not return to their base.

Details of the fighting were given in an air force communique signed by Gen. Francesco Pricolo, undersecretary for air.

"In the past days," says Gen. Pricolo, "two powerful enemy naval squadrons, which had sailed from opposite bases at the extreme ends of the Mediterranean, were navigating towards Italy—obviously with well-defined objectives.

"The air force saw the two squadrons shortly after their departure

Stimson Calls On Gen. Pershing, Former Boss

Secretary Henry L. Stimson, newly confirmed War Department chief, took time out of his first full day in office yesterday to pay his respects to his World War commander in chief, Gen. John J. Pershing.

Col. Stimson visited Pershing at the latter's suite at the Carleton Hotel, and recalled a prior visit to the A. E. F. commander in 1918. Then a lieutenant colonel of artillery, he requested his chief to continue him on duty with his regiment.

Waves of Death

By the Associated Press

London (Friday), July 12.—King George of England escaped death or injury by only a few minutes in a German bombing raid at an undisclosed time and place in southern England, it was disclosed today after a day and night of constant Nazi air attacks which took a heavy but uncounted toll of lives.

Where the King was visiting when the bombers roared over was not disclosed "for reasons of security," but it was indicated that he left the scene of heavy bombing only a matter of minutes before the raiders struck.

[The United Press reported the King was inspecting troops at a town on the east coast.

Boulogne Area Raided

[Thunderous explosions and heavy antiaircraft fire on the French coast in the region of Boulogne were heard for half an hour last night, the United Press also reported.]

[Some sources believed the furious activity meant that British planes had made a surprise attack on German concentrations preparing for an attempt to invade England.

[Watchers on the southeast coast said searchlights raked the skies over the French coast incessantly, and the horizon was flecked with tracer bullets and exploding shells.

[Royal Air Force planes were heard in the distance, shuttling back and forth across the Channel. Heavy explosions were heard before the antiaircraft guns burst into action, indicating that raiders may have unloaded bombs.]

Meanwhile in after dusk renewal of the Nazi pounding of southern England 14 were killed and 47, including two French sailors, were wounded.

Altogether the British claimed 24 raiders shot down, 13 of them bombers, and "many more seriously damaged."

The late night communique said one squadron of Hurricanes alone bagged eight German planes and indicated that in the final count the raiders' losses might be well above 24.

Other Estimates 75

[Within the last 36 hours, it was estimated, more than 75 Nazi planes have been shot down or badly damaged in their fierce assaults upon the British Isles, the United Press reports.]

Uncounted other big bombers and their swarm of escort fighters sliced through, machine-gunning city streets and splintering homes with heavy explosives.

Whole towns shook with the force of the biggest blasts. In one south-

94-Degree Heat Fells Six; Relief Forecast for Today

A "cold front" moving on heat-suffering Washington was expected today to end the Capital's two-day tropical spell which yesterday sent the mercury soaring to 94, highest for the year, and prostrated six persons here.

Moving broadside across the Nation, the "cold front" yesterday created violent local electrical storms and thundershowers in the New York area, where the Associated Press reported four persons killed and extensive property damage.

Charles L. Mitchell, District forecaster, said that the "cold front" would bring showers to the District area today, but that there would probably not be a repetition of the electrical disturbances in New York where the cool air arrived when the temperature was hottest for the day.

The cold-thrust, Mitchell said, would bring Washington's maximum temperature down to about 78 for today and the rest of the week-end. Moderate temperatures and clear skies are the outlook for tomorrow.

Numerous severe local thundershowers battered New York City and nearby New Jersey communi-

Camacho Claims Mexico Vote, Almazan Vows to Take Oath

By the Associated Press

Mexico City, July 11.—Supporters of Gen. Manuel Avila Camacho, administration candidate, declared tonight he had swept into the presidency by a 5-to-1 majority in the counting of Sunday's ballots.

Gen. Juan Andreu Almazan, however, issued a statement that he himself would take the oath of office as Mexico's next president, December 1, when President Lazaro Cardenas leaves the post.

Almazan's supporters boycotted the official counting centers and set up their own tallying headquarters since they voted in their own election booths Sunday after charging Camacho's election officials barred them from the polls.

The antigovernment candidate declared more than 150 Almazanistas had been elected "absolutely legally" to the congress which has a normal membership of 172, and asserted his men would assume their seats next September.

[For their failure to appear at counting places, the government decreed Almazan supporters would not be allowed to participate in the counting of ballots, United Press reported.]

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

THE SENATORS' FAMILY TREE

Fifty-seven of the 96 Senators are not related, either themselves or through their wives, to any man who was ever President, Cabinet member, Supreme Court Justice, Ambassador, Minister, Governor, or member of Congress. Or at least they decline to admit such ties.

Harlan Miller

The other 39 Senators have ancestors, relatives or relatives by marriage who have held high Government office. Of these relationships, some are quite distant, others only moderately overwhelming.

All that this warm weather research proves is that heredity seems to play only a small part in American politics. Environment is the thing.

* * * *

Only four Senators come from families with a conspicuous number of Government officials, or are married to wives from such families. These are Senators Gerry, Green, Bankhead and Lodge. But they associate with their colleagues without a trace of hauteur, on virtually even terms.

* * * *

Gerry's distinguished ancestors include great-grandfather Elbridge Gerry, who was a Congressman, governor, member of the XYZ commission to France and Vice President, and a signer of the Declaration. (Pete Gerry's patrician manner reminds you of Elbridge, inevitably).

* * * *

His great-great uncles, Robert and Edward Livingstone, were both ministers to France. Edward was also a Secretary of State, under Jackson, as was Mrs. Gerry's great uncle, Hamilton Fish, under Grant. The Senator's great-great-grandfather, Morgan Lewis, was Governor of New York.

"—fruit of the family tree"

For the last 53 years there has always been a Bankhead in either the House or the Senate. From 1916 to 1920 Senator Bankhead's father and brother overlapped in Congress, as he and his brother, the Speaker, have overlapped since 1930.

Apparently Congress wouldn't be itself without a Bankhead. They may have to call on Tallulah some day.

* * * *

There are at least four members of Congress in Senator Green's ancestry, and three of these were also Chief Justices of State Supreme Courts in Rhode Island and Vermont. These include a great uncle, a great-great-uncle, a great-grandfather and a great-great-grandfather. Two were Senators.

But Rhode Island is a small State, and if you've lived there a long time you're probably related around a lot.

* * * *

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge 'jesses up to a great-grandfather, Frederick Frelinghuysen, who was Secretary of State; a great-great-grandfather, John Davis, who was Governor of Massachusetts, and his grandfather, the Senator of the same name. Surely other Cabots and Lodges must have held high office? Perhaps incognito.

* * * *

Senator Wiley's wife's uncle was an M. C. for 15 years. Capper's father-in-law was Governor of Kansas. . . . Chavez's grandmother's uncle was Governor of New Mexico; his grandfather, Col. J. Francisco Chavez, was a delegate to Congress. Downey's grandfather's cousin was Governor of California, which naturally makes Sheridan a sorta man of destiny.

* * * *

Hiram Johnson's father was a Representative. . . . Smathers' uncle was in the House, and on his wife's side he's related to Chief Justice Marshall and the Presidents Harrison. . . . Tydings' father-in-law, Joe Davies, was Ambassador. . . . Bailey owns up to a Representative in his wife's family tree.

"—owns up to a Vice President"

Adams' father was three times elected Governor of Colorado, and so was his Uncle Bill . . . Barkley's father's first cousin, Jim McKenzie, was in Congress and Minister to Peru (you can see where the majority leader gets his diplomatic polish) and dad's first cousin, Adlai Stevenson, was a Vice President.

* * * *

Sheppard, of Texas, succeeded his father, who died while a member of the House, and has been in Congress ever since—37 years . . . Overton's uncle was a Representative . . . Bone had a cousin, Lafe Young, who was a Senator from Iowa for several months, a cousin who was a Representative, and another who was Governor of Alaska.

* * * *

Pat Harrison may be a collateral descendant of the first President Harrison, but he's never bothered to look it up . . . Worth Clark's Uncle Barzella was a Governor, and his wife is related to our Ambassador to Mexico.

* * * *

That's about the size of it, and it doesn't add up to anything like class rule, domination by the aristocracy or even dynastic control of any of the States—except maybe little Rhode Island. . . .

Seventeen of the Senators, for example, were their own most illustrious forebears—as Governors before they became Senators.

* * * *

And, as Senator Tom Connally, the mordant and unpredictable Texan, added when he disclaimed any Ambassadors in his family tree, "We're from as good stock as any of them!"

Glass to Present Farley at Chicago

Word that Senator Glass, of Virginia, would place Postmaster General Farley in nomination for the Presidency last night quickened interest here in next week's Democratic National Convention at Chicago.

While Farley said in Chicago yesterday that he had selected the man to present his name but would not name him yet, a news dispatch stated that the picturesque Virginia Senator had been chosen.

"I do not know yet whether Jim Farley is going to be a candidate," Glass told the Associated Press, "but if he decides to have his name go before the convention it is altogether possible that I will nominate him."

The Senator said he would leave for Chicago Sunday and confer with Farley as soon as he arrived.

Congress Recesses

This development came shortly after Congress had recessed until July 22 in order that Democratic members might attend the convention.

Earlier in the day Republican leaders gathered here for a meeting of the Willkie advisory committee pictured the Administration as much concerned over election prospects, and predicted Willkie would run surprisingly strong in the Democratic South.

Mr. Roosevelt's pledge not to send American soldiers to Europe was characterized by Gov. Harold E. Stassen, of Minnesota, chairman of the committee, as "one of many indications of Administration concern about the outcome of the election."

The 33-year-old Governor, keynoter at the Republican convention, visited Washington to confer with other members of the G. O. P. high command relative to plans for the fall campaign. He refused to disclose what recommendations were adopted on the grounds that the meeting was secret. He said the recommendations would be transmitted to Willkie and to Representative Joseph W. Martin, jr., chairman of the Republican National Committee.

He said that committee members from all parts of the country reported that Willkie was receiving support from "unexpected quarters in all walks of life," including Democrats.

Meanwhile, the Special Senate Committee Investigating Campaign Expenditures turned its attention to the nomination of Willkie, but found no evidence that there was anything to investigate.

And 64 Democratic members of the House issued a statement urging President Roosevelt to accept the nomination, and Secretary Ickes said to reporters after a Cabinet meeting that he had no doubt the President would run.

He emphasized that he was simply expressing his own opinion and that the Chief Executive had not told hmi how he felt about a third term.

Hatch Bill Goes to President

And no matter who runs in the Presidential race, the 1940 election will presumably be purer than usual because of final Congressional passage of the Hatch-Dempsey bill forbidding Federally paid State employes to engage in political activity. The Senate accepted yesterday by voice vote the amendments adopted Wednesday in the House, and sent the measure to the President.

The committee investigating campaign expenditures met yesterday to look into allegations that organized pressure groups had been responsible for Willkie's nomination in Philadelphia by deluging the Republican convention with telegrams.

"The committee is unanimously of the opinion that the suggestions and facts before it [regarding Willkie's nomination] are not sufficient to warrant committee action at this time," said a formal statement issued after the meeting.

Telegrams in Evidence

The group, headed by Senator Gillette, of Iowa, is composed of three Democrats and two Republicans. Neither of the Republicans, Senator Tobey, of New Hampshire, and Senator Reed, of Kansas, was a "Willkie man" before the nomination.

It is understood that the allegations of organized pressure were contained in some newspaper articles and in one or two letters received by the committee. On the other hand, several letters had been received from persons who had read of the proposed investigation and who asserted they had sent Willkie telegrams to Philadelphia entirely voluntarily.

Reemphasizing his belief that the President will run again, Secretary Ickes declared: "If I were a betting man, I'd bet on it." The Secretary said the third term was not mentioned at the Cabinet meeting. Secretary Wallace asserted that national defense was the theme of the conference.

And when Mayor LaGuardia, who lunched at the White House yesterday, was asked if he thought the President would accept the nomination, he replied: "I just assumed all that is set." The mayor said he and the President had discussed national defense, not the third term.

WILLIAM D. SIMMONS,

A former soldier, lawyer and Secret Service agent yesterday became doorkeeper to the President, succeeding Patrick E. McKenna, who died last week.

He is William D. Simmons, 45, who is more than 6 feet tall and whose size was in contrast to that of Pat McKenna, who was almost as wel lknown for his short stature as for his sense of humor.

Simmons, who was transferred to the White House assignment after 15 years with the Secret Service, had guarded the President ever since the March, 1933, inauguration.

A native of Washington, Simmons saw artillery service overseas during the World War, graduated from Georgetown University law school in 1924, served for a time with the War Department, and then joined the Secret Service in 1925.

Simmons lives with his wife and two children in Arlington, Va. After his first day on the new job yesterday he said:

"I think I'll like it. It will mean I can spend more time with my children, who are growing up."

Public for Willkie, Landon Writes Him

By the Associated Press

Colorado Springs, Colo., July 11.—Wendell L. Willkie, Republican Presidential nominee, received a letter today from Alf M. Landon, 1936 Republican Presidential candidate, saying that he had "caught the imagination" of the people.

Landon's letter, which carried a "Dear Wendell" greeting, came to Willkie, vacationing in Colorado's mountain area, while the nominee was making plans to talk next week with Republican leaders.

The guest list was expected to include Landon, former President Herbert Hoover, Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, who managed Willkie's Philadelphia campaign, and Representative Joe Martin (Republican), of Massachusetts, new chairman of the Republican National Committee.

In his letter, Landon said that he had talked with a traveling salesman "on whom I have depended a great deal for the last 12 years for reports on public sentiment in this section."

"He has just told me," the letter continued, "that out of 118 interviews in the Democratic section of Missouri, 82 per cent were favorable to you . . . .

"There is no doubt that you have caught the imagination of the American people."

Willkie spent today resting. He told reporters that he was "trying deliberately to be lazy," and that "I feel a lot better already."

The nominee told his press conference that he had spent some time reading the dissenting Supreme Court opinions of the late Justice Holmes.

Willkie said it was "fine" that the House had approved the Hatch measure extending to State employes paid partly from Federal funds the existing restrictions on political activity by Federal workers.

"I began advocating passage of the Hatch measure on May 11," the nominee asserted.

Asked for comment regarding the unsuccessful attempt of Representative Rankin (Democrat), to insert an amendment in the Hatch measure, to forbid political activity by employes of privately owned utility companies, Willkie responded, "Just say I laughed."

He laughed again when a reporter told him of reports that bombs had been found near the Republican Convention hall at Philadelphia.

"There was a bit of an explosion," he remarked with a grin.

Willkie's resignation as president of the Commonwealth & Southern Utility Co. was effective last midnight.

Last spring, two days before Chamberlain resigned as prime minister, a British Institute survey found that over 60 per cent of British voters disapproved of him as prime minister.

out the Nation, and running virtually even with him in the sections of the country which control the greatest number of electoral votes.

These results constitute, of course, no forecasts of how the race would start, because it is the State-by-State line-up of electoral votes rather than the popular vote which puts a man in office. Such State-by-State checks will be started by the Institute directly after the Democratic candidates for President and Vice President are named.

In today's study a cross-section of voters in all parties throughout the country asked:

"If President Roosevelt runs for a third term on the Democratic ticket against Wendell Willkie on the Republican ticket, how would you vote?"

Those expressing a choice voted as follows:

Roosevelt	53%
Willkie	47

One voter in every ten (10 per cent) expressed no opinion.

It should be remembered in studying these figures that the Republicans have already held their convention with its publicity and excitement, while the Democrats have not yet had their inning. In 1936, Institute surveys found a 4-point rise in Republican strength after the G. O. P. conventions.

In spite of all these factors, however, it is interesting to note that the number of voters favoring Roosevelt today is considerably smaller than the number who wanted the Democrats to win the election in a survey taken less than a month ago.

At that time, prior to the nomination of Willkie by the Republicans, 58 per cent of all voters polled said they favored a Democratic victory this year. At the same time, 57 per cent of voters with opinions on the third term said they favored President Roosevelt's reelection.

These figures compare with a present vote of only 53 per cent for Roosevelt when he is matched against the man who captured the G. O. P. nomination in a whirlwind campaign.

Willkie's popularity, the poll shows, is greatest in the upper income group—the source of Republican strength for the last eight years—while Roosevelt's has always been greatest in the lower income group. Significantly enough, sentiment in the middle income group, which generally holds the balance of power in a national election, is almost evenly divided on Willkie and Roosevelt, after having been for Roosevelt in 1936.

Another source of Willkie's strength, judging by today's indications, is his ability to draw 1936 Democrats away from Roosevelt. The poll finds that of those persons who voted for Roosevelt four years ago, about one-fourth are for Willkie today.

Drop Chamberlain British Voters Say

A survey conducted by the British Institute of Public Opinion shows a substantial majority of British voters in favor of dropping Neville Chamberlain, Sir John Simon, Sir Kinsley Wood and Lord Halifax from the cabinet.

Published in the London News Chronicle, the study was conducted on the question:

"Do you think Chamberlain, Simon, Wood and Halifax should be dropped from the government, or are you in favor of their remaining?"

	Should be Dropped	Should Remain
Chamberlain	77%	23%
Simon	63	37
Wood	55	45
Halifax	57	43

Pst! Chicago 'Knows' 3d-Term Secret

clude just about all Democrats here except the representatives of "if" aspirants who go on pretending they "assume" the President won't run, have it figured out somewhat as follows:

When the nominating speeches open, Alabama will yield to New York, with no demurrer from Speaker Bankhead, that State's favorite son.

Judge John E. Mack, of New York, who nominated Roosevelt in Chicago in 1932 and in Philadelphia in 1936, will put the President's name immediately before the convention.

Thereafter the roll of States will be called just as in other Democratic conventions—Farley insisted today there would be no nomination-by-acclamation departure from the roll-call rule.

In spite of the din and cheering to be led by Mayor Edward J. Kelly's Chicago contingent, one or two "unconditional" candidates may stick through that first ballot.

Senator Wheeler's headquarters here have definitely removed him "if" the President runs. But E. B. Germany, comanager for Vice President Garner, still vows Garner's name will go in. Germany, who arrived with a "yippee, yippee" on horseback the other day, today designated Wright Morrow, Houston lawyer and old friend of the Vice President, to make his nominating speech.

As for Farley's nomination, the Democratic chairman stated again today that "my position remains unchanged." That could mean that Farley's name still will go before the convention, since he originally announced unconditionally, and told friends as late as last Saturday that he will go through with this.

Besides Farley, who said his headquarters are "under his hat"—a Willkie original—three other aspirants have opened headquarters here. They are Garner, Wheeler and Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt. Frank McHale, McNutt's man, said the Hoosier still is a candidate if the President declines to run, and "Paul wants him to run."

How the President will communicate his decision is still a mystery here, but the supposition is that the President will permit himself to be nominated before a final "yes" or "no."

The weight of evidence is so heavy on the "yes" side that students of Roosevelt are ready to scram for the bomb shelters should the news pack a thrill finish.

One story told in a "usually reliable quarter" is that if Mr. Roosevelt "accepts" he will make a very definite demand for full party support of his leadership, without harrying attacks from the rear. Such a demand might loose another bombshell—the familiar opposition "dictatorship" charge.

As the resolutions committee prepared to open hearings on platform at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow, reports spread that President Roosevelt's defense message pledge will be written into the Democratic foreign affairs plank, possibly precipating a fight.

The lines are:

"We will not use our arms in a war of aggression; we will not send our men to take part in European wars. But we will repell aggression against the United States or the Western Hemisphere."

A clear bid for the same isolationist support that tied the Republican resolutions committee in knots, the proposal would insert language omitted at the last minute by the Philadelphia group. Senator Wagner, of New York, chairman of the resolutions committee, denied trouble was brewing on the plank or that he had even a rough draft of it drawn.

But Senator Pepper, of Florida, the Senate's foremost exponent of aid to the Allies, said he would insist on additional language being asserted that would guarantee not only aid to Great Britain but a reaffirmation of American interest in maintaining freedom of human rights everywhere.

Today's only "official" preconvention news was routine:

The arrangements committee moved to stop split-voting methods at future conventions, a practice which will swamp this convention with delegates having only a fraction of a vote apiece.

A special subcommittee considering changes in delegate strength that may give more delegates to States which go Democratic in Presidential years concluded hearings and will report to the full national committee tomorrow.

Symphony Chief Urges Exposure To Good Music

C. C. Cappel, manager of the National Symphony Orchestra, urged members of the Cosmopolitan Club to "expose yourselves to good music . . . for it's as catching as the measles" at a luncheon meeting of the group held yesterday at the Carlton Hotel.

He declared music was worthwhile both from a civic and a personal standpoint. He gave demonstrations on the piano.

Reports were given at the gathering by E. O. Carl, M. R. Colbert, F. J. Rice and M. M. Doyle on the recent convention of Cosmopolitan International at Norfolk. The club observed the birthday of L. F. Strieter, William A. Edelblut presided.

Committee Meets On Refugee Aid

First Young Briton Reaches D. C. Area; More Homes Sought

Washington's branch of the U. S. Committee for the Care of European Children will hold its first meeting at 4 p. m. today to discuss means of providing homes in the peace and security of the Nation's Capital for some of the thousands of children being evacuated to the New World by the British government.

Meanwhile, the District area's first British war refugee child, Anthony Thwaite, 10, basked happily in the home of his aunt, Mrs. V. F. Coe, 313 West Bradley lane, Chevy Chase, Md., getting accustomed to life without a gas mask.

Young "Tony," who arrived in New York this week on the liner Samaria, considers himself very lucky, indeed, to have an aunt in this country.

The committee which meets at the Chamber of Commerce Building today is concerned with the problem of finding suitable homes for the British youngsters who have no relatives here.

Excited by New Surroundings

Tony was still very much excited yesterday after his first day in his new surroundings. Mrs. Coe is trying to draw her nephew's attention away from the war as much as possible, but it was not hard to imagine what entered the youngster's mind yesterday when a giant passenger liner droned over the Chevy Chase home.

Tony dashed from the house, turned his blue eyes skyward and gazed until the plane vanished. Mrs. Coe, an Englishwoman herself, who was married to Mr. Coe while visiting this country as a student, thought of the grim contrast—instead of passenger planes there were death-dealing giants threatening the British Isles.

Tony spent part of the day playing with blocks. He built skyscrapers such as bewildered him on his arrival in New York. The big city's bright lights fascinated him, his aunt said, especially since the youngster had experienced blackouts for two months at his home near Sheffield.

When he got through with the skyscrapers, Tony seemed to revert to war thoughts again and finished up by building forts.

Mrs. O'Connor Is Chairman

Heading the local committee which meets today, hoping to be able to find homes for children less fortunate than Tony, will be Mrs. John Jay O'Connor. Capt. Rhoda Milliken, of the Police Women's Bureau, is vice chairman of the group, while Mrs. W. A. Roberts, of the Council of Social Agencies, is secretary.

A number of Washingtonians have offered homes to British refugee children, it was revealed, though not as many as expected. The committee has set up rigid requirements, and all applicants must furnish proof of moral and financial responsibility, so that the children will not become public charges, however long the war may last.

While there was talk of delay in the evacuation work now in progress, the State Department said yesterday the difficulties were not at this end. The announcement said the department's own machinery was working faster than Britain was able to provide transportation and that arrangements had been made for visas permitting 13,000 children to leave England by the end of July. Only a fraction of this number have arrived.

More Expected Soon

American ships are not calling at British Isle ports and the responsibility for bringing the children to Canada and the United States is that of the British government.

Tony is believed to be the first refugee in this section. Arriving on the same boat with him, however, was Jane Minniece, 8, who has been taken to the home of her uncle, Cecil Beane, of Catlett, Va.

A number of other refugees who will make their homes with relatives in Washington and nearby communities are expected within the next ten days.

Refugee Arriving on Excalibur Tells of Poland Under Heel

Student Aboard Last American Passenger Ship to Leave Mediterranean Describes Cruelties; 218 Crowded on Mercy Vessel

Copyright by New York Times

New York, July 11.—The 9,000-ton liner Excalibur of the American Export Line, the last American passenger vessel to leave Mediterranean waters after Italy entered the war, arrived here today with 218 passengers.

They were crowded in accommodations meant for 132 people, some sleeping on mattresses and low cots in public rooms and others packed in staterooms and the four public verandas; but none had time to discuss inconveniences, so glad were they to see familiar landmarks of the New York and Jersey shore.

All but two were citizens of the United States, and the exceptions were stateless travelers carrying so-called Nansen passports or identification papers.

Since most of the passengers came from countries not yet seriously affected by the war there were no personal adventure stories like those that have characterized refugee ships of the recent past; but one man, Frank Koszarek, 24 years old, of New Rochelle, described the tragic fate of Poland since the successful invasion by Reich forces last September.

Young Koszarek has been a medical student at the University of Cracow for the last three years, and after Germany took over he managed to remain there until the first week of June.

"Things were getting too hot and I decided to leave," he said. "I was probably the only American in the country. The university was closed by the Germans, but I stayed, working in the clinic, and I kept my eyes and ears open. They took the university professors, 40 of them, to concentration camps. All boys and girls from the ages of 16 to 25 had to register for work on German farms.

"Those who failed to register were seized in public places. Uniformed soldiers and Gestapo men would stop a street car and go through it, demanding identification cards; they would pick out young people and take them away. One night, while I was sitting at a table in a Warsaw cafe with some friends, the Germans burst in, a whole truckload of them. They took my companions away with them and I never saw them again. This was on April 15."

Koszarek said he learned reliably that 20,000 men were taken from one city in Russian Poland and sent into work camps or exile in Siberia.

He said that during the months he remained in Cracow or Warsaw he made contact with several Gestapo agents who told him that they were all studying English because they expected to be sent to England soon. He brought back pictures of scenes in war-shattered Polish towns, showing destroyed buildings and Polish people picking meat from horse carcasses in the streets. He hid the pictures successfully when he was examined on leaving the Polish border early in June.

U. S. Will File Trust Suit On Pullman Co.

To Cite 31 Individuals In Alleged Monopoly In Civil Action Today

The Justice Department announced last night that it would file in Philadelphia Federal District Court today a civil action against the Pullman companies and 31 individuals, including outstanding financial leaders, in the effort to divorce control of sleeping-car manufacture from operation of the equipment.

Among those whom the department said would be named are J. Pierpont Morgan, Richard K. Mellon, Sewell Avery, Alfred P. Sloan, jr., Harold S. Vanderbilt, George Whitney, C. W. Seabury, H. S. Morgan, all directors of one or more of the companies.

The complaint will charge, the Department said in a statement, that the Pullman companies "have refused to operate modern lightweight railroad equipment purchased by the railroads from any manufacturer other than the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing Co., and have threatened to withdraw the existing sleeping-car service and operations if railroads should buy and operate themselves any cars made by other manufacturers."

Charges Price-Gouging

The statement said further that the complaint would allege that the Pullman organization, through its operating monopoly, "charges the public artificial and unreasonably high prices for Pullman accommodations, and exacts non-competitive and onerous terms from railroads for the sleeping-car service which it provides."

The Department said that the Pullman Company owned approximately 6,000 sleeping cars, many of which are more than 20 years old, and in "an endeavor to protect these obsolete cars from the competition of new types of rolling stock, forced the railroads to use existing equipment and prevented them from operating lightweight, streamlined, sleeping cars."

As a consequence, it was alleged, "the production of modern railroad equipment by independent manufacturers and its use by the railroads have been hamstrung."

Other defendants to be named were listed as the Pullman Co., which is the operating unit; Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing Co., which is the manufacturing unit; Pullman, Inc., a holding company which owns the first two, and Pullman Car & Manufacturing Corporation of Alabama.

Officers to Be Named

These officers of one or more of the companies will be named: David A. Crawford, E. Eugene Adams, Louis S. Taylor, George A. Kelly, Lowell M. Greenlaw, who are officers of either the Pullman Co. or Pullman, Inc.; Charles A. Liddle, Ellis W. Test, Wallace N. Barker, H. H. Gilbert, H. M. Dudley, J. A. Knowlton, and William J. Peters, all officers of Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing Co.

Additional directors to be named were listed as James F. Bell, William Bierman, Arthur O. Choate, J. Frank Drake, R. S. Euler, R. L. Gordon, P. G. Jenks, Donald R. McClennan, John R. Morron, Alan M. Scaife, and Henry S. Sturgis.

It was disclosed more than two months ago that the department's anti-trust division was studying the Pullman Co. set-up. The department said today that it was proceeding "by civil action rather than by criminal action because the contracts between the Pullman organization and the railroads which contain provisions alleged to be in restraint of trade have been publicly recorded for many years with the Interstate Commerce Commission. Hence it would seem more appropriate at this date to institute civil proceedings when the Government has been on notice for so long of the existence of these contracts and practices."

Mexican Feminist Asks Women's Aid For Democracy

Senora Amalia de Castillo Ledon, auburn-haired Mexican poetess and feminist leader, is here to draw up a plan of action for women of the Americas to rally around for democracy.

Senora Leon

The senora, who listened to questions in English, understanding them, but answered them in Spanish through an interpreter, was unwilling to predict what the plan of action may be.

She will meet at 10:30 a. m. today with members of the Inter-American Commission of Women, in the commission's offices in the Pan American Building to formulate the plan.

She thinks the commission can be very instrumental in bringing unity for democracy among women of the hemisphere. She did not believe there is any considerable Communist or Nazi movement in her country. She believes that Mexico is very friendly to the United States.

The meeting today was called by Miss Minerva Bernardino, of the Dominican Republic, vice chairman of the commission.

Seccombe Asks Ban on Private D. C. Fireworks

Drafts Bill to Limit Pyrotechnics on 4th To Public Displays

Fireworks would be limited in Washington to public displays, such as that staged every Independence Day on the Washington Monument grounds, under provisions of a bill being prepared by Representative Seccombe (Democrat), of Ohio.

Sale or possession of fireworks or toy cap pistols will be prohibited if the bill becomes a law. The legislation is copied from a model law sponsored by the National Safety Council.

Seccombe, a member of the House District Committee, said he will ask Chairman Randolph to permit him to call up the bill in the House after the recess.

Similar laws are in operation in many Ohio cities, Seccombe said, and are designed to protect life and limbs as well as to promote peace and quiet.

"The act would not deprive the public of exhibitions of fireworks, as the one Washington has every year, or any special displays," he explained, "but it would require that they be under proper supervision."

Under the proposed law police would be empowered to seize fireworks purchased in Maryland or Virginia when they are transported into the District.

Peace Mobilization

A Washington peace mobilization meeting will be held at 8 o'clock tonight at 1749 N street northwest.

C. F. Jacobsen, Bank President, Weds Secretly

C. F. JACOBSEN

The surprise marriage of C. F. Jacobsen, president of the National Metropolitan Bank, in Manassas, Va., on June 29 was disclosed yesterday. Unknown even to his family and closest friends, the 56-year-old banker made Miss Edna Parker, a General Accounting Office employe, his bride during his vacation.

Jacobsen's first wife died about seven years ago. According to a member of his family, who had learned only meager details of the wedding, the bank president had known Miss Parker "about two years." She is reported to be a native of Illinois.

Henry Helms Made Captain Of Park Police

Sergt. Henry T. Miskell Elevated to Lieutenant; 2 Privates Promoted

Promotion of Lieut. Henry Helms to captaincy of the U. S. Park Police, which was forecast last week by The Post, was announced yesterday by Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes.

Other changes in rank which The Post indicated would be made and which were confirmed yesterday were:

Sergt. Henry T. Miskell, promoted to lieutenant to succeed Helms; Privates William R. Lutes and Mark H. Raspberry, elevated to sergeants.

In addition, Privates J. B. Lawler, jr., and R. G. Thompson were raised to the designation of acting sergeants. These two posts formerly were held by S. G. Kitchen and Grover C. Shumaker, who return to the rank of private. It was explained that the "demotion" of the latter two is one of rating only, acting sergeants on the park force holding the rank of private.

Capt. Helms, a veteran of 26 years in the service, succeeds Capt. Patrick J. Carroll, who was retired for disability July 1. He will be the 80-man department's uniformed head. The United States Park Police has only one captain and one lieutenant.

Lieut. Miskell joined the force 22 years ago and was made a sergeant in 1921. Sergeants Lutes and Raspberry have been in the department for 14 and 9 years, respectively. Acting Sergeant Lawler is a 13-year man and Acting Sergeant Thompson joined the organization 10 years ago.

Gen. Marshall Testifies For Army Training Plan

Burke-Wadsworth Measure Criticized By Maj. Eliot

Gen. George C. Marshall yesterday supported compulsory military training as the only means of providing an "essential" increase in Army strength.

The Chief of Staff's statement came as the first official indication that the War Department would back peace-time conscription of American manpower.

Implied indorsement of the Burke-Wadsworth bill was seen in Gen. Marshall's announcement that he will suggest amendments "minor in nature," when he appears today before the Senate Military Affairs Committee hearing on the military service measure.

Thomas Sees Menace

The bill was assailed at yesterday's hearing by Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for the Presidency, and spokesmen for half a dozen peace societies as a grave menace to American liberties.

Maj. George Fielding Eliot, military writer and commentator, testified that he favored the principle of compulsory service but believed the pending bill would give the country "the illusion of security without the substance." He argued for a highly trained army of about 600,000 men.

Gen. Marshall told his press conference that "past experience convinces the War Department we cannot go beyond our present program of 375,000 men on a voluntary basis.

"Some form of compulsory training is necessary if we are to increase our armed forces," he said, "and certainly we must increase them beyond the 375,000 figure."

The Chief of Staff said the War Department considers an eight-month period, as provided in the Burke-Wadsworth bill, too brief to produce seasoned troops. It is understood that the department's first request will be for an increase of Army strength to 500,000.

The Socialist leader said no proposal "could be more in line with Fascist regimentation and less in accord with American tradition and the American way of life" than the Burke-Wadsworth bill.

Points to Dictatorships

Thomas said "powerful men and forces" were representing the bill as a contribution to democratic discipline and loyalty.

"Not one of you will seriously tell the American people," he declared, "that military conscription has made for democracy in Japan, Russia, Germany or Italy, or preserved democracy and eradicated disloyalty in France, Belgium or Holland."

Thomas said the Navy, air force and "highly trained operators" of a mechanized Army were adequate for American defense "unless we are to go in for foreign military adventures." No legitimate American defense policy requires the services of eight-month conscripts, he contended.

Oswald Garrison Villard, liberal editor, told the committee the bill "carries far greater dangers to the freedom of this Nation than any measure that has been before Congress in my lifetime." The bill would "tie up the total industrial life of our country," he said.

Villard suggested as the first step toward creating an effective national defense that Congress "streamline our antiquated War Department, now presided over by a gentleman 72 years of age."

Questioned by Senator Burke (Democrat), of Nebraska, Villard gave his own age as 68 and added, "I wouldn't dream of considering myself able to run any Government department."

Maj. Eliot asserted that "short-term forces are of no value in modern war." He compared the collapse of Norway's short-service conscript army in the face of a small but highly trained German force with the "fine fight" put up by the trained Finnish army against masses of raw Russian troops.

"At least two years of training is needed to develop the coordination which is the secret of German success," he said. "Let's concentrate on things we can do. The first thing is to raise our regular Army to 500,000 or 600,000 highly trained men, and that's as well as we can do for the next year or two."

Msgr. George Barry O'Toole, professor of philosophy at Catholic University, asserted that "a single soldier serving voluntarily is worth 100 military slaves. The Burke-Wadsworth bill "admits the superiority of the totalitarian way," he said.

A request that the exemption granted by the bill to the clergy be extended to students for the priesthood and brothers in religious orders was placed before the committee by Msgr. Michael J. Ready, general secretary of the National Catholic Welfare Conference.

Testimony against the bill was given by John Nevin Sayre, executive secretary of the Fellowship of Reconciliation; Robert Handschin, of the Farmers Education and Cooperative Union; Benjamin C. Marsh, executive secretary of the People's Lobby; the Rev. John M. Swomley, vice president of the National Council of Methodist Youth, and Mrs. Rosa M. Farber, chairman of the legislative committee of the Mothers of the United States of America.

Capt. Marshall R. Diggs, Reserve officer and former Acting Controller of the Currency, supported selective compulsory military training as a method of encouraging in young men "the warrior temperament—without hate or fear, a rather cold-blooded thing." He said the United States "should never again make the mistake of going to war on foreign soil to save democracy."

A 12-month training period was urged by Col. Herbert Frost, another Reserve officer. Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, retired, former chief of the Chemical Warfare Service, declared that compulsory training "is the only way of assuring a republic continued life in these days of power politics."

In testimony on the bill before the House Military Affairs Committee, Gen. John M. Palmer, retired, said no nation was prepared for war "unless it is prepared to utilize all its power," adding that it might be necessary for this country soon to "exert all our power" to preserve American institutions.

Representative Wadsworth (Republican), of New York, coauthor of the bill, said at the House hearing that the original proposal to pay $5 a month to trainees would be revised upward to $21, basic Army pay. He said the change was favored by the War Department.

An unusual press release from the War Department yesterday emphasized Secretary Stimson's support of the Burke-Wadsworth bill. To a description of Stimson's call on Gen. Pershing the release added:

"Incidentally, Col. Stimson, who is an ardent advocate of the immediate passage of the selective service and training bill, commanded one of the first battalions organized on a compulsory selective service basis (in 1917) . . . The splendid democratic spirit of camaraderie and mutual obligation of service among his own soldiers evidently made an indelible impression on the Secretary's mind."

Langley Field, Va., and Sunnyvale, Calif., to further improve the performance of planes.

Loan Administrator Jones revealed the RFC has already made loans totaling $15,000,000 to business for defense purposes, but declined to estimate how much will be needed for the aircraft and other arms expansion. He likewise would not outline any board rules of amortization or payment of defense loans, stating each loan will be treated separately.

Other Developments

Other defense developments of the day included:

Col. Frank Knox was sworn in as Secretary of the Navy and, with the new War Secretary, Henry L. Stimson, participated in the first meeting of President Roosevelt's new bipartisan Cabinet.

Chairman Vinson of the House Naval Committee introduced legislation to authorize a $250,000,000 housing program for naval personnel and civilians engaged in defense duties at bases, Navy yards and private yards. Included is authorization for a new Marine Corps base, which Vinson said should be located at Guantanamo, Cuba, from where Marines could be quickly sent to "trouble spots" in the Caribbean or South America.

A House Military Affairs subcommittee recommended the United States acquire and fortify fleet and air bases in Nova Scotia and Bermuda, and strengthen what it declared were "deplorably weak" Atlantic defenses.

The House Military Affairs Committee reported a Senate approved bill to give the Army commanders of the Panama Canal and Hawaiian departments the rank of lieutenant general.

C. D. Howe, Canadian minister of supply, arrived here on what is understood to be munitions purchasing mission.

Senator Holt (Democrat), of West Virginia, read to the Senate a list of bankers, industrialists and movie stars who he said had financed the publication of newspaper advertisements urging "Stop Hitler Now.'

Declaring many of the contributors were "profiting" from the European war, and "wanted American boys to protect their investments" Holt listed among them: J. P. Morgan & Co., Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Lehman Bros., Mrs. Averell Harriman, Mrs. H. P. Davison, Mrs. Daniel Guggenheim, Mrs. John Schiff, Frederick Warburg, Cornelius Whitney, Thomas W. Lamont, Joseph Thomas, Samuel Goldwyn, Maxwell Anderson, Fred Astaire, Irving Berlin, Douglas Fairbanks, jr., Lynn Fontanne, Alfred Lunt, Myrna Loy, and Robert Sherwood.

Defense Training Planned for CCC

Training programs of the CCC "will be intensified," and "every facility of the CCC organization" will be utilized in the advancement of the national defense program, James J. McEntee, corps director, said last night.

Addressing the closing session of the sixth annual CCC educational advisers' conference at College Park, McEntee added, "I am not in a position to give you full information on this matter tonight."

He revealed that the corps will adopt a "broadening training and educational program which will train young men in . . . skills useful in industry as well as in national emergency." This will include intensified training in aviation mechanics, radio and photography, he said.

Arms Makers Hit Stringent Profit Curb

Treasury Is Warned Small Manufacturers May Shun U. S. Orders

Though tax and write-off provisions that will apply to arms makers have been settled by a White House conference, an argument continued yesterday between the Treasury and munitions industries over how much is a profit.

Point of the dispute, now entering its second round, is what expenses munitions makers may be permitted to charge off as costs when they sit down to figure up their profit for income tax purposes.

West Coast aircraft manufacturers and key industrial firms, such as the Packard Motor Co., are reported to feel that Treasury rules might take away from them too much of the 8 per cent profit on arms orders that is now permitted by law.

These manufacturers greeted as a victory the White House announcement Wednesday that the value of new plants and equipment acquired to handle emergency defense orders may be charged off as costs—that is, amortized, over a five-year period.

Previously, industry had feared that the value of these new plants might have to be depreciated at a much slower rate, perhaps over a 20-year period, which is the life expectancy of an average factory.

Then again, a feeling of relief swept munitions circles when it was disclosed that the President and his Congressional advisors had agreed to scrap the 80 per cent limit on arms profits in favor of a general excess profits tax applying to all types of business.

Rightly or wrongly, business was said yesterday to expect that the excess profits tax, when finally written, will leave them a bigger slice of profit than the 8 per cent limit law that now applies to contracts for naval vessels and for military aircraft.

When the aircraft industry learned of the excess profits tax proposal, Donald W. Douglas, president of the Douglas Aircraft Corporation, said:

"Production, not profits, is the important question today."

But lawyers for aircraft firms and other interested arms makers immediately began to analyze the law in an attempt to find means of actually ringing into their tills the full 8 per cent allowed by law.

They found, however, according to industry representatives interviewed by the Associated Press, that the Treasury Department was making its own rules on what constitutes a profit and what items may be fairly classed as costs. As a result, it was said, industry representatives saw their allowable profits being almost extinguished by Treasury rules.

Britain, U. S. To Discuss Gold Problem

Undersecretary Phillips on Way To See Morgenthau

Sir Frederick Phillips, British undersecretary of the treasury, on his way to Washington to discuss with Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau "technical and other questions" affecting American and British treasuries. Sir Frederick visited Morgenthau in the autumn of 1937.

It is learned that the discussions will revolve around the following:

1. The tri-partite monetary monetary agreement. The pact has been virtually nonexistent in recent months, in view of exchange restrictions which England has placed to safeguard its capital.

2. The whole problem of gold. England and the United States are no wthe two largest holders of the yellow metal. However, the British have been losing large amounts for war purchases, with the United States now holding aalmost $20,000,000,000 of the world's supply.

3. The Nazi campaign to discredit gold as a basis of international payments, with Belgium, Holland, Denmark and Norway prostrated, and Italy and Germany desirous of building an economic hegemony on a new basis.

5. Reconstruction of Europe on a gold basis again if England succeeds in defeating Germany, and cooperation between the treasuries in that direction.

6. Possibly economic and monetary cooperation in South America to forestall any further Nazi infiltration south of the Rio Grande.

Meanwhile, the Department of Commerce reported yesterday that net imports of gold during June reached $1,162,975,000, an amount almost double net receipts in any previous month, as compared with $435,132,000 in May. Gross imports were $1,164,224,000 in June and $$438,695,000 in the preceding month; exports were $1,249,000 and $3,563,000, respectively. Cumulative net imports of gold during the first six months of 1940 were $2,745,598,000, as compared with $2,020,642,000 during the corresponding months in 1939.

Earmarking operations during June resulted in a net increase of $437,234,000 in gold held under earmark for foreign account at the Federal Reserve banks, following an increase of $36,852,000 in May. The combined effect of gold imports and earmarking operations during June was a net inflow of gold amounting to $725,741,000, as compared with a net gain from foreign sources of $398,480,000 in May.

The net inflow of gold during the six-month period was $2,202,415,000, as compared with $1,527,898,000 during the corresponding period of 1939. The total amount of gold earmarked for foreign account at the end of June was $1,706,187,000.

Tokyo Expects New Cabinet, Stronger Tone to Britain

Press Says Army Wants Burma Road Question Pressed

Copyright by New York Times

Tokyo, July 11.—Rumors of an impending political change in Japan are rife. The newspaper Asahi tonight says that though the curtain is still down the stage is set and developments will be rapid after Prince Fumimaro Konoye's return from the country Sunday.

According to the press the "propelling influence" is the army and the object sought, in the newspaper Nichi Nichi's words is "reorientation of diplomacy to strengthen the axis through abandonment of Japan's noninvolvement policy."

Informed Japanese regard this as an extreme statement unlikely to be completely fulfilled, but nobody has any doubt that the change will lead to a policy in that direction.

Prince Konoye, who is temperamentally cautious, says Japan must now change her foreign policy to meet a new world situation and must hasten disposal of the China incident. British reluctance to give a clearcut agreement regarding the Burma road has accelerated the movement for a cabinet with a stronger foreign policy.

All Japanese political forces are agreed that termination of the Chinese war is the foremost object of Japanese policy, but there is a patient and an impatient school. Chiang Kai-shek's continued resistance is explained to the people as due to foreign supplies. The French routes are now closed, but the Russian routes are beyond Japan's reach and that aspect is obscurely involved in the relations with Germany.

There remains, therefore, only the Burma road, and what the proponents of a change want is strong pressure against Britain.

Russia Sees U. S. Difficulties

Copyright by New York Times

Moscow, July 11.—United States relations with Japan are again considered in today's Soviet press. In an article in the newspaper Trud, it is stated that the United States, in allowing lapse of its trade agreement with Japan in July, 1939, had expected the support of Britain and France.

But with Britain engaged in a life and death struggle against Germany, Anglo-American collaboration against Japan has become extremely difficult.

The absence of proper bases in the western Pacific will not permit America to consider offensive operations west of the Hawaiian Islands, the article says, and adds that a considerable part of the United States Navy is obsolete.

Princesses Stay to Face War in Britain

NO EXCEPTIONS FOR THEM—King George and Queen Elizabeth, it is reported, have firmly rejected the suggestion that Princess Elizabeth (left), heir presumptive to the throne, and her sister, Princess Margaret, be sent out of the country because of war. Their royal parents were said to prefer to share "family perils" with other parents whose children could not leave. So the little princesses are spending days riding in a pony cart at a country residence away from London. (Photo yesterday by clipper mail)

Jones Confers With Experts on Plan to Build Tin Smelters

The United States Government acted yesterday to free this hemisphere from dependence on war-torn parts of the world for a first-rank strategic raw material—tin.

Jesse Jones, Federal Administrator, conferred with representatives of metal concerns, the State Department, Defense Commission and other agencies on a plan to build this country's first tin smelters.

According to the new project, still in its first stages, American nonferrous metal concerns, presumably with financial help from the Government, would build tin smelters here to treat Bolivian ores.

Worry over possible tin shortages, leaving the United States in a dangerous position, has been prompted by the fact that there are no important tin smelters in this hemisphere, with the exception of a very small one in Argentina.

Further, officials considered the fact that 81 per cent of tin used in this country comes normally from Asia, from British Malaya and the Dutch East Indies. This area is now threatened with involvement in a colonial struggle between Japan and Western nations.

81 Pct. Comes From Asia

In addition, officials looked with undisguised concern on the fact that an additional 18 per cent of America's tin supply is Bolivian ore that comes here by way of Europe, where it has to be taken for smelting and for "sweetening" with higher-grade ores from the East.

A start at meeting the tin shortage has been made by the RFC with organization of a Government corporation to buy 75,000 tons of smelted tin in the Far East, enough to last for one year at normal consumption.

The United States consumes normally about 45 per cent of the world's tin production, or 75,000 tons a year.

Other Metals Bought

Imports of the metal, vital in the auto and canning industry and used for bearings, solders, bronzes and gun metals, were 159,028,803 pounds last year, worth $70,000,000.

In other steps to meet shortages of raw materials that may be occasioned by war, Jones announced that RFC had bought 6,000 tons each of antimony and chromium.

Officials were frankly fearful that the main British smelters on which this country depends might be destroyed by bombs or cut off by German invasion.

It was speculated yesterday that the plan to bring Bolivian ores here for smelting might be proposed at the Pan American conference next week as a measure of cementing economic solidarity and protection in this hemisphere.

Bombs Endanger King in Nazi Raids on Britain

In the northeast single communities had as many as 30 to 40 dwellings wrecked.

But the late day and after-dusk attacks were concentrated largely on the southeast coast—nearest defense line to Nazi captured take-off points for invasion of England.

Poris Probably Bombed

The listing of two French sailors among the wounded was taken as a possible indication that harbor facilities or shipping in British ports bore part of the brunt of the attack.

A British announcement said the day raids could be split into two main actions, both fought over different parts of the south coast. The first lasted three hours, "before lunch," in which time 12 German planes were brought down. The second, in the afternoon, scattered into a succession of dogfights. One patrol of Hurricanes smashed into a German fighter escort flight and downed one light plane and three guarded bombers. The British acknowledged the loss of four planes.

The government announced only that along with an undetermined number of wounded there were "several" fatalities in areas of southwest, southeast and northeast England.

(For several days, the British have avoided giving specific information as to the slain. But it was clear, from the fact that "several" dead were acknowledged in three separate areas, that this time the total of fatalities was considerable.)

Tonight Alfred Duff Cooper, the minister of information, said in a radio speech that "some people are disappointed that fuller accounts are not given in the press as to where bombs have fallen and how many people were hurt."

"But," he added, "unfortunately the enemy read our press; the enemy listen to our broadcasts and nothing that is printed or said escapes the eyes and ears of the enemy."

The damage done in the widespread Nazi attacks was not estimated in the aggregate. In the northeast area alone, however, it was reported that three bombs which killed several persons made some 30 to 40 houses uninhabitable.

In another town, an inn was cut in half and a number of workmen's homes were smashed by bombs which apparently had been intended for an objective nearby.

The night raid in the southeast employed about 20 German planes, but it was said they were kept at a great height by antiaircraft fire.

There, it was stated that a "number" of persons were killed or wounded. Fifteen high-explosive bombs were dropped; one fell on an air post and killed all occupants. The attackers came over in three waves of eight planes.

Nazi gunners were said to have turned their weapons on civilians and a fire engine crew in a southeastern town, and to have bombed and machine-gunned cattle in a marsh.

An east coast railway siding was another target and "several" persons were killed. Children were reported cut by flying glass in a small midlands town and "a few" persons killed.

Nine of twelve raiding planes bagged today were caught by aerial and ground guns when dive bombers, squired by a swarm of Messerschmitts, swept in to attack a British convoy and a southwestern port.

Seven port attackers were brought down by four British fighters in an uneven battle. Two of the convoy attackers were shot down but at a cost of three Royal Air Force machines. The convoy proceeded.

One of the south coast raiders, hit by British gunfire, plunged out of control and meteor-like to the ground, machine and crew shattered in bits by the tremendous explosion from its loaded bomb racks.

On the offensive side of the British ledger, bombers of the R. A. F. "dived through a storm of sleet and rain" to lash at Boulogne airdrome at dawn today and were believed to have destroyed five German planes.

Boulogne, across the narrow Straits of Dover, is one of the likeliest jump-off points for any direct invasion of England.

"The British raiders took ground forces completely by surprise," said an air ministry bulletin.

Bombs were released from low altitude and the first attackers "scored a number of hits with high explosive bombs along one side of the airdrome." In a second sortie the Britons attacked 20 grounded planes.

The British staged a daylight attack yesterday on the airdromes of St. Omer and Amiens, France. Five planes failed to return.

(The German high command declared that an entire force of seven British planes which attacked the Amiens airdrome at Glisy was shot down.)

Airdromes, concentrations of barges and other military objectives in France and the Low Countries were caught by British bombardment today, the air ministry said.

While the British-German struggle continued on the aerial front, there were other major developments linked with Britain's fight for life:

Foreign Affaires Undersecretary R. A. Butler told the House of Commons that success in Britain's attempts to make friends with Soviet Russia has "appeared more likely since March when the U. S. S. R. made a friendly approach to the government and proposed resumption of trade negotiations." He voiced the hope that discussions undertaken at Moscow by Sir Stafford Cripps, the British Ambassador, "may remove the danger of the Soviet government working either economically or militarily against Great Britain in the interests of Germany."

Minister Without Portfolio Arthur Greenwood disclosed in the House that an organization is being formed to replace the British-French purchasing board under the minister of shipping to handle increasing purchases from the United States.

Lord Craigavon, prime minister of northern Ireland, informed the House of Commons at Belfast that Prime Minister Eamon de Valera of Eire, had definitely rejected proposals for joint defense of the two parts of Ireland. Britain, of which northern Ireland is a part, thus appears ready to move to the defense of Ireland only when and if the De Valera government calls for help. Ireland has been mentioned as a likely point of German landings.

The admiralty announced an Italian destroyer and "a hulk of the type generally used as a depot or store ship" were sunk in a British air raid yesterday on an Italian harbor in Sicily.

Lord Beaverbrook, minister of aircraft production, told the House of Lords tonight that "the sky is the limit" for British aircraft purchases in America.

"Our program is perfectly simple," he said. "It is to buy everything we can possibly get."

There is no "shortage" of planes, Beaverbrook said, but "we will need more airplanes every day and must go on developing that program (of American purchases) as fully as possible."

Counting French purchases, Beaverbrook disclosed, Allied plane buying has amounted to more than $600,000,000.

Capital Promised Relief From Heat

ties. The storms flooded streets, cellars and subways. A 55-mile-an-hour wind struck LaGuardia Field, delaying for an hour New York-Washington air traffic. Two major New York and one Newark broadcasting station went off the air for 30 minutes due to a power failure, but Washington network outlets were not affected.

The electrical disturbance and power failure cut off temporarily municipal police radio systems, and the lights of all hospitals in the storm area. In Jersey City police reported that the wind had uprooted 50 large trees.

In Washington at least six persons were stricken by heat. They are:

Michael Pagats, 47, of Easton, Pa., on the Capitol steps. Treated at Providence Hospital.

John Medin, 58, of 117 C street southeast. Treated at Casualty Hospital.

Stephen H. Reisinger, 26, of Hemlock Creek, Pa., at Sixth street and Massachusetts avenue northwest. Treated at Casualty Hospital.

Daniel Chew, 45, colored, of 61 Pierce street northwest, at Twenty-second street and Rhode Island avenue northwest. Treated at Freedmans Hospital.

John Dunn, 63, colored, of 1204 Wylie street northwest, on a Connecticut avenue construction job. Admitted to Providence Hospital.

William Green, 36, colored, of 421 L street northwest, on a construction job at Georgia avenue and the District line. Treated at Freedmans Hospital.

Offices in the District Building closed at 2:30 p. m. because of the heat. Also closed were offices on the seventh floor of the Railroad Retirement Board building, Tenth and U streets northwest.

Lowest temperature yesterday was 73 at 5:30 a. m. Humidity registered 49 per cent when the temperature was at its highest at 3:50 p. m.

'Der Tag' Held Set For Central America

Nazis Declared to Have Perfected Plans To Take Over 5 Republics From Within; None Has Adequate Defense Forces

Copyright by New York Times

San Jose, Costa Rica (By Air Mail From Balboa), July 10.—A recent survey of Central America indicates that the Nazis, assisted by the Fascists, the Spanish Phalangists and disloyal natives, are reported ready for "der tag," which they believe will put into power governments that will obey their orders.

There seems to be no question of the attitude of the present governments, generally opposed to the European totalitarians. Sympathies of the officials have been with England and France, and now that France has been eliminated, support for Great Britain is still almost unanimous. These officials express their attitude openly and vigorously in public in every one of the five republics.

The people also are overwhelmingly in favor of the cause of democracy against totalitarian conquest. But these elements are not organized to meet totalitarian propaganda, combat the fifth columnists and defeat them in any attempted uprising.

Although the totalitarians, led by the Nazis, are in a decided minority, they are so well organized that they constitute a real force and threat. The greatest danger comes from the fact that many of the Germans in Central America are veterans of the World War and others have had military training. A large number of them occupy strategic positions in the governments and in the economic life of the countries.

It is also evident that the totalitarians have many followers among the native elements. These disloyal Central Americans hide their sympathies carefully, even to the extent of pretending to be anti-Nazi. Nevertheless, they are all listed for future use by the Nazi diplomats, their propaganda agents and the so-called "personal representatives" of the German Fuehrer, to whom the others are subordinate.

The Nazis have clandestine radio stations and other secret means of communication in every Central American republic, well organized and ready for action, in fact already in action. The completeness of this system and the strategic positions held by Nazi leaders indicate to many observers that when the day comes uprisings will start at the same time in all of the countries. This will prevent one country from assisting another, as each will have its own troubles.

Costa Rica has a poorly trained and equipped force of 500 men, including officers. Honduras has a larger force, but little better trained and equipped. The American-trained national guard of Nicaragua is stronger. The army in El Salvador is larger, better trained and equipped, but its training and much of its equipment have come from Germany and Italy. Guatemala has the largest and strongest military force in Central America.

Every Central American republic, all of them strategically important to defense of the Panama Canal, and a great majority of the people are willing to cooperate with the United States in defense of this continent and its governments and institutions. But it does not seem to have occurred to either the governments or the people that preparation is necessary if all are to contribute to this defense.

Copyright by New York Times

Montevideo, Uruguay, July 11.—German diplomatic agents and commercial representatives throughout South America have combined to bring heavy diplomatic and commercial pressure on the South American countries on the eve of the Havana conference. This pressure is patently designed to keep them in line as friends of Germany despite any economic solutions which may be suggested at Havana.

The German propaganda machine throughout the continent has been conducting a particularly bitter campaign against the proposed economic union of the Americas, stating that this is a "blind" behind which the United States hopes to press its hegemony on the Latin-American countries. South American newspapers have given wide publicity to a recent warning appearing in the Berlin publication Berlin-Rome-Tokyo plainly telling Latin Americans that they are not to participate in the economic recovery which the publication says is to result from the new era in Europe unless they maintain a friendly attitude toward Germany during the rest of the war.

German diplomats and business agents are assuring South American governments and businessmen that the war will be over by the end of this year and that Germany and its occupied territories will immediately be in the market for huge purchases of South American products.

Statements made by the chairman of the Argentine delegation to the Havana conference on his arrival in Rio de Janeiro yesterday, as well as those made by the Argentine minister of foreign affairs, indicate that the Argentine delegation will not agree to any economic solutions which would tend to lead South American republic away from their former export customers in Europe, of whom Germany is one of the best.

Brig. Gen. Devers Made Commander Of D. C. Brigade

Brig. Gen. Jacob L. Devers, former West Point baseball star and graduate manager of athletics, yesterday was named commander of the Washington Brigade, embracing the troops at Fort Myer and Arlington cantonment, which guard the Nation's Capital.

GEN. DEVERS

Until recently chief of staff of the Panama Canal Department, Gen. Devers immediately assumed his new post. He relieves Brig. Gen. Maxwell Murray, who is en route to Hawaii for a new assignment.

Gen. Devers is well known here, having commanded the Sixteenth Field Artillery at Fort Myer from 1934 to 1936, when he took over the direction of West Point athletics. He is a native of York, Pa., and was graduated from the Military Academy in 1909.

Robert W. Service Arrives in London

London, July 11 (AP).—Robert W. Service, Canadian poet famous for his narrations on life in the Yukon, fleeing for the second time from German invaders, has arrived in London with his wife and daughter. Service, who fled from Poland last fall, caught a boat at St. Malo shortly before German bombs demolished most French Channel ports.

Hull Rebukes Nazis for Note To Americas

British Warn Cartel May Not Sell Goods To German-Held Lands

Associated Press reported last night that despite the German action, the Honduran foreign ministry indicated that the five Central American countries would act as a unit in support of the United States program at Havana. It said the German message had been received by all five countries, but the delegates of all have been instructed to support United States policies.

Foreign Powers Kept Out

Bearing out Secretary Hull's declaration that the conference would deal only with matters relating solely to this hemisphere's welfare, it was learned that no non-American power is being permitted to participate in consultations and plans for the gathering. Already officials have cast aside a British effort toward cooperation with the proposal for a cartel to dispose of all American surpluses, the British being especially interested in seeing that none of the products fall into the hands of Germany, Italy or Japan.

Following shelving of the British proposal, London dispatches last night said the minister of economic warfare had declared:

"While the Havana conference is not concerned with any of these blockade questions, in the face of the ruthlesss German blockade of the United Kingdom, it will not be for us to relax any of our blockade measures, but rather to persevere with them to the utmost, believing that any relaxation would serve to lengthen the war."

England"s Position

Officials of the ministry observed that because of the war America's surplus problem was accentuated, the New York Times said in a copyrighted article. They also said the same problem had arisen in acute form in British and other colonial territories, and added that steps were being taken to see whether Britain could not cooperate with the American nations in working out some solution to the problem.

It was clear, here, that United States officials will not object to Britain's attempting to win favor of the other American nations for her efforts to bring about a boycott of sales to the totalitarian countries. It appeared possible that London's undertaking might be made the subject of later conversations.

Aluminum Pay Parley Halts Until Today

30th Sides Gloomy Over Prospects of Averting Strike

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, July 11.—A conference between the Aluminum Co. of America and the C. I. O. Aluminum Workers Union, demanding a 10 cents an hour pay boost, was adjourned tonight until 2:30 p. m. tomorrow.

"No comment," was the response of spokesmen to inquiries regarding progress. Both sides remained outwardly gloomy over prospects of averting a threatened strike in five plants.

With the conferees was J. A. Addicks, Federal labor conciliator, who is struggling to prevent a tieup of the aluminum industry that would seriously hamper the Nation in its race to rearm. Aluminum is vital to the airplane industry.

The union is demanding a flat 10 cents an hour increase in wages for approximately 15,000 employes in plants at Edgewater, N. J.; Detroit; Badin, N. C.; New Kensington, Pa., and Alcoa, Tenn. The company has countered with a proposal to change work classifications to provide some increases, but refuses a general boost.

Akron Strike Settled

A strike—already voted by the New Kensington and Edgewater locals—would reduce the company's production almost 50 per cent.

Akron, Ohio, July 11 (AP).—Settlement of a four-day strike at the Babcock & Wilcox Co., in nearby Barberton opened the way for resumption of operations today and work on Navy orders.

The A. F. L. Federal Union, which called the walkout Sunday to enforce wage demands, approved the settlement last night after conciliator James F. Dewey of the U. S. Labor Department urged employes to return "in the interest of national defense."

It was reported that the company, which manufactures steam generating equipment, granted a small wage increase.

Express Mediators Named

President Roosevelt yesterday appointed Henry A. Millis, Dexter M. Keezer, and John P. Devaney to the emergency board which he created Wednesday in an effort to avert a threatened strike of 30,000 employes of the Railway Express Agency, Inc.

Mr. Roosevelt's action will have the result of preserving the status quo in the controversy for 60 days.

District Ends Year With Surplus Of $1,100,000

The District wound up the past fiscal year $1,100,000 to the good, it was reported yesterday by District Auditor Daniel J. Donovan.

This amount will be carried into the fiscal year of 1941 as a revenue credit to the general fund for that year. Maj. Donovan recommended to the Commissioners they retain the $1.75 rate on taxable real estate and tangible personal property for the present fiscal year. This, it was indicated, will be done today by the Commissioners. The auditor also estimated the city would have an $800,000 surplus when the books are closed for this year.

LATER SATURDAY CLOSING HOURS for night spots may be made legal at almost anytime. The powers-that-be at the Capitol and in the District government are in favor of 2 a. m. closing of bars on Saturdays and the abolition of the quaint regulation making it permissible to sell strong drink from midnight on Sunday until 2 a. m. on Monday. This means that Saturday night celebrations may flourish until 2 a. m., when bars will close until Monday at 8 a. m. or later. The proposed change will be welcomed terrifically both by night spot owners and all the customers who have to work for a living and are limited to Saturday eves for late celebrating.

If the new regulations go through as expected, there'll be new Manhattan-owned night clubs blossoming around town. A Washinton branch of Leon and Eddy's is prophesied and Sherman Billingsley, of the Stork Club, has been casting an eye over Washington locations for some time.

Big reason for this projected activity lies in the fact that Washington is in for a "preparedness boom." War or no war, America is going to get ready for trouble and that means loads of money pouring into town. The boys with the big expense accounts are headed this way.

FLAG WAVING. Matt Windsor, of the Anchor Room, boiling over with patriotic fervor, has written a new song called, "It's Great to Be an American." Matt knows. Because he's an American by choice, not by birth.

BOB CROSBY and his band from the Capitol Theater, will be among the star guests at the Rainbow Room's fifth anniversary party next Wednesday. Lots of other stage folks, too. Radioman Arthur Reilly will emcee. Washington's Jack Rollins will present rumba, tango and congo stepping and Hula dancing by Marie Lott and her group. The Rainbow chef is drawing blueprints for a five-story birthday cake. Do come up and cut yourself a piece.

REHEARSAL ROMPS on the Shoreham Terrace are regular field days. One of the cycling Shyrettos, while horsing around, nearly ran over Adman Norman Kal and Publicist Bill Mullett. He stopped in such a hurry that he broke two spokes out of his bike. And you should've seen waiters, musicians and the Shyrettos all going into an ad lib conga a la Talia . . . That reminds that Talia and St. Clair and Day stay over on the Terrace next week and Gautier's Steeplechase will return . . . Tonight is your last chance to view Peggy Townsend's style show on the Terrace.

JACK CONNERS
who "devils the drums" with Milt Herth Trio in the Neptune Room

"DON'T ASK A MOVIE STAR what tune she or he wants to hear," says Gene Bari, who's just brought his Palm Springs trio to the Mayfair. The smart thing for an orchestra leader to do, it seems, is to play a hit tune from said movie star's last show. The delicate touch, y'see. Thus Dorothy Lamour was all happified when Gene struck up "Yesterday" as she entered the door. Gene, who has played in Hollywood and Long Beach, Calif., says that Director Edmund Goulding and Peter Lorre like Viennese music in quantity and Paul Lukas always wants the tunes of his native Hungary.

COMPOSING POLITICAL DITTIES is the hobby of Arthur Herbert, band leader of the Starlight Roof. Right now he is toying with something he's thinking of calling "When'll You Do It, Wendell?" But he says he doesn't dare to sing these snippy songs unless he's sure of an all-Republican or all-Democrat audience.

MUSIC WITH A LIFT. Madrillon. The unpredictable grace-notes and lulling harmonies that the Trio Liroco's accordionist injects into "Begin the Beguine." Makes you think of a bird being charmed by a serpent.

Mayflower Lounge. "You're Lonely and I'm Lonely," one of the most enthralling of the "Louisiana Purchase" tunes. It's enriched singularly by Dick Koons' arrangement.

Lounge Riviera. "Tennessee Fish Fry," with Pete Macias and the boys going off the deep end in hoecake rhythm. Makes the customers feel like doing a break-down.

Lotus. Buddy Shaner's caroling of "Sierra Sue." It's almost as good as his best number which is still "Ol' Man River."

New Bavarian. Everybody's favorite tunes as played with a heigh-ho and a merry-o by Eddie Whitesel and Durward Bowersox. The boys have such good memories that they remember all the customer's pet songs.

Glen Echo. Paul Kain's special clarinet tricks that he's likely to inject into any dance number at any time. They sound like funny stories without words.

Hi-Hat. Any of those zingy vocals by Dick (alias Tito Rochero) of the Cavaliers. Here's a young fellow who really "gives."

Del Rio. "Address Unknown" as partly sung, partly recited by Jack Wells. If you're the kind of person who cries at the movies, it'll have you in tears.

abound in the Nightingale band. Don Lamond and Bob Lehman are attending Baltimore's Peabody Conservatory of Music. Mel Holober is a doctor of philosophy and Andy Andrusia is a grad of Ben Franklin University.

WEEK-END THOUGHTS. There's dancing tomorrow eve at O'Donnell's Farms. And the lawn is an ideal place for "sitting out" a few numbers if you're so inclined . . . The Harrington Tavern will be a fine place to cool off tomorrow afternoon after you leave the office. Or to enjoy a cocktail and a pop priced dinner after you've seen a show . . . There's always a big crowd at Hogate's for those seafood luncheons and dinners. But between the main dining room and the big first floor grill, you should be able to get a good table . . . Crab feasting is always in order at Dick's Grill.

FLASH! The Gay Nineties reopens this evening with Al Oddone's orchestra, a bright and nifty floor show and pretty favors. Strictly gala! Young Maestro Oddone is one of the top-flight swing men in this part of the country. He leads from the electric guitar and sings a streamlined song. To cash in on the Gay Nineties good times just head your car down the Mount Vernon Highway three miles below Alexandria.

Claims on Rumania Deferred by Stern Words From Hitler

By the Associated Press

Budapest, July 11.—The precarious peace of southeastern Europe, hanging by a thread since Russia's Bessarabian grab, seemed assured of at least temporary continuance tonight.

Hungary and Bulgaria again have postponed their territorial claims on Rumania, in deference to Germany's desires:

To maintain southeastern Europe on a full production basis for the Nazi war machine during the battle to conquer Britain.

To keep Soviet Russia from using Danubian confusion as an opening for another snatch of strategic territory on the Third Reich's "living space" frontier.

Hungary's Dream Must Wait

The sudden switch-about apparently came about the time confident Prime Minister Paul Teleky and his foreign minister, Count Istvan Csaky were traveling to Munich, expecting Germany and Italy wound indorse Hungary's dream of immediate acquisition of the Province of Transylvania, lost to Rumania in the World War.

Today the Hungarian ministers returned to Budapest, their claims on Rumania shoved into the background by stern words from Adolf Hitler.

Exactly what happened is not clear. But large numbers of German troops, tanks, airplanes and motorized equipment suddenly appeared in German Poland, Slovakia and on the Hungarian-German frontier.

Then Russian spokesmen in Turkey declared it was "erroneous" to believe Josef Stalin had any intention of pressing claims on Turkey.

In Istanbul the Turkish government denied general mobilization was planned, that Turkey had received any ultimatum from Russia, Germany or Italy, and that any change in government was contemplated.

British Tankers Guarded

Bucharest, July 11 (AP).—The pro-Nazi Rumanian navy threw its weight into the oil scales against Great Britain today.

Gunboats of King Carol's fleet mounted guard over 50 British tankers lying idle in Rumanian ports, to prevent them from sailing to more hospitable waters.

It was another move in the series of recent actions designed to forestall any British attempt to keep British-owned oil and other British property from falling into the hands of Hitler.

Last week numerous British oil men were ordered to leave Rumania, apparently as a precaution against possible attempt to wreck the British-owned wells. Later a decree was issued forbidding the unauthorized sale in foreign countries of shares in Rumanian enterprises, thus blocking a reported British plan to keep British wells out of Hitler's hands by transferring title to Moscow.

Now, apparently, it is going to be impossible for the British to withdraw even their tankers from the German-dominated Danube area.

Rumania's own worries over Hungarian and Bulgarian territorial demands meanwhile subsided, temporarily at least, as the result of Hitler's "keep-your-shirts-on" advice to impatient Budapest and Sofia.

Turkey Calls 17 Classes to Colors

Ankara, Turkey, July 11.—Seventeen classes of cavalry from age 22 to 38 will be called up Monday by military authorities in the Istanbul area, it was announced today. All Turkish soldiers who had been given sick leave will be recalled tomorrow.

Members of the people's government party were summoned today. A communique issued afterward said Prime Minister Reyfik Saydam made a long detailed declaration on the situation and political events of the past few days.

Although official circles deny talk of a Russian ultimatum, relations between the two countries appear to be crystalizing, especially with regard to the Russian desire for free passage of her warships through the Dardanelles.

The loss, it added, was reflected by "the appearance of numerous shortages" in England.

(The British, who lost 7,830,765 tons in the entire World War, have acknowledged losses in the present war which total nearly 1,000,000 tons.

(In the House of Commons today, R. S. Hudson, minister of agriculture, said Britain had maintained its milk supply, its cattle and sheep supplies, and had "both a reserve of meat on the hoof and a large additional store of cereals . . . for whatever emergency arises this winter."

(Nevertheless, he declared, the country is facing a crisis immeasurably more serious than in 1914 and food production in the next year must be increased lest millions go hungry.)

Dienst aus Deutschland also paid considerable attention to United States affairs.

Referring to President Roosevelt's defense message to Congress, it observed:

"The repelling tone of the Roosevelt declaration toward the authoritarian states isn't being overlooked."

Berlin, July 11.—President Roosevelt's message to Congress was received in Berlin "in the manner which has now become customary for American declarations." That is to say, both official quarters and the press take note of his statements but reserve all expressions of opinion regarding the arguments upon which he bases them.

Authoritative German quarters point out that the Wilhelmstrasse adheres to the "traditional viewpoint" that "each country has got to make its own decisions regarding national defense and third parties have no authority to state their opinion."

front government of France and its Socialist leaders, including former Premier Leon Blum, might be made the scapegoat for the French military and governmental debacle, the United Press reported.

[If such action develops, it was predicted, political foes of Blum, himself a Jew, may attempt to reduce drastically the Jewish influence in French literary, theatrical, motion picture and other professions.]

Meanwhile other former French leaders, including former Premier Edouard Daladier, were believed to be still in North Africa.

They had been prevented from returning to France, Vice Premier Laval told the Assembly yesterday, by the refusal of the German-French armistice committee at Wiesbaden to furnish them transportation.

The impression grew tonight among Frenchmen here that under the new governmental system, and especially with Weygand, one of the triumvirate behind Petain, a royalist sympathizer, France is closer to return of the monarchy than at any time since 1875.

Until the new constitution is drawn up and a new National Assembly created, Petain and his three "wise men" have the power to do almost what they please, without parliamentary check.

The 12 ministers who will surround Petain will have a position similar to the old "king's advisers."

Italians Claim Hits on Hood And Ark Royal

and kept them constantly under control, giving them no rest and subjecting them to intense, uninterrupted and very efficient bombings."

According to this bulletin, 300 planes participated in the various battles. These planes, it is said, flew from "bases in the Aegean Sea, Libya, Apulia, Albania, Sicily and Sardinia. In successive and powerful waves they came upon the enemy squadrons and, despite very intense antiaircraft fire, they hit repeatedly with large caliber bombs numerous naval units, upsetting the battle formations and obliging the enemy to make exhausting changes of route."

The air arm, it continues, thus smashed the enemy naval action and obliged it to "abandon our waters without reaching any of the objectives."

Gen. Pricolo said that information received from an "unimpeachable neutral source and from photographic documents" confirms the "serious damages" caused to the British ships south of Crete, as well as to the Hood and Ark Royal. It is assumed in foreign naval circles that the "neutral source" mentioned by Gen. Pricolo is Spain, since this particular action occurred at a comparatively short distance from that country. A British denial that the Hood and Ark Royal were damaged in the battle and that any losses were suffered by that British squadron is ignored in Rome.

The number of casualties suffered by the Italian air force since the beginning of the war up to June 30 was 249, it was announced. The number of dead was given as 71, missing 75, and wounded, 108.

Another communique discloses that the troopship Paganini, with 920 troops and a crew of 30 aboard, took fire on June 28 while heading from Bari to Durazzo, Albania. It is stated that 214 soldiers and six officers died.

Late in the evening an order of the day was issued by Premier Mussolini praising the Italian navy for having "victoriously sustained the first encounter with the British fleet in the Mediterranean."

"The British manoeuver attempted in the central Mediterranean has failed," he said, "and it has missed the strategic objectives at which it aimed."

The Hardys Ring Bell In One of Their Best

'Andy Hardy Meets Debutante' Adds New Elements of Strength to a Tried and True Formula on the Screen at Loew's Palace

"ANDY HARDY MEETS DEBUTANTE." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of a screen play by Annalee Whitmore and Thomas Seller, based on characters created by Aurania Rouverol, featuring Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland, with Lewis S. Stone, Fay Holden, Cecilia Parker, Ann Rutherford, Diana Lewis, Sara Haden, Addison Richards, Harry Tyler and others. Directed by George B. Seitz. At Loew's Palace Theater.

IT HAS BECOME almost a habit of press and public to proclaim each successive picture based on the domestic concerns of Judge Hardy and his household the best in the line. If "Andy Hardy Meets Debutante," opening this morning on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater, does not meet this spacious specification, it will do until the next one comes along. I can recall none among its eight predecessors more thoroughly entertaining.

BELL

While embodying all of the familiar ingredients indigenous to the series, "Andy Hardy Meets Debutante" gains both timeliness and substantial body from new factors that harmonize perfectly with the spirit of the Hardys' family life. As an essential part of the warp and woof of the play, Judge Hardy finds occasion to teach his son a much needed lesson in the true meaning of Americanism and his heritage from the founding fathers. It also has been found possible to humanize and debunk New York's fabulous debutante racket and make a charming figure of a seemingly incorrigible little snob.

The whole thing begins with Andy Hardy's imaginative boast to the associate editors of his school paper, in Carvel, that he and Daphne Fowler, Gotham's No. 1 deb, are "just like that." When one of those tricky legal cases necessitates Judge Hardy's presence in New York, he decides to take the family with him and Master Andrew finds himself on the spot with his classmates. As a bit of exquisite torture, they plan to use a faked picture of Andy and Daphne on the front cover of the next issue of the school journal. How a genuine likeness of the two appears there forms the crux of the major movement of the comedy.

Although Judge Hardy finally wins his case for the orphanage, Andy, in the meantime, has been losing valuable borrowed shirt studs, the girl with whom he is so infatuated and a tremendous amount of "face." If it hadn't been for old reliable Betsey Booth, a childhood pal, Andy would have been in a very elegant mess.

There has been no more amusing sequence in any Hardy picture than that in which Andy, his pockets bulging with a sum total of $8, barges into the swellest night spot in Manhattan, all rigged out in a rented dress suit, borrowed jewelry and an overstuffed ego, and consumes a $37.25 dinner—all to catch a glimpse of Daphne. That is the biggest laugh in the picture, but by no means the only one. Then, too, to lend the goings-on still further variety, it is made highly plausible that Betsey, in the delightful person of Judy Garland, should sing two songs in her best manner—which is as good a manner as there is. "Alone" and "I'm Nobody's Baby" are the numbers—one new, one old, both dandy the way Judy sings them.

There is no occasion at this day and date to go into any lavish examination of the performances offered by the principal members of the cast. Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland, of course, more or less run away with the picture, but after "Babes in Arms" that was to have been expected. Not quite such a foregone conclusion was the extremely competent acting performance contributed by the prodigious Miss Garland. The final love scene between her and Andy is a gem of adolescent awakening to the thrill of undying devotion.

Lewis Stone's Judge Hardy, needless to say, is again the perfect paterfamilias and Fay Holden, Cecilia Parker and Sara Haden perpetuate the excellence of their portrayals of the rest of the Hardys. Ann Rutherford and George Breakston continue effectively as Polly Benedict and "Beezy," upon whom Andy so adroitly turns the tables, and Addison Richards is the Mr. Benedict.

Particular interest will center in the role of Daphne Fowler, the deb of the title, since it is played by Diana Lewis, who, in private life, is the youthful wife of William Powell. Miss Lewis is a pert and evidently capable young actress, who fits well into the most important events in which she ever has been cast on the screen.

The supplementary features of the new Palace bill are not many, but they are well chosen. Foremost among them is "A Way in the Wilderness," having to do with a young scientist's heroic battle against pellagra in the face of bitter opposition to his theories—which in the end proved triumphant. "Jackpot" and a new issue of the "News of the Day" complete a program that should keep the ticket wickets busy for many days to come.

Teamed Again in New Hardy Hit

MICKEY ROONEY AND JUDY GARLAND appearing together for the first time since "Babes in Arms," as the juvenile stars of "Andy Hardy Meets a Debutante," opening this morning on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater. Joan Crawford, 'Susan and God' Return to Screen at Columbia

By Richard L. Coe

After what is delicately referred to as a "sensational" week at the Capitol, "Susan and God" continues its F street career this morning at the Columbia Theater.

As modern as next Easter's chapeaux and as unpredictable, Joan Crawford's Susan Trexel, the negligent mother who frittered at nonessentials almost too long, is a natural offspring of the well-clad lynx she played in "The Women." Susan comes back from an old-fashioned English summer, enthused over the thinly veiled Oxford Movement and determined to guide her friends onto the heavenly way.

But Susan reckoned without her own personal failings and it is on this premise that Rachel Crothers wrote her celebrated play. Anita Loos adapted it to the screen, with definite attention to the essential dramatic conflict in the leading character. The screen's Susan is a long role, but it is carefully evolved from early blindness to final redemption.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has filmed the comedy lavishly, with no efforts spared to convince one that these people are, indeed, of the Leisure Classes. Set on Long Island, the action takes place in two splendid homes and while Susan finds hers somewhat worn at the heels, she very quickly brings it up to date. Her first entrance aboard a sleek launch, her limitless supply of glitter garments, her fantastic pouting, all these things are indicative that Susan Trexel is the popular representative of Vanity Fair. Her companions are a decadent lot, assorted brunettes loving willing young men and frankly in need of some sort of healing. But they openly have no use for Susan's confessional brand.

Miss Crawford bravely gives up all pretense to youthful glamour as the mother of a 14-year-old daughter. She has rarely looked more sparkling as a result of this sacrifice and she exhibits a definite ability to make the character grow from a foolish woman into an understanding one.

Fredric March is that heavy drinker, husband Barrie, succeeding admirably in indicating that he took to drink after his wife took to her nebulous ways, a matter which has always been a compelling question in stage productions.

Rita Quigley is excellent as the shy daughter who blossoms out so beautifully under a knowing mother's tutelage. Ruth Hussey, John Carroll, Bruce Cabot, Rose Hobart, Nigel Bruce and Rita Hayworth have other leading roles and that commanding figure, Constance Collier, makes a brief appearance but an outstanding one, as the soul-conscious woman of quality. George Cukor directed.

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, July 11 (INS).—The voluble "Roosian," Gregory Ratoff, was more excited than usual when I met him at the races at Hollywood Park. He had just signed a contract with Paramount to produce and direct "Ballerina," by Lady Lenore Smith, which he owns. He waxed into a long, enthusiastic discourse on the story and Loretta Young, who will star as the ballet dancer. "It is a feminine 'Goodbye Mr. Chips,'" said Gregory, "and Loretta Young is a natural ballet dancer. I admit I was puzzled by that, but as a child she had taken dancing lessons and she is going to work hard on her dancing until November 12, when the picture goes into production."

LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Well, we'll bet our money on Loretta and Greg, too, and here's hoping they'll out-Chips "Mr. Chips." P. S.: Greg hasn't left his pal Zanuck. He just has permission to do this outside job.

Talked with Howard Hughes yesterday and he said he wouldn't say yes and he wouldn't say no that "The Outlaw," an original by Ben Hecht, is Howard Hawks' first picture for him. But my friend, H. Hughes, did say "How in heaven's name did you find out about it?" Well, I had to tell him that no good reporter tells the source of her information. Anyway, you can put it down in your book that the first Hughes-Hawk movie will be "The Outlaw," a Western yarn with a novel idea.

Mary Pickford has been named chairman of the women's committee on Red Cross activities. She held her first meeting Tuesday afternoon at the Beverly Wilshire and a plan to hold a fiesta August 3, at Santa Anita race track, will be submitted to the men's committee. One thing that is very gratifying is the manner in which all the different factions are working for a common cause. Mary entertained Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks, sr., the former Lady Ashley, Mrs. Howard Dietz, Constance Bennett and a few others at a luncheon preceding the meeting. The Fairbankses were all there strong and pretty Mary Lee, Doug, jr.'s wife, leaned over and whispered to me, "Isn't Mary Pickford cute?" Of course, like all meetings, there was some chaos with too many of the girls talking at once. Well, that will be smoothed out for Mary will have to take a gavel and hit them over the head if they don't wait for their turn to talk.

A line or two: The two elephants, Queenie and Sally, that you have seen in practically every movie in which elephants appear, were burned to death at Goebel's Lion Farm. They were owend by Frank Whitbeck, who was disconsolate at the loss of his pets, for they followed him around and were as gentle as kittens. . . . Will Frank Nugent, former New York Times critic, who panned everything in the movies, turn out to be a genius? He's working at Twentieth Century-Fox as a writer and he'll have to be a genius to merit a good word for himself, by himself. Funny how these lads who despise movies are never loath to accept a salary. . . . Sam Goldwyn breaks forth in the Saturday Evening Post issue of July 13 in an article against the double-feature bills in which he says, "If Hollywood had not been incredibly stupid the double-bill would have died of exposure and malnutrition." Mr. Goldwyn says, "as it is, Hollywood itself is going to die if it doesn't come to its senses first." My, my, Sam, them is strong words! . . . Mae West is seriously considering doing a tour of "Du Barry Was a Lady," playing the Ethel Merman role. . . . Helen Gahagan has bought the rights to a play called "Wind in the Sails," which she is going to produce and open here, taking it on tour later.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: 'Tis a 6-pound girl for Anne Shirley and John Payne. She will be christened Julie Anne; Olivia de Havilland and Jimmie Stewart had the reporters working overtime Tuesday. They chartered a plane and flew to Coronado for luncheon. Everyone was sure it was a Mexican elopement; Alan Crosland, jr., son of the late director, now in the cutting department at Warners, and Eileen Dougherty will wed August 15; Mary Beth Hughes and Tex Harris, former U. C. L. A. star, are getting serious; Gene Towne's divorce becomes final July 15 and talk is that he will wed Frances Glendenning.

Eddie Albert's current heart is Jean Holden, nonprofessional; the Franklin Roosevelt, jrs., spent this morning watching Doug, jr., work at Columbia Studio; is it as serious between Chester Morris and Lillian Kenton as it looks? Bruce Cabot beaued Geraldine Spreckles to the Pirates Den last night.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, July 11.

I don't believe Sir Cedric Hardwicke, who does such a swell job in "Tom Brown's School Days," can be one of those Englishmen you hear about who dress for diner in the jungle. He's so informal he has a sign on his dressing room door reading "Sir Oomph," and has some of the most untraditional ideas. For instance, he thinks that if Shakespeare were alive today, he would be a movie gag man or a set designer, instead of a playwright.

HOPPER

And speaking of the old-time actors that your fathers and mothers used to enjoy, like Irving and Booth, "Sir Oomph" said, "They wouldn't even get by as actors today, because they depended on tremendous personal magnetism for their success and loved playing fantastic characters. Picture audiences today want to see the lives of average people like themselves on the screen. Hamlets and Romeos may be great art, but it's the Gables, Robinsons, and Laughtons that capture the great American public."

Keye Luke, famous as Warner Oland's son in the Charlie Chan series, has pencil sketches of Loretta Young, Connie Bennett, and Paul Muni, which he did on the sets while working with the stars, and they're among the best I've ever seen . . . Vic McLaglen's friends are climbing all over each other trying to get invited to his dude ranch in Fresno. It has a huge barbecue pit, swimming pool, guest houses, horses, scores of games and in general is a great place to week-end.

Karen de Wolf, who wrote "Blondie Goes to the Country," found rural life so fascinating while writing about it that she ended up by buying a farm in Los Gatos. Karen, by the way, used to do bit parts for Lowell Sherman, but she gave him so many funny lines for his pictures, that he said to her one day, "Why don't you write?" "I do," said Karen, and the next day brought him a sheaf of scripts that would have chocked his pet goat, if he'd had one.

Well, anyone who could write that many must be good. Gave her a job, and her name's been on 33 screen plays. And she's never acted again—at least on the screen.

It might surprise you to know that, according to box office receipts, the outstanding vocal star in the concert world in 1939 was Nelson Eddy and the top instrumental star, Rachmaninoff . . . A show girl with one of Hollywood's night clubs remarked to Al Rogell that, "I used to like Greg Bautzer, but Carl Laemmle jr., has a bigger home and swimming pool."

When Charlie Ruggles returned to his beach house at San Clemente the other day, there was a crowd of excited people in front of it looking off to sea where an object was bobbing up and down. Charlie rushed into the house, got field glasses, couldn't tell anything from them, so hopped into his outboard motor boat, amidst cries of warning, and got out to it, and guess what it was? A rubber inflated sea monster that had been used at one of the studios, which had slipped its mooring.

Musicians in Hollywood studios will have Oscars all their own next year. The National Federation of Music Clubs has appointed previewing committees to pass on music in pictures, and they'll present awards at their convention in Los Angeles next summer.

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, July 11.

ARRIVAL: Henri Bernstein, the noted French playwright who just arrived here, didn't leave France until he had asked Laval's advice. Laval, now vice premier of Fascist France, advised him to go. . . . Bernstein plans to go to Canada, then reenter America under the quota, and become a citizen. . . . At the Cafe Pierre Tuesday night, he revealed this story: When the local customs officials inspected his passport, they noticed that it expires August 16. He was told that the expiration date is too near, and that before he may be allowed to enter, the passport must be valid for a longer period. . . . Bernstein induced an official to accompany him to the French consulate, where his passport was extended for two years. "But how did you accomplish this?" the customs inspector asked Bernstein. . . . "In my country," the playwright explained, "I was a well-known man."

ENTERPRISE: Lillian Hellman was assigned by PM to cover the Republican Convention. After Willkie was nominated, Miss Hellman went to his headquarters, to meet and interview him. . . . She waited her turn, and finally was introduced to the Republican candidate. "Er . . . how do you do," was the only line the author of "The Little Foxes" and Children's Hour" could summon to mind. "Er . . . are you going to be here all week?"

PROGRAM: In the current newsreels, Willkie announces that he does not plan to install any brain trust in the White House. Less than a year ago Willkie was surrounded by a brain trust gathered at a dinner given at the 21 Club. At that time he presented to them in detail his program covering every phase of the country's economic life, excepting agriculture . . . Those dinner guests included Rex Tugwell, who told Willkie about agriculture; SEC Commissioner Leon Henderson, whose specialty is economics; John L. Lewis, who orated about labor; Morris L. Ernst, who covered civil liberties; Joe McGoldrick, N. Y. C.'s Comptroller, who discussed Government expenditures, and John Gunther, the foreign affairs expert . . . But that brain trust wasn't co-operative. They fought till 10 p. m., and then called it off to dine.

MYSTERY: Jose Ferrer and his wife, Uta Hagen, live near a golf course in the Ossining vicinity . . . A few night ago their sleep was disturbed by flashlights gleaming from cars parked nearby—cars whose mysterious occupants spread out stealthily into all directions. Ferrer phoned the police, who finally arrived and investigated the matter. . . . "It's all right, go back to sleep," the police finally assured Ferrer. . . . "But those men? Who are they?" asked Ferrer. . . . "Don't worry," was the answer. "They're just laborers sprinkling the green. They have to work at this hour because they're non-union."

NOISE: Noel Coward told his story when he visited Washington: During a Nazi air-raid over a place where Bea Lillie was entertaining, the civilians scrambled to bomb-proof shelters. . . . One youngster made himself extremely objectionable when he screamed, shoved, and stepped on the others' toes. . . . "For heaven's sake, be quiet," Miss Lillie told him. "I can't even hear the bombs."

CHATTER: Paulette Goddard, who arrived on the Stratosphere plane Tuesday afternoon, took the next plane back to Hollywood—because of a sudden call . . . Jack Kennedy, son of the American Ambassador to Britain, has enrolled at Yale law school . . . Friends of Leon Blum insist that despite the published reports, the former Premier still is in France . . . The Fairway Yacht Club is having tough sailing—and will become front-page material shortly. . . . When the defense council decided that certain raw materials needed from French Indo-China might not be obtainable soon, they cabled—and within 24 hours that material was on Maritime Commission boats. "You broke 250 regulations," was the naval commandant's message, "and Gold bless you for it."

SAFETY: Lem Schofield, newly assigned to immigration duties, has evolved this idea which soon will be announced and made effective: When all aliens in this country appear for finger-printing, pursuant to the new regulations, their feeling that the Government is discriminating against them will be assuaged by a pamphlet delivered to each one. That pamphlet, to be written by one of America's most famous writers, will express the Government's anxiety for their care, and explain that this step is being taken only to safeguard for them and all Americans—citizens of our immigrant country—the democracy which will be their protection.

DEFEAT: When Columbia Films announced its new picture, "He Stayed for Breakfast," the N. Y. Institute of Dietetics volunteered to concoct a menu for a perfect breakfast, to be used in that movie. . . . This menu was sent to Columbia's commissary, which prepared it for use in the breakfast scene. It was discarded, however, and other foods substituted. For while the prunes and bacon strips listed on that perfect-menu contained the proper amount of calories, they were useless before the camera. They were unphotogenic, Columbia decided, because prunes and bacon lack oomph.

Trick Insurance Policies Keep Lloyds' Hollywood Agents Busy

Hollywood, July 11.—Every once in a while you read in the papers about Miss Gloria Luscious, the movie star, insuring her lips with Lloyds of London for $50,000 to keep them kissable. Or you read about Hector He-man insuring himself for $100,000 against losing his biceps. Almost every week some movie notable buys himself some kind of outlandish insurance policy.

So we dropped out to the offices of Landi-Kennell, Inc., today to find out about this insurance business. What we discovered was enough to make a press agent stick his head in the sand.

Anthony Landi and Rolan Kennell are representatives of Lloyds, specializing in the Hollywood field. They insure almost anybody against almost anything, including sunburn, razor scratches and boils, and much of their business comes from movie notables who like to see their names in print.

They've written many a trick policy in their day, some so outlandish they had to cable London for instructions.

Never Paid a Loss

"And to date we have not had to pay a single loss on any of this business," Landi said. "Most of it would seem to be written chiefly for publicity purposes. While we don't seek it, the premiums, so far, have been net profit, and we can't kick about that."

Consider Miss Patricia Morison. Paramount Studios wanted to advertise the fact that she was appearing in a movie called "Untamed." The studios figured that an untamed woman might conceivably find a husband. So they applied to Lloyds for what they called "love insurance."

This made a newspaper item. It also caused the underwriters considerable work. They finally came up with a policy, which would pay Miss Morison $1,000 a week, up to $26,000, should she "be prevented from pursuing her profession, owing to matrimonial entanglements." The studio paid the premium for a brief period, but if Miss Morison really wants the insurance to continue she must plunk down another $3,000.

Insured His Accent

Then there's George Zucco, the British character actor. He obtained insurance against losing his English accent. Greta Nissen insured her back against injury, principally against sunburn.

"That was a rather interesting one," Kennel said. "We had to get a physician to describe her back, for purposes of the policy."

Their latest customer is Nelson Eddy. He has applied for insurance against losing his voice, and also against marring, scratching or disfiguring his face.

"But that policy is not silly," Landi said. "It's like a regular accident policy, in which a mechanic gets $20,000 if he loses his hands. He makes his living with them. Eddy is in the same position. He makes his living with his voice and face. Under the policy we have drawn up, we'd pay off if his razor slipped some morning and made it impossible to work before the cameras. Even if he got a boil which laid him off, we'd pay."

Some Not Even Considered

Some of the insurance asked by the celebrities is so outlandish that Lloyds doesn't even consider it. Kennell said the office here turns down four out of every five applications.

Main business of the agency is cast insurance, wherein a movie producer insures himself against loss during production of a picture because of illness among his actors. This is legitimate business and every once in a while Lloyds get socked hard.

When Margaret Sullavan broke her arm during shooting of a film, the producers collected several hundred thousands dollars. Sam Goldwyn also collected when Miriam Hopkins contracted influenza while she was working for him.

Birthday Party Is Tops—but

Rita Johnson had a little birthday party that wasn't backed up by the calendar. She was called to "The Golden Fleecing" set, where she plays the lead opposite Lew Ayres, on the pretext of an extra scene. She arrived—puzzled because her day off had been interrupted—to be greeted by Ayres, Virginia Grey, Director Leslie Fenton, Lloyd Nolan and others, singing "Happy Birthday to You." There was a big birthday cake, inscribed "Happy Birthday to Rita," and a white enameled director's chair with her name inscribed on the back in a replica of her signature. General congratulations followed merriment between scenes on the set.

The surprised Miss Johnson stammered her thanks for the party.

Later, she confided that somehow a mistake had been made. "I was too embarrassed to say anything," she said, "and I'm awfully grateful. But my birthday is two months away."

How the mistake in dates was made remained a mystery.

That Bandit in "Torrid Zone" Explains How to Learn to Act

George Tobias, Now Much Sought in Hollywood, Spent Twenty Years Roaming World, Starving, Before Experience Began to Pay Him Off

By Frederick C. Othman

United Press Hollywood Correspondent.

Hollywood, July 11 (U.P.).—The movies' newest and boomingest character actor is George Tobias.

He stepped before a camera for the first time ten months ago. Since then he has appeared in 11 movies and has stolen some of them from the advertised stars. He's got offers from picture makers all over town, the radio is seeking his services, Warners have him under a 7-year contract, and it looks as if you'll be seeing a lot of George. So maybe you'd like to know something about him.

He's been an actor for 20 years. Sometimes he's earned tremendous salaries.

"And once I was down so low that I had no place to sleep," he said. "It was winter, in New York, and I just walked all night. I happened to have a bottle of gin with me and I'd suck on that when I thought I was about to give out."

He played in "They Knew What They Wanted" for two years. One winter he worked as a snow shoveler for the New York Street Cleaning Department.

His First Real Hit

He made his first real hit in "What Price Glory?"

"That ran two years, too," he said, "and I thought tha at last I'd arrived. But when that play closed I simply couldn" get another acting job anywhere. I was out of work for two solid years after that, except for laying cobble stones, stoking a freighter, sweeping out street car barns and things like that."

Then there was the time he played in the hit show, "The Road to Rome." When its New York run ended, the company was given a four week vacation before reassembling for a West Coast appearance.

"So I put $150 in a belt around my waist," Tobias said, "put on some old clothes, and started walking north. After a couple of days I had black whiskers and I looked like any other hobo. I was just as much a 'bo as any I met on the road. So I worked my way into Albany. Then I shaved and caught a train for the West.

Knows From Experience

All this about Tobias' extracurricular experiences is by way of explaining his theory that an actor can assimilate character parts by actually associating with the real characters. One of his first screen roles was that of a carnival barker. He barked in "Maisie." He was a good barker, too. He once earned his living extolling the wonders of a Wild West show.

In "They Drive By Night," which still is to be released, he was a Greek produce buyer. That was easy, too. Tobias used to work in a produce market between stage calls.

His best picture role, perhaps, was that of the easy-going Latin-American bandit in "Torrid Zone." It would be fine if we could say that he used to be a bandit, too. He never was that, but he was a bandit's friend and he knew how lawbreakers acted south of the Rio Grande.

"Anyhow, I've always figured that an actor has got to live the parts he plays, if he's really going to make it seem real," Tobias said. "And I've lived a lot of parts. It wasn't any fun during the living, I probably wouldn't have done it, if I hadn't been in danger of starving. But as I look back now, I'm glad I lived exactly as I did.

Spent 20 Years Learning

"It's got so now that there are few character roles with which I don't have at least a speaking acquaintance. It took me 20 years to get that acquaintance, but I guess the time was well spent. I'm the kind of gent who learns slowly."

Tobias, a product of New York's East Side and a boyhood neighbor of Paul Muni and many another Hollywood celebrity, is a bachelor. He lives in the San Fernando Valley and spends his time working. He has no spare time. He was acting in two movies at once until a few days ago. In "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" he played three roles. He's a busy citizen. He does wish he had a little more leisure. He'd like to ride his horse.

P.S. He learned horsemanship in a Brooklyn stable. He used to give riding lessons in Central Park between the matinee and evening performances, and he could take over a Wild West Injun movie tomorrow, if the head man said the word.

Carle Cast

Richard Carle, stage comedian of "Mary's Lamb," "The Tenderfoot" and many other Broadway hits, has been cast in "The Golden Fleecing" with Lew Ayres and Rita Johnson.

First Aid Is Offered Loew Contestants

Palace Guessing Game Made Easier by House Statistics

The contest now being conducted by Loew's Palace Theater, asking movie patrons to estimate the number of people who'll see "Andy Hardy Meets Debutante," has started the Loew phones ringing.

Washingtonians principally want to know (a) the Palace's seating capacity and (b) how many times daily is the feature shown. To save the wear and tear on the Loew switchboard, the management announces that the theater has 2,400 seats and that normally a feature is shown five times during each day, but that "Andy Hardy Meets Debutante" will be shown six times daily.

As an aid in reaching an estimate it is pointed out that the entire seating capacity is not consumed at each show. But the management expects that it will cater to one of the year's biggest patronages during the showing of this newest Hardy hilarity, starting today.

Two round trips, with all expenses paid, to New York and the World's Fair are offered to the man and woman coming closest to guessing the week's attendance. All entries must be left at the Ross Co., jewelers, located across the street from the Capitol Theater. Entries must be in by next Friday morning.

Advertising Pays

Want ads brought Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, 14 of the 1919 automobiles used in "Boom Town." The studio was faced with the problem of getting a fleet of cars representing models of that year, which is the time of the story. Most of the autos had to be in good enough condition to look newly bought. All of them had to be in running shape.

Al Jennings To Advise on O. Henry Film

O. Henry's closest friend, the man who knew him best and upon one occasion saved his life, has been signed by Paramount to act as technical advisor and writer on "The Life of O. Henry," to be produced by Boris Morros and Robert Williamson and to star Douglas Fairbanks, jr.

The man is Al Jennings, 77-year-old gentleman farmer of California, a former train-robber and Western bad-man who was a fugitive from justice in Central America with O. Henry, and later served time in the Ohio State Penitentiary when the famous author was an inmate there. Many of the stories of O. Henry were based upon their experiences together, and upon material supplied by Jennings.

The occasion upon which Jennings saved O. Henry's life is well known to the author's fans.

O. Henry, then known under his real name, William Sidney Porter, had picked up a lady's handkerchief in a Central American bar, at which point the lady's jealous swain stepped into the breach with a stiletto. The hot-blooded lover was all prepared to carve O. Henry's throat when Jennings stepped in and calmly shot his head off.

Later, when the author had been sentenced to prison, it was Jennings, then a trusty in the penitentiary postoffice, who aided him in sending his first stories to the magazines with stamps from the mail room. Many students of O. Henry believe that his first stories were written in New Orleans, but Jennings discloses that the stories were authored in prison and sent to a relative in New Orleans who forwarded them to the magazines.

Joan Godmother

Two days after Joan Crawford became a foster-mother by adopting a 3-month-old girl, she became a godmother. Betty Jaynes and Douglas McPhail christened their daughter Joan, with Miss Crawford as sponsor.

Dancing Picture

Since Lana Turner danced in her last two pictures, her fans want her to promise them at least one dancing picture a year. News of her dramatic role in "We Who Are Young," has elicited letters from all over the country begging the star: "Not to forget your dancing, Lana, although we do want you to play dramatic roles, too, but give us one dancing picture a year."

Broadened Hatch Act

The bill extending the provisions of the Hatch "clean politics" act to State and local government employes paid in part from Federal funds has passed the House and is now in the hands of the President.

The fight against the measure was bitter and prolonged. And the unprecedented action of the House Judiciary Committee in voting last May by secret ballot to table the measure threatened to kill any chance of passage. But the indignation aroused by this proceeding forced the committee to reconsider its vote and to send the measure to the floor. There with the aid of 89 Democrats, the Republicans swept the bill to passage by a 2-to-1 vote, despite the opposition of a majority of the Democrats.

However, chief honors go to two Democrats, Senator Hatch and Representative Dempsey, both from New Mexico, for the success of the fight to prevent Federal funds from being used to finance State and local political machines. With Federal employes already forbidden to take active part in political campaigns and protected against political levies upon their salaries, extension of similar protective measures to public employes whose salaries are indirectly paid by the Federal Government was logical and ultimately inevitable.

That public opinion has forced Congress to act just before a Presidential election campaign gets under way is a most gratifying demonstration of democracy at work.

Eire's Eleventh Hour

The most tragic consequences to Ireland and England, and ultimately perhaps very serious consequences to ourselves, may follow from the persistent refusal of Premier De Valera and Lord Craigavon to agree on any common scheme of defense against their common mortal peril. Thus it may very well prove that the one person in the world capable of solving the long vexed Ulster question is Herr Hitler himself.

The British government is now said to have abandoned in despair all its efforts to achieve some understanding between Dublin and Belfast. Upon precisely what ostensible political obstacle these efforts foundered is not clear and probably not important. There have been reports that the Craigavon government vetoed any proposals to incorporate the six disputed countries within the Republic of Eire in return for permitting English regiments to reenter southern Ireland. There are other reports that the De Valera government stubbornly insisted that it must preserve its neutrality until the actual moment of invasion.

Whatever the explanation, it is wholly impfobable that Mr. De Valera and his ministers believe that their neutrality will count for anything if Hitler and his strategists should decide to attempt an invasion of Ireland. In an interview broadcast from Dublin last week Mr. Aiken, the minister for defense coordination, not only bluntly acknowledged the imminence of invasion, but declared that if and when Eire is attacked by the forces of "one belligerent power" she will invoke the aid of the "other belligerent." From this promise the British, who have no intention of complicating their difficulties by invading Ireland themselves, must take what comfort they may.

But there is general testimony by recent visitors to Ireland that the intense alarm of the government is not even yet shared by the people. This strange complacency, no doubt, accounts for the sluggish response to the defense recruiting drive.

Perhaps it also explains why Eire, Northern Ireland and Britain have been unable to arrive at any better modus vivendi on the question of common defense. At the present writing, Ireland remains one of the few countries in which public sentiment has something to do with determining policy.

But even if events should prove the optimistic intuition of the people to be wiser than the very well reasoned fears of their ministers—if, say, the Germans should deem it more feasible to strike England on the west from Cornwall and Wales—Ireland would not be fully divorced from the fate of her neighbor. With the Nazis in control of the St. Georges Channel and the Irish Sea Ireland's economic lifeline would be severed. For if England is now vitally dependent on Irish foodstuffs, Ireland is not less dependent on her English market.

A Cycle In France

In France this week the cycle of parliamentary history ushered in by the revolution of 1789 has come to an abrupt end.

On Wednesday the Chamber and Senate of the French Parliament, acting jointly and for the last time as a National Assembly, voted the Third Republic and the constitution of 1875 out of existence. France is to be given a new constitution, which will have to be approved by a national plebiscite. But whatever the character of the new organic law the chances are that it will not be democratic. It will probably give to France a system of government imitative of those which prevail in Germany, Italy and Spain.

What is happening in France today, therefore, is in a very real sense a counter-revolution. Nor is it merely the Third Republic which is being overthrown. Some of the principles for which Frenchmen have fought and died unswervingly since 1789 are now to be cast into the limbo of discarded ideals and beliefs. But it does not follow that the French constitution makers of 1940 will build more solidly than did their predecessors.

France has had many constitutions during the last century and a half. There was the constitution of 1792 with its Declaration of the Rights of Man. It lasted two years. There was the constitution of 1795, which established the Directory, and that of 1800 which created the Consulate.

There was the Code Napoleon under which France was ruled during the First Empire. There was the monarchist constitution, representing concessions which the frightened Bourbons of the Restoration felt it advisable to make to the liberty-loving spirit of the French. That constitution disappeared in the welter of the revolution of 1830 and, under Louis Philippe, France received a new charter which lasted until 1848.

The constitution of 1875, establishing the Third Republic, was, in a sense, no constitution at all. It was not a carefully worked out framework of government but only a body of fundamental laws approved in piecemeal fashion. Yet of all the many regimes which France has had since 1789 the Third Republic enjoyed the longest life. This is a fact to remember now that there are few to do it reverence.

The constitution of 1875 was a compromise arrangement, looking two ways at once. It was largely the work of monarchists who feared popular rule and, therefore, wanted a strong executive and a Senate elected indirectly. But after the presidency of Marshal MacMahon the government came increasingly under the control of republicans who, above everything, feared the "man on horseback." Thus the president of the republic was reduced to the status of ornamental figurehead with extremely limited powers.

Yet in transferring power from the executive to the legislative branch of the government the constitution of 1875, as it came to be operated, created a series of endless difficulties. While Parliament was practically all-powerful it was forever divided by factionalism. In consequence, the men entrusted with the task of ruling were never permittd to rule for long. The average length of life of a French cabinet was, in the period between 1875 and 1940, well under a year.

However, when all is said in criticism of the constitution of 1875, it would still be unfair to place on it the sole blame for the disaster which overtook France last month. Even the best constitution will not work if there is a constant disposition to obstruct.

Born in compromise, the French system of government needed the continuous exercise of the spirit of mutual accommodation to make it run. Unfortunately, recent years have witnessed a steady widening of social and political cleavages in France. And this development inhibited effective action for national self-preservation. The result, when crisis could no longer be averted, was disaster.

Utilizing Trustees

The board of trustees of American University, it appears, will not necessarily make an immediate appointment to fill the place of Dr. Joseph M. Gray, whose resignation as chancellor of the institution was accepted this week. On the contrary, the board is itself prepared to operate the university temporarily, through an administrative committee, while seeking a new president with stature for this responsible position.

Such an undertaking by the board would be the more natural because of its intention to carry through a comprehensive reorganization of American University. Under Dr. Gray's administration the university expanded rapidly both in the size of the student body and in the scope of undergraduate and graduate activities. But it is evidently necessary to consolidate the gains which have been made and the change of executive officer affords a good opportunity to do so.

There is another advantage, of general rather than local interest, in the decision of the board of trustees to assume temporary responsibility for the actual administration of the university. The trustees of educational, as of other, institutions too often regard these positions as having a purely honorary character. Sometimes they neither know enough, nor care enough, about the problems of operation to fulfill the very real responsibilities which the word trustee implies. The result, even when a wholly responsible executive officer is at the helm, is unsatisfactory. It is hard to get spirit into any institution where trustees are perfunctory in their duty.

If a committee of the board actually operates American University for a period, even a brief period, the result will be to educate the trustees as well as the students. The board will in a few weeks learn more of the problems of the institution than the president could ever convey to them at second hand. And the result of a better informed and professionally interested board will inevitably be a better university.

It might be a good idea if the plan in prospect for American University were tried ever so often at other institutions. The somnolent attitude of many trustees does little credit to their important function. And many a backseat driver becomes better company after he has taken a spell at the wheel himself.

The Balkan Picture

In the fortnight that has elapsed since Russia's uncontested entry into Bessarabia and Northern Bukovina some of the fears stirred up by that event have tended to subside. Rumania has been spared further mutilation; a Russian thrust in the direction of the Dardanelles has not taken place and war has been kept out of the Balkans.

For the time being the three powers in a position to determine the fate of southeastern Europe appear to be willing to sit on the lid. But there is no certainty whether, or for how long, they will continue to do so.

These three powers are, of course, Russia, Germany and Italy. From the long-range point of view their respective interests in the Balkans may prove irreconcilable and impossible of peaceful adjustment. For the moment, however, they are manifesting a readiness to let sleeping dogs lie. That is particularly true of Germany and Italy. With Great Britain unconquered they are anxious to keep sparks away from the Balkan powder barrel.

It is for this reason, no doubt, that Germany and Italy have refused to lend their support to Hungary's demands for immediate satisfaction of her claims against Rumania. The latter country accepted the Russian annexation of Bessarabia and Northern Bukovina. But a Magyar attempt to seize Transylvania by force of arms would have a different sequel unless, of course, Hungary's claims have the military backing of the Axis powers. This does not appear to be likely at the present time.

In the meantime King Carol is turning somersaults to show his readiness to cooperate with the Third Reich and Russia appears to be content with the territorial gains made at Rumania's expense. It is even rumored that rather than proceed further in the Balkans the next Soviet move will be in the direction of the Persian Gulf.

There is no confirmation of this. But should the Red bear revive old czarist dreams regarding Persia the Axis powers would be very much relieved. For the more Russia gets tangled up elsewhere than in the Balkans the better they will feel.

Ping Pong Propaganda

That sprightly Communist paper, the Daily Worker, is publishing an instructive and inspiring series on table tennis. Readers are told they "might as well learn to play right, so get started—and it's a lot more fun when you know how."

This is a sound attitude toward the ancient and honorable game of ping pong, or any other. The series opens with a discussion of the orthodox grip, and proceeds through spin, stroke, chop, flick, overhand kill and footwork in the serious spirit of pure sport. There is no indication, in the elementary stages of the course, that table tennis means anything more to the agile proletarian than to the bungling bourgeois.

It is not until late in the second article that the revolutionary note is sounded. "Tactics in table tennis," say the writers, are similar to tactics in the class struggle. They are flexible, and adjusted to meet new situations." Finally there is a symbolic word on what happens to novices who enter tournaments with a defeatist attitude. "They become disgusted with their poor exhibition and slink away, never to return."

With these statements the importance of table tennis to the readers of the Daily Worker becomes more clear. The French Revolution began on a tennis court. Shall the revolution of the Left be permitted to expire on a ping pong table?

Not if the Worker can prevent such a calamity.

For Understanding

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In contrast with the many individuals and organizations writing and working for peace, this writer has been advocating resort to understanding, which must result in peaceful settlements, not only between nations, but also between ideologies—political, cultural or religious. While this last one is by far of the greatest importance because it is an underlying factor for either unity or enmity, it is the one most ignored because really it has, as the more profound subject, challenged the abilities of statesmen in all ages to tackle it. Nevertheless, the race has now come face to face with this same underlying issue, and when Leader Hitler declared sometime ago that the German nation was the first, in his day, to take this factor into account, he gave a direct hint as to the means of solving a world problem, and should not have been ignored.

If we are consistent with our claim of belief in the Bible, and, therefore, believe that God actually confused the languages of the builders of the Tower of Babel, in order to stop their childish but stubborn will to reach heaven, can we not see that it is not a person, but a hitherto not understood law that pits nation against nation, that they may stop and start on the right road—respect the rights of the other fellow, as well as seek our own, as the goal of civilization? P. C.

"Back-Stabbing"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Several days ago the papers were full of back-stabbing. Is that harsh term out, for the duration of the war? England and France declared war on Germany knowing full well that Italy was a partner of Germany. When Italy came into the war on her partner's side, she was a "back-stabber." Now that France has been crushed (as officials of the French government say, by England's failure to send her troops), and while she is face down on the ground, England stabs her ally in the back. Italy at least struck when her adversary was on his feet. But now the papers and officials are silent.

The French foreign minister says Mr. Churchill is guilty of an act of aggression which is without precedent in the history of the world. England boasted of her wonderful withdrawal of troops from Flanders. She took home four-fifths of them but she did not tell us that she only had 14,000 troops fighting rear guard actions, while the French had 200,000 troops protecting them in the withdrawal, over half of whom were destroyed. OBSERVER.

Road To War

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If you were minister of propaganda, how would you get people into war? First, you would build up hate, then fear, then hysterical patriotism. Are we on the road to war? Haven't we taken these steps? Already besides "all material aid," we hear voices that cry for "an immediate declaration of war" and others that say: "What good is it to send guns and tanks and airplanes and ammunition, unless we send men to man them?"

If Hitler wins, how can he police all Europe, keep his eye on Stalin, keep England and France suppressed, and still attack America across 3,000 miles of sea? Especially when he is losing thousands of men in this war.

If Hitler wins, we shall probably be compelled to make much-needed changes in our economic system; to build up our domestic consumption to replace our foreign trade, but how could his victory affect our civil liberties—right of free speech, free religion, free assembly and the secret ballot?

For ten years all America has agreed that no good came out of our intervention in the last war—only the loss of many lives, accumulation of great debts, disease, the great depression and Hitler instead of the Kaiser. Now we are steadily slipping into war again! LEE C. BELL.

Washington, July 4.

The Antilynching Bill

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Please permit me to break a rule of many years and write a few words commending you for your timely editorial in today's Post on the antilynching bill and the Ku Klux Klan, particularly the concluding paragraph that such legislation is clearly unconstitutional and an invasion of States' rights. In this I heartily concur. Also I say that those who have advocated this unwise and uncalled-for legislation are actuated largely by political motives.

It was my good fortune or misfortune to be a newspaper editor and publisher in a Southern State during the height of the Ku Klux Klan. I opposed its program as sincerely as I attacked and condemned every lynching in my State, it matters not the crime that ocassioned this outbreak of lawlessness—and it should not be lost sight of that practically every lynching in the South is connected with some horrible crime, but this does not excuse the taking of the law into the hands of individuals. In my opinion the Ku Klux Klan and lynchings are extremely un-American, but the attempt to arouse racial and sectional prejudices to pass this legislation is equally un-American. As a State official having much to do with law enforcement I did all within my power to prevent lynchings and punish the murderers who participated therein, but such punishment, unless the perpetrators engage in interstate commerce, is a State and not a Federal responsibility.

But to me the most interesting part of your editorial is the query as to what is a lynching. In my opinion it is not merely a mob taking a prisoner from law-enforcement officers but it is any taking of the law enforcement out of the hands of the courts and legally constituted law-enforcement officers and meting out a so-called "justice" somewhat along the line of the vigilantes of the early West.

Perhaps it is of interest to consider the origin of "lynch law" and I turn to no less an authority than Prof. Wigmore of Northwestern University and quote from page 706, "Panorama of the World's Legal Systems":

"In the early 1400's, James Lynch was mayor and judge in Galway, in the north, where the English were in control. Lynch's hot-blooded son was jealous of the attentions paid to a certain maiden by a young Spanish visitor, a guest in his father's house. The son foully killed the guest. Lynch, the father, held court upon his son, condemned him to death, solemnly took the last sacrament with him, and then, since none other could be found to do the act, he executed his son with his own hand in the market place. Lynch, the father, went back into his house, in stern grief, and never left it again. This case, by a complete twist of meaning, has led in modern times to the term 'lynch law.'"

Judge Lynch's house in Galway can even today be seen by those visiting that part of Ireland.

D. C Architecture

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The photograph published yesterday of the distinguished domed cathedral here being obliterated by the erection of a 12-story office building on the adjoining lots to lease to the Government now becomes a matter of considerable significance. If but a "vanishing vista," as you term it, became our sole concern, it might then be expected such an outrageous slaughter of a fine monument that has more than another building enhanced the vicinity would doubtless occur again. In view of the amount of effort spent in most cities not to allow famous buildings to become damaged, it seems almost impossible in the Capital of the United States anything of this sort could possibly happen.

Can it be that the several planning boards, the zoning board and the splendid Fine Arts Commission are solely concerned with the type of reinforced concrete factories to be erected on Pennsylvania and Constitution avenues or in Rock Creek Park under disguise of architecture while the remaining public buildings of the Capital City and its civic control must be left to haphazard development?

There is usually a pretty perspective drawing of how such an important streamlined building about to be erected or leased to the Government will appear in relation to its surroundings. Here its relation to the dome of the cathedral is awaited with more than usual interest. There is plenty of food for thought left for others to take some interest in such a mutilation of our cathederal. READER.

Fears Fascism

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As an American-born citizen I feel not only the right but also the necessity of raising my voice to cry out against the American version of fascism now being served to the American people.

There are those who will say that fascism cannot come to a democratic United States and that even to suggest such a thing is ridiculous. To those people one can only say that they are correct; fascism cannot come to any democracy, but are we still as strong a democracy in practice as in theory? To those who answer yes, I say, "look at the record."

Taxation without representation—for example the poll-tax system.

A growing peonage system—the sharecropper and migratory farm worker.

Increasing taxation—the latest called a "defense tax."

Hunger amid plenty—the recent cases of starvation in Cleveland while food is destroyed to boost prices.

Search and arrest without warrant and police brutality—it speaks for itself.

Persecutions of aliens and minorities—consider Harry Bridges and the various antialien bills now in Congress.

These are but a few of the undemocratic methods which are changing a democratic policy to one of fascism. Enforced military duty and the regimentation of labor as embodied in the industrial mobilization plan is being foisted onto the public.

Can there still be naive scoffers who still maintain that we are not fast losing our cherished democratic rights? Can they still sit back and do nothing? W. H. L.

The Post Impressionist

I Have A Plan

When our two boys were tiny they waveringly bestrode their kiddie kars and blithely bumped about the house—from chair, to davenport, to small tables, from which last crashed wedding present bric-a-brac. After the kiddie kar era they learned roller skating in the living room (bumps were softer with an occasional rug as landing zone), overstuffed furniture stood up poorly in contact with small sturdy shoes, but I, oh, so firmly, taught my husband to regard the havoc about us with resignation.

"When the boys are older, Jim," I would soothe, "we'll go in for the interior decorator's touch. But now we'll let the chips fall where they may." And the chips fell!

But time, as the newsreel narrator assures us, marches on, and our house and furniture have been refurbished. Refurbished, and I love to say it, for bigger and more brutal usage. The boys are 16 and 18 now; they stand 6 feet 2 inches each. And they have seven or eight intimates, all, like themselves, outsize models. These intimates have homes. But they don't use them—much. You see there is always so much to do here at our house.

Last night when Jim and I came home from the movies, we stepped into our teeming living room and it seemed, for a baffling instant, that there was no space for parents. But the next instant long lengths of youthful masculinity undraped themselves from chair arms and davenport back and turned on us wide and welcoming grins: "Hi, Bets!" . . . "Hullo, Jim!" . . . And the boy who lives in a butler-supervised house at the corner emerged from the kitchen with the half of a fudge cake I had hoped might be the next day's dessert. Another boy hospitably proffered dripping glasses of ginger ale (dripping), of course, onto the rug), and that baffled moment passed and we felt we belonged. Later, though, upstairs in our bedroom, Jim folded wearily into a chair:

"It's a club," he sighed, "that's what our house is—a neighborhood social center!"

Well, so it is. But it is my doing and I have a plan behind it.

Recently an older woman, one who lives with remote elegance in what I consider a devastating calm, came in for tea. Boys were arriving and departing by the front door—sawing and hammering went feverishly on in the basement—upstairs someone played the victrola, Goodman at his jitteriest. The caller shattered, at last, under the strain:

"I don't," she moaned, "see how you endure it!"

Frankly, sometimes I wonder. My diction is ruined. Only this morning I wanted to assure a friend the tale of woe she was unfolding was too too distressing, and instead heard myself say: "It's a cock-eyed shame!" It's all wild and completely exhausting. And perfect! Because our own boys look upon home as the one spot for freedom and fun and their friends share this view. Last spring I convalesced from an appendectomy with boys on the foot of the bed—on the floor—and waiting in the hall for their "turn" to visit.

At all hours the house fairly bulges with boys. Lately they have taken to bringing their current heart-throbs with them; fluffy young things, pretty and poised. And boys and heart-throbs are equally ravenous. Peanut butter, jelly, milk, bread and fruit melt, before their starved attacks, like snow in the tropics.

Sometimes it seems as if I lived my life in the midst of a mob scene. And the chatter! We discuss religion—all the boys are deeply interested and instinctively reverent. We discuss games—movies—and the subtly cruel and unpredictable ways of school teachers. Latin and math teachers bringing the bitterest groans. Also we discuss love. And love at 18 can be a hard and suffering thing!

All day and often far into the night the youthful, noisy and endearing procession streams in and out. Victrola and radio blare and croon. Most of our activities are conducted to swing tunes. During the football season four or five of the team crawled or hobbled (depending upon the extent of injuries sustained in the afternoon's carnage) to show me their scars and to ponder, "Andy's swell pass" . . . "Marty's rotten tackle," and, "What makes a coach do such things?"

When it snows, skis are brought up from the basement and waxing is gone into in a big way. Usually this takes place in the living room—it's clubbier that way and you don't miss anything. Scarfs, caps and gloves accumulate on chairs and tables and mantelpiece. Snow accumulates on the floor; sizes 11 and 12 shoes, no matter how thunderously stamped, bring snow in, in small drifts . . . And this and more besides is what goes on here. But it goes on according to plan—My Plan. And here then it is:

Because of the madly patterned life we now live I believe our boys are acquiring a memory of home so vivid, so deep and warm that wherever they may go in the future home will go with them. Those little boys and their kiddie kars are gone, and so too, will go these big boys. But we, Jim and Bets, left in the silent neatness of our orderly house will hold a memory too—the comforting warmth of remembered laughter—and gay tumult—and a never-to-be-forgotten happiness!

French Fascism

By Dorothy Thompson

The Re-Makers Of The Republic

IF FRENCH FASCISM had come about as the result of a revolutionary movement aimed to defend the safety, security and morale of France, that would be one thing. If it had come into being in order to pick up the arms that the French democracy had been forced to abandon, it might be able to associate itself with the vigor and honor of France.

BUT FRENCH FASCISM cannot claim for itself any prestige at all. First of all, it undermined and weakened France by continual conspiracy with her enemies. The French republic, the while it shut up Communists and people who were not Communists at all but merely left-wingers, treated the right traitors with that tenderness which republics seem perennially to show to the upper classes. These people have always had a leaning toward fascism, particularly of the Franco-Mussolini brand. The death-blow to France was their victory. But a new era is not started on the death-blow to a nation.

These re-makers of the French republic are, in fact, all the old political crooks of the Third French Republic, together with their scared fellow-travelers. M. Marquet, the dentist Mayor of Bordeaux, who founded the neo-Socialist Party of brief life; M. Deat, who wrote that "We don't want to fight for Danzig;" M. Laval, the shrewd and cunning fixer; M. Baudoin, banker for Indo-China and representative of the purest plutocracy, are not men to give new life to the French nation—even if there were any immediate possibility of giving new life.

The most they can do is to toady to the conquerors, and in doing so destroy the soul of France. The spectacle is more horrifying even than the French defeat.

They begin by casting into the dust the motto of a nation that under that motto lived its proudest and most glorious days. "Liberty, Equality, Fraternity." Those words on the flag of France were revolutionary words, and words that meant power and prestige; power over the imagination of men, and power in the actual material world. Even the Nazis could not erase those words from the French heart and the French mind.

It remains for Frenchmen to attempt to do so, and to substitute for them "Labor-Family-Nation." One can only remark dryly that as long as France could practice and defend liberty, equality and fraternity, there was work for all in France—work for all Frenchmen, and work for a million and more aliens in France, a country that through the worst depression never had unemployment.

FRANCE NEEDS no motto from the boot-lickers of her conquerors to elevate in France the prestige of the family. No country in Europe has so cherished the family, and nowhere has the family been so clearly the basic social unit of the state as in the France of liberty. And as for the nation—who are these défenders of the nation?

They are the men who not so long ago were saying, "Better Hitler than Leon Blum!" as some people in this country are able to whisper "Better Hitler than F. D. R.!" They are the people who were more afraid of French labor than of German soldiers.

OF COURSE, behind their actions is a shrewd politicians' and financiers' type of calculation. They think: England, too, will be defeated. Let us get on the bandwagon. Let us tie close to Mussolini. Thus we shall save the Empire. They will save it, in order to feed Germany and Italy with it.

THE NEW FASCIST regime in France does not mean that Hitler will not plunder the French countryside. Dispatches tell us that that is happening. It does not mean that either Hitler or Mussolini will have increased respect for France. Quite the contrary.

France, as a nation, independent, integrated, free; France as a power and as an idea depends today, as she depended yesterday, upon the successful resistance to Hitler of the British commonwealth. And if, with the assistance of the French, Hitler succeeds and Britain falls, then the reconstruction of Europe tomorrow into a continent in which peoples and individuals will again have freedom will depend upon revolutionary forces inside that continent. This regime will attempt to stifle those forces, too.

THERE ARE LESSONS to be learned from history. Mustafa Kemal Pasha, Mussolini and Hitler rose out of defeated or frustrated nations. But they rose to reverse the defeat, not to ratify it. The regimes that ratified the defeat all eventually were swept away in the rising tide of public indignation.

In France, and for the first time fascism becomes the symbol for a great people of capitulation, subservience and national slavery. This last recruit to fascism is without elan. The French republic is not liquidated by some fanatical upstart, but by a doddering old man. Petain will not lead French youth. He can only break their hearts, not inflame their spirit. His regime kicks the dead bodies of boys who died to fight fascism.

This is the deepest humiliation of France.

LET US RECALL to France the words of Hitler:

"Had the German republic taken up the sword which the monarchy relinquished, had it set to work to prepare the nation to reject a shameful peace; had it refused to rush to the flesh-pots offered it by its conquerors, there would have been no Nazi movement, but all Germany would have followed the democratic republic."

WHAT WILL the founders of the new France tell their children? How will they define the word "honorable?" or will this quaint old-fashioned word pass, at last, out of the dictionary of mankind?"

Hollywood Salaries

Dear Editor: I have been reading those lists of the highest-salaried people in the United States, showing movie notables at the top, and I am writing to ask if it is all a gag or if they really get that kind of dough. I see Louis B. Mayer topped the list with a salary of $688,396 a year, and just when I am recovering my breath I am knocked over again by the statement that this is a 40 per cent cut from his previous salary. Compared with what he gets in a good year he is practically on relief, no?

Well, I don't know Mr. Mayer, but I didn't see no movies that would indicate the head man rated so much money, and the same goes for the Hollywood stars. Claudette Colbert was up near the top with $426,944 for one year, which is around 8,000 pazootas a week. I didn't see Claudette's pictures, but I must begin following them at once because I want to find out what she does to get pay checks like that. Bing Crosby was next with $410,000. I saw most of Bing's pictures and I hope Hollywood has a conscience fund so he can give something back.

Irene Dunne got $405,222. I always like Irene, but the salary has ruined her for me. What I mean is I could never see her again in one of those pictures where she is a poor struggling young woman giving life a stiff battle, without knowing it's the bunk.

Clark Gable got $272,000. This surprised me as it must be the kind of salary they start you in on in Hollywood, and I think Clark should get a raise. The second highest American salary went to a Mr. Countway, who is not a movie man at all, but a soap manufacturer and I think if a soap man gets $469,713 Gable should get something close to it. What I mean is I will never enjoy washing again without thinking that maybe the man who made the cake of soap gets more dough than Gable who had to stand all those terrible years with Scarlett O'Hara.

If I was to pick out a business where the big money was I would never have picked the soap business, but on the other hand I suppose it takes more work to put over soap in this country than it does movies.

An Escape From Hell

Maugham's Story

Following is a partial text of Somerset Maugham's story of his dramatic escape and that of other Britons from France. The British author's account was carried by the British Broadcasting Co. and made available to the United Press through an arrangement with the B. B. C.

I want to tell you in the plainest and shortest way how British subjects who were in the Riviera at the time (the Germans swept over the country) escaped from France and arrived in England.

There were 1,300 of us.

The order to go arrived about 6 o'clock on the afternoon of June 16 and we were told to be on the quay at Cannes the next morning by 8. . . .

I want to tell you first what sort of people we were. Well, we were of all classes. There were invalids, some so ill that they had to be taken back and none knows to what fate because it was impossible to get them on ship, or to care for them there. There were numbers of elderly persons who had lived on the Riviera and had made their homes there. There also were numbers of persons who had for years earned their living on the Riviera in commerce or trade, and these were to be pitied even more than the rest because they had to abandon businesses that they had spent years in working up and were starting off to England with nothing in the world to look forward to . . .

THE TWO SHIPS that were to take us were the Saltergate and the Ashcrest, about 4,000 tons each. They were colliers which had discharged coal at Marseille. . . .

I was on the Saltergate. Capt. Stubbs told me to go to the first hatch. This hold was to be my living quarters until we reached Gibraltar. We started from Cannes in the evening and arrived at Marseille the next morning . . . We were instructed by French authorities to join a French convoy and that night started off to an unknown destination.

Of course the conditions were strange to a great many of us and wanted some getting used to. One lady called a steward and asked him where the games deck was and another said she wanted to go first class. A third, when she discovered that our drinking water came from a pump, said with horror that she had never drunk tap water in her life.

THESE PEOPLE and people like them soon discovered where they got off. At first there was some disorder, but the British are a methodical people and we soon got things straight. . . . As we were short of water, little was available for washing. Most of the men managed to shave and the women kept at least their faces fairly clean with the creams and lotions they had with them. But our hands were grimy and it was no use putting on a clean shirt because in a couple of hours it was black with coal dust . . . It was exhausting in the hot sun and the iron decks made the heat almost unendurable . . .

When we had gone out about three days submarines were signaled and depth charges were dropped. The escorting destroyers circled about an hour but there was no further sign of the submarine . . .

As the long days wore on the strain became greater. Altogether four people went out of their minds. Then on an afternoon we were told that we were going to Oran in Algeria and would be landed there to await instructions from Gilbraltar.

We hoped another ship would be sent from there to fetch us. The captain was most willing to take us on. The passengers were exhausted. The conditions were bad. There was a lavatory accommodation for the crew of 38 and we were over 500. With insufficient and unsuitable food there was danger of epidemic. Some of the older people were only just alive. It seemed impossible that they could endure the ordeal any longer.

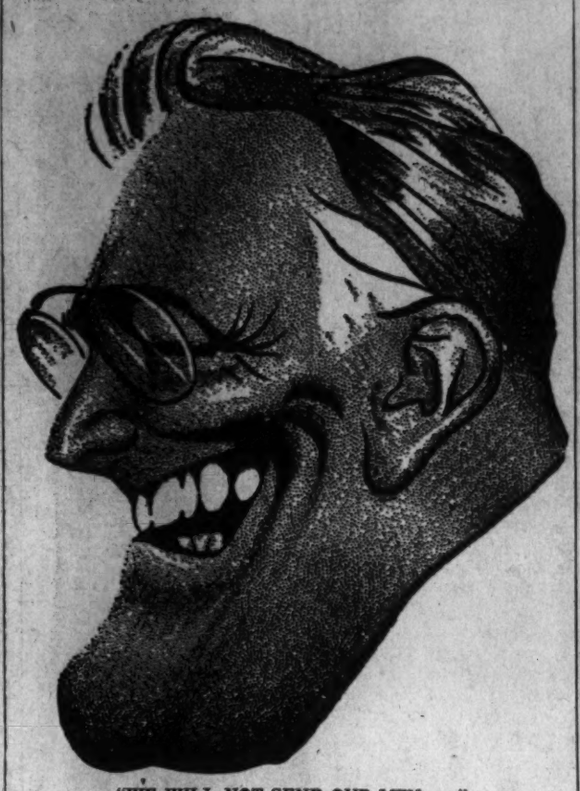
At Oran, we were all in great spirits at the thought that our troubles were over. They fell when we reached harbor and were told that we were not to go ashore. The position was serious because that day the news had arrived of the surrender of France and the captain of the Saltergate was not too sure that authorities at Oran might not receive instructions to seize and intern us. . . . A French convoy happened to be starting for Gibraltar that night and we joined it and arrived on Tuesday morning.

It was good to find ourselves in comparative safety, and again we were in high spirits. . . . But again we were disappointed and were told that we would not be allowed to land. Then many of us broke down. Women cried. It seemed too much to bear.

AN OFFICER CAME on board and made us a speech explaining that Gibraltar was a fortress and that a large number of refugees had already passed through, that fifth column activities were feared and that the government would do what it could to relieve our necessities, but that we must make the best of a bad job. It was a terrible blow and it broke the nerve of many. The distress of these people was painful to see.

Col. Stokes, the vice consul, and Capt. Stubbs were allowed to land and they put our case before the authorities. The result was that children, the sick and persons of 70 and over were taken off and the rest of us were allowed to go ashore in batches of 50 for two hours each. We used our time in having a bath.

I think none of us can ever have enjoyed a bath more. . . . We sailed from Gibraltar on Friday morning and after a long and tedious journey we reached at last the blessed shores of England. We had been 20 days on the journey.



"WE WILL NOT SEND OUR MEN . . ."

With half a sentence, says Ernest Lindley, President Roosevelt relieved Democrats who feared his "interventionist" tendencies; annoyed those less friendly to him who hoped to make an embarrassing issue of foreign policy at the nominating convention, and disconcerted Republicans who dodged a no-war pledge in their platform

A Flexible Policy

By Ernest K. Lindley

WITH HALF A SENTENCE in his defense message, the President both relieved and annoyed members of his party in Congress.

The half sentence was: "We will not send our men to take part in European wars."

It relieved Democrats who feared the President's "interventionist" tendencies. It annoyed a few, less friendly to him, who hoped to make an embarrassing issue of the foreign policy plank at the national convention. It was disconcerting to Republicans who, after backing and filling, finally removed a similar pledge from the platform adopted at Philadelphia.

Such is the power of a phrase. Actually the President did not add to or subtract from our knowledge of his foreign policy. This was a message on national defense. He said only enough on foreign policy to achieve the political effect which he sought: to appease or to take the wind out of the sails of critics of his policies with reference to the Allies. These critics had been provided with new ammunition by the Stimson and Knox appointments, together with the enforced resignation of Harry H. Woodring, the stoutest isolationist in the Cabinet during the last two years.

In his message the President made only four statements on foreign policy, as distinct from the building up of our Army, Navy and Air Corps.

The first half of the sentence quoted above read: "We will not use our arms in a war of aggression." Nobody will object to that.

THE PLEDGE "not to send our men to take part in European wars" seems, at first glance, to be more restrictive than his earlier statements that he would not send an expeditionary force to Europe. It seems to exclude the use of either our Navy or air force on the far side of the Atlantic—although until recently advocates of a strong policy within the President's intimate circle envisaged the use, if necessary, of our air force and Navy to aid the Allies.

But events have moved more rapidly than they anticipated. Earlier it was explained that the Allies did not need an army. Now the British need more troops, more ships, more planes, more pilots—more everything. But there is no place on the continent of Europe to land an expeditionary force. Our pilots would be immensely helpful to the British right now—and so would our destroyers and other small naval craft, as well as our merchant marine—but obviously we do not intend to send any of them.

The third pronouncement of the President was that "we will repel aggression against the United States or the Western Hemisphere." There is no dissent so far as the United States is concerned, and probably not much so far as the entire Western Hemisphere is concerned. Even the Navy, which until recently thought that the Monroe Doctrine stopped at the equator, and the Army, whose plans extended only a little farther south, to the bulge of Brazil, have been swung around to the view that we must defend the Western Hemisphere in toto.

The fourth pronouncement was a sop to the internationalists. It read: "The people and their representatives in the Congress know that the threats to our liberties, the threats to our security, the threats against our way of life, the threats to our institutions of religion, of democracy, and of international good faith, have increased in number and gravity from month to month, from week to week, and almost from day to day."

IN A DIFFERENT context in earlier messages by the President and Secretary Hull, these thoughts were internationalist and interventionist. They implied a desire to police the world generally. They recognized no line of demarcation between parts of the world in which we have a serious national interest and parts in which we don't have. In this message they are softened and subordinated.

Those four statements do not outline a foreign policy. Granting that they were said with sincere conviction, their purpose was narrowly political. They were silent on the more urgent questions of foreign policy:

What additional aid will we or can we give Great Britain during the next few weeks and months?

How far will we go to hold our ground and check Japan in the Far East?

What will we do about the Western Hemisphere possessions of the conquered European nations: France, Holland and Denmark?

Apropos of the first question, is the war between the Axis and Great Britain a "European" war? The Allied cause no longer has a foothold in Europe. In a real sense this is a war for control of the far side of the Atlantic Ocean—and less directly for control of the Indian Ocean and the far side of the Pacific.

When sea power is involved, our national interest is affected. Thus it could be argued that the President's pledge not to send our men to take part in European wars does not apply to a war in which control of the oceans, and not of the continent of Europe, has become the main stake.

A FEW POINTS in our foreign policy—such as defense of the Western Hemisphere—can be fixed. Otherwise, our policy must be flexible. It may be sound policy now to hold a stiff front against Japan: within a few weeks, if Britain should go down, we might have to try to reach an agreement with Japan.

In the present fluid state of the world, the President cannot even privately be certain what it may be necessary to do in our national interest a few weeks hence. Much less can he announce publicly what he would do in given circumstances. Under such conditions, not much beyond the needs of domestic politics can be read into such thumbnail sketches of our foreign policy as he set forth in his national defense message.

Reforming Of Unions

THE AMENDMENTS to the Wagner Act now pending in Congress leave me cold, because none of them gets at the worst defects in a law which was hastily and emotionally miscalled labor's Magna Charta.

I contend that if my Government compels me to join a union, which is a private organization, it must undertake to protect my rights as an American citizen within that organization. Therefore, it must be understood that I designate the union to represent me only in collective bargaining with my employer. It has no right to commit me on anything else. It has no right to indorse any political ticket, platform or candidate, or the WPA, or contribute 1 cent of the money I am compelled to pay as dues, assessments and fees for any purpose to which I am opposed.

Having made it necessary for me to join a union in order to enjoy the privilege of working at my lawful occupation, my Government must superintend the union elections and prosecute those who commit election frauds. It must see that the ballot is kept pure, and that elections are held exactly as provided by the union constitution.

MY UNION must be made to refrain from mob violence or unlawful narassment, coercion or vandalism, because, obviously, my Government has no right to herd me into an organization which commits criminal acts. Otherwise my Government drives me into a life of crime.

Similarly, my Government must compel my union to observe its contracts, because personally I am very conscientious about contracts and will not be a party to repudiation or violation of a contract. Not only a question of conscience but a question of legal liability is involved here.

My Government has got to abolish the taxing power of my union. That is absolutely must, because, obviously, my Government has no right to force me into a private organization which taxes me. Only my Government has the right to tax me. Moreover, the dues, fees and assessments must be regulated by law, because it will be remembered that I am a member only by compulsion of law.

My Government must provide guarantees that the money which I do pay into the union treasury will be spent honestly and fully accounted for, just as public funds are supposed to be spent and accounted for, and must prosecute grafters in the union for my protection.

THE MEMBERSHIP must be wide open to any citizen engaged in the trade of that union without restriction. This means that if I am a Negro the union cannot bar be on account of my color. It also means that the union cannot close its rolls and exclude new members in order to monopolize the existing jobs for those who already belong. If the Government says I must join the union in order to exercise my right to work, the union must be compelled to admit me. On the other hand, if a union is exclusive, like the Racquet Club or the Union League, as some of them are, and equally expensive, it has no right to invoke Government compulsion under the Wagner Act.

My Government must protect me from suspension or expulsion for any other cause than an offense against the public laws of the State or Nation. It cannot permit the union to throw me out for criticizing its officers, methods or constitution. As a citizen I am allowed to criticize the officers, methods and constitution of my State and Nation, and the same rights must be guaranteed as to this minor citizenship in the union.

ALL THIS, I am afraid, bespeaks rather close supervision of the unions by the Government, in short, something very like a Nazi labor front or the Russian system. But they can't have the privileges which the act confers without assuming appropriate responsibilities, and, being private organizations, capable of great abuses, they must place themselves within reach of the law.

My Government has its faults, but still I trust it more than I trust the unions, especially in view of William Green's indorsement of criminals in positions of power over the rank and file.

Britain And Italy Come To Grips

IN THEIR COMMENTS on the recent Battle of Oran where the guns of the British fleet were turned against French warships, Italian spokesmen exhausted the vocabulary of vituperation. They accused Britain of "ferocious bestiality," "cowardly, frightful and criminal cynicism," "revolting piracy," and other high crimes. But their anger was obviously only a cloak for their fears.

This outburst of energy by a nation believed decadent, this display of grim determination by the last enemy of the Axis left to carry on the struggle, must have given the Italians furiously to think. After the French laid down their arms the Italian hopes of a cheap and speedy triumph seemed on the way to fulfillment. The British action at Oran compelled the Italians to water down their anticipations. It made it clear that the war was not over, that victory was not yet in sight.

THERE IS an old Italian proverb which says: "War with all the world but peace with England." This folk wisdom Mussolini has chosen to flout. He entered the war when the struggle in France had reached its penultimate stage and the Allied chances of halting the mechanized armies of the Third Reich had all but disappeared. But the collapse of France, instead of weakening the British will to resist, appears only to have stiffened it. The war goes on; the Mediterranean is a front of that war; and in the Mediterranean British sea power freed of the threat of the French fleet falling into the hands of the Axis, is a factor which can make life extremely unpleasant for Italy.

There can be no minimizing the dangers and difficulties that confront the British today. Great Britain is a fortress besieged by the most powerful and ruthless enemy she has had to face in her long history. But she is far from licked. She is still capable of delivering telling blows against her enemies. And as between Germany and Italy, the latter is by all odds the weaker and more vulnerable.

ITALY entered the war on a shoestring. She has not yet fully recovered from the exhaustion produced by her conflicts in Ethiopia and Spain. Her reserves of food, fuel and other essential supplies are limited. Should the war extend into another winter her plight might easily become desperate.

This fact is known to the Italians. But it is also no secret to Great Britain. That is why the British while almost completely on the defensive vis-a-vis Germany have given indications of taking the offensive against Germany's partner. For if Italian sea power can be quickly destroyed or so seriously weakened as to be forced to keep cover Italy would be in peril and the Italian empire would fall, like an overripe plum into the hands of the British.

We have in the Mediterranean situation, therefore, another race with time whose outcome may have a considerable bearing on the outcome of the war. For if, through the exercise of sea power, Italy can be knocked out of the war then the whole aspect of the present struggle would undergo a great change. If, on the other hand, Great Britain can be knocked out before its sea power in the Mediterranean can be successfully applied against the Italians then Italy will, without doing very much, have won the victory toward which Fascist Italy's policy has been consistently pointed for years.

THE REAL TEST of the respective strength of the British and Italian fleets in the Mediterranean has not yet occurred. The fight between a British and an Italian squadron early this week was little more than a dress rehearsal. But it did reveal that the British are fully prepared to take the offensive, that they continue to be in substantial command of Mediterranean communications, despite the fact that they no longer have the French fleet to aid them.

The Italian fleet appears to be smaller in size and fire power than the naval strength which the British appear to have assembled between Gibraltar and Suez. But it is by all accounts a first-rate fighting force and has the support of a considerable number of planes. Yet the conduct of Italian land, sea and air operations from the moment Italy entered the war suggests that Italy is determined to proceed cautiously, in full realization of her own weakness.

The offensive against France was actually not begun until the very eve of the armistice. The fighting in North and East Africa has so far been largely confined to air raids, in which the Royal Air Force does not appear to have come off second best. And the same prudence has been displayed by Italy at sea.

IN PART this attitude of caution may be the result of a sheer lack of fighting power, although this is by no means certain. But it may also be the result of psychological forces.

Throughout their history the Italians have had a very healthy regard for sea power, and because of that for Great Britain. By dint of incessant propaganda going back to the time of sanctions, a hatred of Britain has been fostered by the Fascist regime in Italy. But this propaganda has probably not lessened the respect which Italians have had for the British fleet, and which certainly suffered no diminution as a result of the Battle of Oran.

That is why Hitler may decide to defer the invasion of Britain; certain to prove a costly venture at best, until the British position in the Mediterranean has been made untenable. German-occupied territory now reaches to the borders of Spain. An attack on Gibraltar plus a simultaneous thrust in the direction of Portugal, so as keep the British navy away from that country's coast, is not outside the realm of immediate possibility.

Willkie's Favorite Food Is Hoosier-Fried Chicken

That Means, 'Crisp and Brown, to Be Eaten With Fingers, If Desired;' Republican's Choice Also Likes Cherry Pie; Not a Vegetable Enthusiast

By Martha Ellyn.
The Post Food Editor

WENDELL L. WILLKIE, Republican candidate for President, likes his fried chicken cooked the Hoosier way. Mrs. Willkie revealed this on her recent trip to Washington. She also said that cherry pie is one of his favorite foods.

Martha Ellyn

Mr. Willkie's preference for Hoosier style fried chicken will be welcome news to exponents of the Middle-west method of frying chicken. For years the frying of chicken has been a matter of lively sectional dispute in the United States. Advocates of the Hoosier way insist that it should be cut into serving pieces, cooked slowly in plenty of fat to make it tender and succulent, yet crisp and brown so that it may be eaten with the fingers if desired. Exponents of Chicken a la Maryland style, contend that it should be prepared with a cream sauce or water added while cooking. Some sections think that it should be cooked in half portions, and still others place the chicken split in half on a broiling rack and baste frequently with a mixture while broiling. There are also some who dip the chicken into a batter made of flour, milk and baking powder, before frying it.

Naturally, I wanted to find out how the Republican Man of the Hour felt on this question. When Mrs. Willkie was asked how he liked his fried chicken cooked, she replied immediately, "the Hoosier way." Since there was not time for getting her recipe I inquired if the way her college friend, Dr. Florence King—a Hoosier from Richmond, Ind.—now a nationally known food expert with the United States Government, prepared it was the correct way. Her reply to this question was, "Florence's style is perfect."

Fried Chicken-Cherry Pie

Since it is quite evident from Mr. Willkie's healthful look and excellent physique that Mrs. Willkie serves him nourishing food, I asked what his favorite foods were. It was then Mrs. Willkie mentioned fried chicken and cherry pie.

Lizzie Barber, the colored cook of Mrs. Willkie's mother, Mrs. Phil Wilk, who lives at Rushville, Ind., is eager for Mr. Willkie to return "home" so that she can cook for him. She says, "he loves fried chicken, but he doesn't seem to care so much for vegetables. He certainly does like my cherry pie, though." When Mr. Willkie does go back to Rushville, there will be plenty of fried chicken for him, for the wives of the tenants on his five farms are waiting eagerly to furnish the chickens for Lizzie to cook for this illustrious farm owner.

The Hoosier fried chicken for which the presidential candidate has now taken his stand, is one of the most popular of summer dishes, not only in Indiana, but in many parts of the country. Here is the recipe for frying it as given me by Dr. King. She and Mrs. Willkie attended Indiana University together and were members of Kappa Alpha Theta and have remained close friends. Dr. King as chief, food utilization section, United States Bureau of Home Economics, is intimately connected with culinary matters both scientifically and practically, so you may be sure her recipe is an excellent one.

Hoosier Fried Chicken

Select a bird young enough to have a pliable breastbone, but with a fairly rounded breast and short plump legs. It should weigh from 2 to 3 pounds when fully dressed. When dressed, cut into pieces, dry and roll in flour that has been seasoned with salt and pepper. Heat enough lard in a frying pan to obtain a depth of about three-fourths of an inch. When hot, put in the kitchen, the largest pieces first, but do not crowd—enough to prevent splattering of the fat, but to let the steam escape. Cook at a moderate temperature for 20 to 25 minutes, turning occasionally, for uniform browning and cooking. Remove the chicken to soft paper to drain the excess fat.

Being a Hoosier I know that cream gravy always accompanied fried chicken. Dr. King has also given the recipe for making the cream gravy.

Cream Gravy.

Pour off fat in excess of about one-fourth cup. Blend in 3 tablespoons flour with the fat in the pan. Add two cups milk, stirring constantly, until thickened. Boil with occasional stirring for about three minutes. Season to taste with salt and pepper.

Present methods of serving fried chicken at the White House vary according to Mrs. Henrietta Nesbitt, executive housekeeper. She says that since the President has no preference, chicken is sometimes fried the crisp way and other times in another way.

Mrs. Willkie Cuts Cake For Nominee Husband

No one need worry about what to serve if Mr. Willkie (insert) is to be a guest for dinner, for Indiana's Republican Presidential nominee favors traditional American dishes such as crisply fried chicken and cherry pie. The happy expressions of both Mr. and Mrs. Willkie, in the picture above, seem to indicate good digestion, so their regular diets must be carefully chosen

Plethora of Wedding Duties Likely to Panic Bride's Mother

Decision on Bridal Parties, Reception Usually Fall to Her; Infinite Care Required to Insure Flawless Pageant

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

IN MOST families the weddings don't come often enough to keep a hostess really in practice. And so, when confronted with the prospect of a wedding that's anything fancier than a trip to the city hall, it's the mother of the bride who's likely to get panicky. For upon her devolves the responsibility of putting on a flawless pageant and finishing it with a reception or a wedding breakfast that has glamor, gayety and dignity all at once.

The wedding itself must follow pretty unalterable rules and so it becomes more a matter of infinite pains and patience in planning.

The reception or wedding breakfast, as well as various bridal parties before and after the wedding, are the events that follow a more personal pattern and so put more of a burden on individual decisions. A convention of simple formal elegance, with white or white with silver or gold, is still the smartest thing. Yet ice blue, frosty green and palest pink are sometimes seen.

Fastidious Table Covers

Misty tablecloths of fine net, or clouds of white organdy with shadows of unbelievably delicate appliques, sheerest linen with appliqued or hand-embroidered pattern, real lace or stately damask or linen or rayon . . . these are the most fastidious covers for wedding tables.

China with gold encrustations or with silver luster have great beauty on many of these tables. Others rely on exquisite floral plates or on china of classic simplicity. In a year when the flow of imports has been so disturbed, it is a revealing discovery to note how many of the most formal and dramatic wedding tables are set with American china.

Crystal is a scintillating accent on all wedding tables, which, though they don't revert entirely to the Victorian standard of as much cut glass as could be crowded on, still rely greatly upon beautiful glass for that sparkling wedding look. Much of the best modern glass is also of American manufacture.

Silver Adds Distinctive Tone

Silver, as always, has great responsibility on a wedding table. Old, ornate designs have an ancestral sort of distinction, but there is a repertoire of modern silver that is congenial with either traditional or contemporary things.

The centerpiece preferably is either fresh white flowers, grandly simple in arrangement, or a gallant wedding cake tiered and ornate. No crepe paper, please, and no artificial flowers. The flowers should reflect the occasions—giant white sweetpeas, white orchids, huge white gardenias, tall white snapdragons, enormous white tulips, white iris or white gladioli, and for greenery no asparagus fern, but ivy or some graceful trailing things.

Iron Beds

In one of the most swish of the fair exhibits was seen a bedroom of great style. But the bed had a headboard that looked as if it came from an old-time, very scrolly iron bed—very high, very fancy, the whole thing painted gilt. So dig that old iron bed out of the attic or barn, take the footboard off and paint it, make a ruffled spread and you'll be right in style

Five New Ways to Serve Melons

MRS. CHANEL

Cooling Refreshment Isn't Only Duty Of Seasonal Delicacy

By The Post Food Editor

MELONS are in season. While a melon's main duty is to offer cooling refreshment, still it does a bit more for it is a fair source of Vitamin C. "Ice cold" is the almost universal way of serving melons, yet there are other ways in which their tender translucent may be eaten. The contestants in this week's Post recipe contest have offered many interesting ways, and the following are the five winning recipes.

Watermelon Mallobet

$3 Prize
Mrs. Merrill Chanel, 419 West Broad street, Falls Church, Va.

Recipe—Make 1 cup watermelon juice by pressing the pulp through a sieve. Heat 24 marshmallows and ¾ cup of the watermelon juice together in a saucepan over low heat, folding over and over until marshmallows are smooth and fluffy. Cool. Add ¼ cup lemon juice and ¼ cup watermelon juice. Beat 2 egg whites until they hold a peak. Add 1 tablespoon sugar slowly and continue beating until a stiff meringue is formed. Combine marshmallow mixture with this meringue and fold carefully until blended. Pour mixture into freezing tray of automatic refrigerator. Freeze at lowest degree possible. Stir twice during freezing time. When stirring the second time add 1 cup of watermelon cut fine. Serve in sherbet glasses, topped by a sprig of mint or a melon ball.

Recipe Contest

THEME—Jellied Consomme and Soup.

QUALIFICATIONS — Recipes must be kitchen-tested, practical, clearly written, and exact and level measurements given. Oven temperatures and length of time for cooking must be given. All entries must be signed in long hand. Only one entry will be judged from a person. Number of servings should be given.

CLOSING DATE—Noon, July 20.

PRIZES—First, $3; second, $2; third, fourth and fifth, $1 each.

RUNNERS-UP will be given honorable mention.

MAIL entries to Martha Ellyn, The Post Food Editor.

Pretty Nests

$2 Prize
Mrs. H. H. Murphy, 2515 Thirteenth street northwest

Recipe: Scoop out tiny balls of honeydew melon and pink cantaloupe. Chill in refrigerator. Prepare lime gelatin. Chill. Into individual dishes heap a mound of melon balls and surround with "grass" made of the lime gelatine pressed through a ricer. Pass a pitcher of ice-cold orange juice with which to drench the melon balls; also pass powdered sugar to use if desired.

Melon and Ice Cup

$1 Prize
Marjorie Zetelle Quinter, Bradley boulevard, Bethesda, Md.

Recipe—Chill 1 honeydew melon, 1 cantaloupe and ¼ watermelon. Cut the melons in half, remove seeds and make melon balls. Put balls in bowl and cover with 1½ cups unsweetened pineapple juice. Chill for 2 hours. Just before serving time, put a scoop of lime ice in center of large sherbet glasses. Surround the ice with melon balls and pineapple juice. Garnish with mint leaves. Serves eight.

MRS. MURPHY

Post's Winning Recipes Of Week Offer Tempting Variations

Watermelon Ring Pickles

$1 Prize
Mrs. Matthew R. Beebe, 422 North Kenmore, Arlington, Va.

Recipe—Soak 10 pounds of watermelon rind, cut in pieces the size of the little finger, overnight in alum water. To make alum water, dissolve piece of alum size of a nutmeg in a little hot water. Drain well and cook in fresh water until the rind is readily pierced. Be careful not to overcook. Drain again. Put into syrup, made by combining 5 pounds brown sugar with 5 pints cider vinegar. Put 1 ounce of whole cloves and 2 ounces of stick cinnamon into a small bag and add to the solution. Let syrup come to boiling point after adding to rind. Let set for three days. Drain off syrup and boil until it thickens. Pour back over rind. The third day add rind to boiling syrup and seal. Just before sealing add 1 ounce of candied ginger. Makes 6 quarts.

Cantaloupe Ice Cream

$1 Prize
Mrs. B. C. Philips, 631 Allison street northwest

Recipe—Clean and remove pulp from 2 cantaloupes. Mash pulp and add ⅛ cup sugar and the juice of ½ lemon. Beat 1 egg until lemon color and add ½ cup sugar. Fold into the cantaloupe pulp and add 1 cup coffee cream. Freeze to a mush. Stir and add 1 cup whipped cream. Finish freezing.

Contest Runners-up

Mrs. Eugenia D'Camera, 1842 Burke street southeast — Peach Whip in Cantaloupe Halves.

Mrs. Mary G. Ireland, 719 Third street northeast — Watermelon With Sherry Sauce.

Mrs. Grace F. Hiehle, 3422 South Dakota street northeast—Melody Cup.

Mrs. E. E. Smith, 868 Park avenue, Baltimore, Md.—Melon Ring Filled with Fruit and Melon.

Mrs. Pauline Crow, 1910 T street, southeast—Melon Punch.

Miss Evelyn Weisbacker, 4423 Eighth street northwest—Watermelon Ice.

Mrs. W. Hurley, 311 Douglas street northeast—Spice Ripe Cantaloupe.

Mrs. Lester A. Smith, 2456 Twentieth street northwest—Cantaloupe Ring with Berries.

Mrs. Albert Day, Auburn avenue, Bethesda, Md.—Confetti Salad with Lime Dressing.

Mrs. O. L. Hendrickson, 3 Englewood road, Hagerstown, Md.—Sweet Pickled Melon.

Miss Martha Ryan, 1627 Thirty-fifth street northwest—Melon Wine Cocktail.

Miss J. L. Charles, First street northeast—Cantaloupe Cocktail.

Mrs. Jay Lawlor, 1627 Thirty-fifth street northwest—Melon Ice.

A Royal Dessert

Drain and pit one 8-ounce can Royal Anne cherries, and cut in quarters. Add 3 tablespoons sugar and few grains salt to cherry juice and cook, stirring occasionally until it is boiled down to about 1-3 cup. Cool, add 2 to 4 drops almond flavoring and just before serving combine with the cherries. Serve on vanilla ice cream. Serves four to six.

Apple Dessert Wholesome Dish

Go light, if you wish, on the hearty meat-and-'tater courses in hot weather—all will be forgiven if you wind up the meal with a dessert that satisfies. Serve it icy-cold, and your family will leave the table feeling refreshed, ready to combat the heat with new energy.

Here is the recipe for a tempting dessert having wholesome energy value.

Apple Crumb Frost

Combine 1½ cups fine dry bread crumbs, 4 tablespoons sugar, ¼ teaspoon cinnamon and 4 tablespoons melted butter. Butter a deep baking dish; sprinkle with crumb mixture, then cover with layer of apple sauce. Repeat, making top layer of crumbs. Bake in 325 degree oven, about 20 minutes. Chill in refrigerator. Unmold and 'frost' like a cake with 2 packages of cream cheese that has been blended with 3 tablespoons cream. Cut in slices for serving. Serves 6.

Finns Obey Russia, Wreck Aaland Forts

Fearing Germany, Moscow Reverses Stand on Islands

Copyright by New York Times

Stockholm, July 11.—According to information received here today, the fortifications on the Aaland Islands which Finland began constructing after the Russo-Finnish war are being dismantled again.

And for the last four days the Finns have been blowing up concrete gun emplacements and other heavy fortification parts. The explosions could be heard far out at sea.

Demilitarization of the Aaland Islands, which control the entrance to the Gulf of Bothnia and therewith the route from the Swedish iron-ore mines to Germany, is being carried out by the Finns at the demand of Russia, which originally had agreed to the fortification but has now reversed its stand.

This solution of the problem, which reestablishes the status of the islands as defined by the international non-fortification treaty of 1921, is understood to be quite acceptable to Sweden which is satisfied as long as none of the big powers have control of them.

Interested in Nickel Mines

Simultaneously, it is learned that Russia has also been making inquiries of Finland regarding the rich nickel mines in the Petsamo region belonging to Canadian interests. Russia is known to be very short of most nonferrous metals and this shortage is aggravated by the enormous Russian armament program now under way.

Russian evacuation of the Petsamo district had been accepted by Finland as a token of Russia's intention to live up to the terms of the peace treaty, and the present inquiries have therefore aroused certain apprehensions in Finland. So far, however, Moscow has not formulated any demands either for control of the mines or deliveries of their products and the exact nature of the Russian interest is therefore still obscure.

According to the conviction of most observers here, however, Russia will go far to avoid any new war against Finland and the trade treaty just concluded between Moscow and Helsinki which doubled Russian oil supplies to Finland is taken as confirmation of this view.

Aimed at Germany

At the same time, every Russian move is now viewed mainly in the light of the Russo-German balance of power and Russia's efforts to safeguard herself against the chance of a Russo-German war, which many believe inevitable as early as next spring. In that light even the demilitarization of the Aaland Islands is considered to be in the main a Russian move to forestall the possibility that the fortifications of these islands might fall into German hands before Russia could get hold of them.

Russian control of the island fortifications would greatly enhance her strength in the Baltic, but failing that, demilitarization is her next best bet in view of her possession of strong naval bases in the Baltic states and at Hangoe in Finland.

The Sykes' Backyard Is Neighborhood Play Spot

Justice Dept. To Get New Pandering Law

Curran to Submit Changes in Drive To Plug Loopholes

United States Attorney Edward M. Curran announced last night he plans to submit to the Department of Justice proposed changes in the law dealing with the prosecution of panderers, as a result of disclosures of loopholes in a case recently considered by Justice James M. Proctor in District Court.

Suggested means of strengthening the present law have been outlined by Curran in a letter to Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal. The district attorney said last night that after he had received comments from the District official he would submit the proposed new legislation to the Justice Department since prosecution in pandering cases is by the United States.

In his letter Curran said Section 3 of the law "does not permit prosecution of one who procures women for isolated acts of intercourse with different persons."

Marine Unit Wants No 'Camp Butterflies'

In the process of streamlining itself to meet modern battle conditions, the Fifth Battalion, Marine Corps Reserve, wants 50 recruits and no "camp butterflies."

After July 18, said Lieut. Col. Harvey L. Miller, commanding, the battalion will take only new men with previous military training to bring its headquarters company, three rifle companies and special weapons company to authorized strength of 80 men and three officers each.

The battalion goes to camp at Quantico, Va., August 18, and intends to do without "camp butterflies who attend the field training period but do not show the needed interest in weekly drills the year around."

WPA to Train Workers for Jobs In Arms Plants

Special Dispatch to The Post

Hagerstown, Md., July 11.—The Work Projects Administration here is going to send some of its workers to a vocational school here to develop them into skilled workers for industries working on national defense orders.

Instructions were received to send as many of them to classes being conducted at the Hagerstown High School under the supervision of the board of education, as industries could absorb here. The Fairchild Aviation Corporation, making planes for the Army, has promised jobs to a number of former high school students now taking courses at the school.

While they are taking the course WPA workers will receive laborers' pay.

Martinsburg Area To Harvest Record Crop of Cherries

Special Dispatch to The Post

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 11.—The largest sour cherry crop in the history of this growing area is expected to be shipped here during the next two weeks, according to estimates by fruit men. Movement to commercial by-products began today.

The C. H. Musselman plant at Inwood, which will handle practically the entire crop this year, yesterday announced a price of 3 cents a pound for U. S. No. 1. Men acquainted with the industry estimate that more than a million pounds of the fruit will be picked in the growing area which includes Berkeley and Jefferson counties and a small portion of Frederick County, Va.

Because of the comparatively cool weather of the past six weeks, the season for picking has been delayed from ten days to two weeks although the heavy rains of the earlier part of the year insured a good crop as to quantity.

Largest previous crop in this area was in 1937 when more than 800,000 pounds of the fruit were picked.

Congressmen Defend War Film's Showing

Collins Reveals American Firm Released Movie

Representative Collins (Democrat), of Mississippi, yesterday explained to the House the origin of the German war film which had created a mild furore when shown to Senators and members only Tuesday night. It was intended to be educational, he said.

The motion picture, which several members had labeled "pure propaganda," was German in origin, Collins admitted, but it was released by an American news reel organization, "News of the Day," which had not wanted any publicity.

Explaining that the film had been run off numerous times at the War Department, Representative Collins said:

"I felt that if it was safe for Army officers to see the picture—the men who must sacrifice their lives if war comes—and if they were of the opinion that they secured worthwhile military information from it, that Senators and members of Congress, who are responsible under the Constitution to maintain an army and navy, should likewise see the German instruments of slaughter and their operation so that we could help prepare our defense against them.

"If any member of Congress has been offended, I'm sorry. If, however, there are others who have been made to see the new dangers that lie ahead and are now more determined to so prepare our country that it cannot be overcome by a foreign foe, then I will gladly stand the criticism that may come to me.

"Our whole present day defense program is predicated upon the information that has come to us during the last two months. There is no virtue in ignorance. Let's have more movies if they tell us anything."

Several members who explained they had served in the World War arose to congratulate Collins on the showing of the film and to state that they had learned the value of mechanized military preparation from it.

"The gentleman was a pioneer in mechanizing the Army," remarked Representative Schafer (Republican), of Wisconsin. "The picture brought to me the realization that we have gotten away from the muzzle-loading days of the Civil War."

Representative Vorys (Republican), of Ohio, remarked that there was "obvious propaganda" in the film, but he added that he thought most members "could be exposed to such propaganda without succumbing to it."

Representative Johnson (Democrat), of Oklahoma, arose to say that he thought Collins had "rendered a real service to the Congress" by sponsoring the showing.

Man Kills Wife, 2 Children, Self

Mount Carroll, Ill., July 11 (AP).—A man and wife and their two children died here today in what police described as a murder-suicide. The victims were Mrs. Glenn Sack, sr., 35; Glenn Sack, sr., 35; Beatrice, 12, and Glenn, jr., 14.

Police said a relative of the Sacks found all dead in the family car parked in a garage in the rear of their home. Police said the elder Sack shot to death his wife and two children and then turned the gun on himself. A pistol was found in his hand.

Decree Places French Wealth In Nazi Control

All Foreign Exchange, Gold and Securities Affected, Says London

By Robert P. Post

Copyright by New York Times

London, July 11.—The Germans in France have issued a decree placing under German control all foreign exchange, gold and securities in the parts of France occupied by the Germans. This statement was made by the British today.

The view here is that these regulations constitute a violation of the German armistice terms which conceded all local administration to the French. It is said here that the French have the same feeling. Gen. Maxime Weygand, it is said, has protested against the order and instructed the French armistice commission to do the same.

The British, in disclosing the order, said through an official spokesman that if Hitler already has started stealing all French securities, the people could draw their own conclusions as to what he was planning to do with the French fleet.

Statements Must Be Submitted

According to the British, the German organization for control of foreign exchange has issued orders to all French banks in the areas occupied by German troops as follows:

Firstly, the banks must submit a statement of, and must not dispose of until further orders, all their reichsmarks, Dutch crowns, Belgian francs, Norwegian crowns and zlotys. All their currency and gold, all their foreign securities, all their precious stones and all their reichsmark banknotes are similarly frozen.

Secondly, all safe deposit boxes in French banks must be closed and sealed and must not be opened except in the presence of a German representative. The banks, according to the order, must submit a list of names of safe deposit box holders and their addresses. Violations, according to the British copy of this order, will be punished.

According to the general order issued by Gen. Weygand, as disclosed by the British today, the French ministry of finance maintains that "this text is contrary to the clause in the armistice which stipulates that the French government is to retain administration in the occupied territories."

Raw Materials Reported Seized

It is necessary to find out whether this order has been rescinded by Weygand, according to the British report. The British version of Gen. Weygand's order described it as saying that it was necessary to ask the Germans to rescind their instructions at the earliest possible moment.

Meanwhile, the British continued to release various reports reaching the government describing the devastating effects the occupation has had on various European countries. It is said here that stocks of raw materials have been seized and transferred to Germany for use in the German war machine. Use of what stocks are left are forbidden or greatly restricted, the British say.

The British also say it is obvious that any further food or raw materials which may reach the German-occupied country will feed the German war effort. It is said here that there is a glut of meat in Denmark because so many cattle have been slaughtered, owing to lack of foodstuffs, and that similar conditions obtain in other countries.

The British, hearing that France is going rapidly Fascist, point out that here is a parallel to be drawn between the Nazi-controlled Reichstag and the new French Parliament.

D. C. Man Among 18 en Route To Portugal

Special Dispatch to The Post

New York, July 11.—The American export liner Exochorda sailed today from Jersey City, with 18 passengers, including six American citizens, and several thousand sacks of mail and printed matter, bound for Lisbon, Portugal. It was the ship's maiden voyage in the line's Lisbon-New York service.

Among the American passengers on the Exochorda were Joseph H. Perron, of Washington, who was believed to be on a European mission for the United States Government; Judge Bert Fish, American Minister to Egypt and Saudi-Arabia; Leland B. Morris, Consul General at Vienna; Charles E. Bohlen, second secretary of the United States Embassy at Moscow, and Diary McKelvey, vice consul at Vigo, Spain. All said that they anticipated an eventful voyage before reaching their respective assignments.

Another passenger was Countess Chrystl Mittrowsky, of Prague, who said she was returning home after a six-week visit with relatives. Capt. William Habel was in command of the ship.

Mrs. King Dies At Silver Spring; Rites Tomorrow

Mrs. Gertrude Anne King, 63, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Carl Humphries, 800 Roeder road, Silver Spring, Md.

Mrs. King was born in Westmoreland County, Va., and spent most of her life at Colonial Beach, Va., until six years ago when she came to Silver Spring. Surviving, besides Mrs. Humphries, are her husband, Henry T. King, a retired employe of the United States Park Service; two other daughters, Mrs. James E. Roeder, and Mrs. William E. Marvell, all of Silver Spring; three sons, John W., and James M. King, of Silver Spring, and Stanley T. King, of Washington.

Funeral services will be tomorrow at 2 p. m. at the Pumphrey funeral home, 8424 Georgia avenue, Silver Spring. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

FBI Denies Convention Bomb Story

N. Y. Police Claims Of Finding Explosives Called 'Ridiculous'

By the United Press

Philadelphia, July 11.—The Federal Bureau of Investigation and Philadelphia authorities tonight denied that an attempt had been made to bomb the convention hall during the Republican National Convention.

Lewis J. Valentine, New York police commissioner, said that two bombs were found "near the convention hall" a few hours before the convention started. A third bomb, he told 675 detectives ordered to investigate the recent bombing at the World's Fair, was found "in a hall or a place where Communists gathered and this bomb was in the course of construction." He said that Lieut. James Pyke, of the New York bomb squad, had been sent here to aid in the investigation.

However, authorities here said no attempt had been made to bomb the hall.

At Harrisburg, however, Cecil Wilhelm, deputy Pennsylvania motor police commissioner, said:

"There is something to the reports; perhaps not so much as some think."

An attache of Gov. Arthur H. James, whose name was placed in nomination for the Presidency, said one of the bombs "was addressed to the Governor."

James, who learned of the purported bomb plot recently, was unperturbed.

"I believe I would be taking a greater chance in walking across the street in traffic than from any bomb plot," he said.

State police said evidence in the case had been turned over to the Dies Committee Investigating Un-American Activities.

The convention bombing plot gained credence when a report was published in the Philadelphia Inquirer that several bombs were found at the Municipal Auditorium.

This story brought quick denials from all sources, including John F. Sears, chief of FBI's Philadelphia office, who labeled the report false at the time and said today that it was so ridiculous that no investigation ever was made.

Sears' comment was echoed by the FBI at Washington, which said that two bombs had been found here prior to the G. O. P. conclave, but that "neither of these had any connection, directly or indirectly, with the Republican National Convention."

Union Accepts Resignation Of Dan W. Tracy

The international executive council, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, yesterday accepted the resignation of its president, Dan W. Tracy, to become Assistant Secretary of Labor.

Tracy, in his letter of resignation, urged full cooperation of the membership with Edward J. Brown, his successor as international president.

His decision to accept the Government appointment "was prompted by my conviction that labor, representative of a most substantial element of society, desires, and must be responsive to, opportunities extended for contribution to the service of Government itself," he said.

Senora de Cardenas Is Flying to Lisbon

Wife of Spanish Ambassador Hopes to Visit Relatives in Rumania and Stop in Paris If War Permits, Returning Here in Fall

By Hope Ridings Miller.

HER PLANS FOR VISITING friends in Newport and North Carolina scrapped for the time being, Senora de Cardenas, wife of the Spanish Ambassador, left yesterday by plane for Lisbon, Portugal, on the first leg of an extended European trip.

She will go to Spain and then to Rumania to visit her family. Plans for further travel on the continent are still nebulous, but if she can get to Paris, she intends to do so; and she hopes to stop in Madrid before returning home in October.

HOPE RIDINGS MILLER

After seeing his wife off yesterday, the Ambassador returned to Washington, where he expects to spend most of the remainder of the summer. Oh, there will be occasional trips to beach and mountain resorts perhaps. Chances are, he will drop in on the Marquis and Marquess de Cuevas at Newport before the season ends, and doubtless he will make other visits during July and August.

Senora de Cardenas, as you know, had planned a summer schedule that would have kept her away from Washington most of the season, anyway. If her European trip had not materialized, she was to go first to visit in Highlands, N. C.; then to Newport; from there to Narragansett and finally to Naushown Island off the coast of Massachusetts. Well, time and the Transatlantic Clipper wait for no woman's visits; so Senora de Cardenas canceled all American trips for the summer and took off for her homeland.

IT'S AN ILL WIND that blows no notables to Washington. Ever since war broke in Europe a steady stream of celebrities have been arriving in this country, and sooner or later most of them come to the Capital for a visit. In the case of Susan Ertz (Mrs. J. Ronald McCrindle), it's sooner; for she arrived in New York on Monday and is expected to come to Washington in the next few days to visit her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Coleridge Ertz.

With her husband up to his ears in war work (he's a member of Great Britain's air ministry), Miss Ertz decided to come over for a visit with her American relatives. Truth is, she made up her mind to do it several months ago, but with conditions so unsettled, her trip has been delayed a number of times.

A noted novelist, Miss Ertz was born in England; but at an early age she started crossing the Atlantic, and has pretty well divided her time between her homeland and this country ever since. Her parents were native New Yorkers, and a few years after she was born the family moved back to this country and took up residence in the pine forests of the Sierra Nevadas.

SINCE 1922, when her first novel, "Madame Claire," appeared, Miss Ertz's name and fame have grown steadily. Her best known book, "Now East, Now West," gained particularly favorable attention on both sides of the Atlantic. Shortly after the publication of a later novel, "No Hearts to Break," in 1937, she visited here briefly; was widely feted, and charmed those she met as few novelists have ever done.

Mrs. Ertz has made no plans for entertaining her distinguished sister-in-law. "I can't say how long she will be here; or what she will want to do. After she comes, we'll decide about the parties. But they will probably be few, and small."

A biographical account of Miss Ertz that came to my attention some years ago described her as one who "enjoys dancing, fishing and travel and, most of all, good conversation." Discussing her fondness for the latter, she once said, "I would rather have a new idea, even if it is given me by somebody else, than a diamond wrist watch any day."

MISS ERTZ has a sister, Mrs. Mary E. Will, who makes her home in Rochester, N. Y., and a brother, Lawrence Ertz, in Los Angeles.

CAPITAL WHIRL

By SALLY SWIFT

WASHINGTON IS MORE interesting than any summer resort at the moment, in spite of a dateline that reads "mid-vacation." Many familiar faces, whose owners can't forgo the present interest of the Capital, are to be seen about town, as well as many new ones.

Among the new arrivals is Jean Paul Boncour, nephew of the noted French statesman and jurist, Paul Boncour. The younger M. Boncour has recently been chief of the press division of the French Foreign Office and is now on duty at the French Embassy in Washington. He is widely traveled and was in Lima at the time of the Pan-American Conference which took place there in 1938. M. Boncour is au courant of things American and will speak at the luncheon of the Overseas Writers next week.

MRS. ARTHUR WOODS entertained at dinner the other evening in honor of M. Boncour, with guests making interesting after-dinner conversation until a late hour. The peaceful setting of Mrs. Woods' Georgetown home with its sloping garden of old boxwood, and the view of the Potomac beyond, was perfection on a summer evening. Also there is no hostess in Washington who is a more inspiring listener than Mrs. Woods, with her ready wit and sympathetic manner.

AMONG THOSE GATHERED to meet Jean Paul Boncour were charming Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers—she is so very feminine that I find it hard to speak of her as "Representative Rogers"— Mr. and Mrs. George Angus Garrett, Arthur Krock, Eugene Meyer and Felix Morley. Also present was Mrs. Jouett Shouse, who was very pleased with the final accounting of the funds gained by her charity fete last month. The worthy cause of occupational research for working women has benefited to the tune of some $2,400-odd. And look at the fun we all had at the out-of-door-fair which earned it!

JOE ALSOP, Washington's nice bachelor news-columnist, startled the other guests when he admitted that he has arranged to take two English babies, aged 2 and 3, to live with him in his little house in Georgetown. Remembering the past late spring when Jo, in order to do some serious writing, was forced to hire a room in a local hotel so he could escape the superior attractions of his friends and house and garden, one trembles for his literary future. Two babies at home to play with will probably mean that this amiable adopted father won't find much time for writing. However, Mr. Alsop's only immediate worry seems to be the fear that his very excellent cook may become depressed by the continual preparation of the soups and cereals of babydom and leave his employ in search of more exotic fields to conquer.

THE BRAZILIAN AMBASSADOR and Mme. Martins had a few friends for dinner the other night. The Martins are very generous with their cool and pleasant garden and never miss an opportunity of sharing it with their friends, usually asking them for cocktails or dinner as well.

The Argentine Ambassador and Mme. Espil were there, pretty Mme. Espil excited and pleased over her recent visit to the Republican convention and equally so over her forthcoming trip to the Pan-American Conference in Havana. She told Harold Hinton that in discussing the convention's choice of Willkie she had asked a friend for her opinion of that gentleman as a candidate. The friend replied that she hadn't yet made up her mind as to his merits, but that she did know that Willkie looks like a "fat Harold Hinton."

ALSO DINING with the Martins was Mrs. Walton Butterworth, jr., whose husband is second Secretary of the United States Embassy in London and who has but recently arrived in America on one of the ships which evacuated American citizens from Europe. Mrs. Butterworth plans to spend the summer at Nantucket with her two small children.

Other guests were Miss Marian Trumbull, Herbert Feis, and the First Secretary of the Brazilian Embassy and Mme. Guimaraes.

Capital Folk Begin Trek To Convention

McNutts and Slatterys Lead Vanguard To Chicago Session

All roads lead westward these days as the Democratic contingent moves on to Chicago for the national convention.

Leaving their apartment at the Shoreham Wednesday afternoon, the Federal Security Administrator and Mrs. Paul V. McNutt and their daughter, Louise, went to the Windy City to get good seats at the show.

Another early convention goer was Mrs. James M. Slattery, wife of the Senator from Illinois, who left her apartment at the Shoreham two weeks ago for her home in Chicago with the parting words, "I'll see you at the convention."

Mrs. Catherine Connor, who has just been named National Democratic Committeewoman from Kentucky for the third time, left her Shoreham apartment yesterday afternoon.

Representative and Mrs. John J. Dempsey have chosen to go on the Democrat, special train, this afternoon. Also leaving their Shoreham apartment today are Judge and Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin, who will spend convention week at their home in Oak Park, Ill.

Senator and Mrs. Harry F. Byrd and Mrs. Henry D. Flood and her daughter, Miss Eleanor Flood, will leave Sunday for Chicago, to return to their Shoreham apartment afterward.

Representative Ralph E. Church will join Mrs. Church and the children at their home in Evanston, Ill., during the convention, and probably will bring the family back to the Shoreham after the convention is over.

Miss Bartley Betrothed

Of interest to Washington is the announcement made by Maj. and Mrs. W. L. Bartley, of Texas, of the engagement of their daughter, Patricia, to Lieut. Phillip C. Rawlins, Reserve Corps U. S. A., Fort Sam Houston, Tex. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Rawlins, of Ardmore, Okla.

The bride-elect is well known in Washington, where her father was stationed several years ago. She attended Western High School here and was graduated from Texas State College for Women. She is a member of the Adelphia Sorority and was president of the Mathematics Club. Miss Bartley is also a member of the Army Daughters and the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Lieut. Rawlins was graduated from Oklahoma A. and M. College, where he was a member of the Farm House fraternity. The wedding will take place in the fall.

Harold Boyers On Bridal Tour; Married July 2

Mr. and Mrs. Harold N. Boyer are on a motor trip in New England and after July 15 will make their home in Washington. The marriage of the former Miss Alice Virginia North took place in the Little Church at Fort Lincoln in this city on July 2. Mr. Boyer is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Boyer, of Newman, Ill.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white mousseline de soie with a fingertip veil and coronet of white daisies. She carried a bouquet of gardenias and roses.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Isabelle North Miller, served as matron of honor. She wore a frosted pink taffeta gown and carried an arm bouquet of pink and blue larkspur.

A reception for the young couple was held immediately after the ceremony at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Montgomery in Arlington, Va. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Boyer, parents of the bridegroom, and his sister, Miss Verna Mae Boyer, of Newman, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. C. Frank Grim and their son, Maurice Grim; Mrs. Ella Louise North and her daughter, Miss Betty Louise North, of Winchester.

Leaving for Cape May

Brooks Studio.

MISS MARY ALICE O'CONOR,
daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Justin O'Conor, of 3757 Jenifer street, will leave next Tuesday with her parents for Cape May, where they will spend the remainder of the summer. Miss O'Conor was recently graduated from Trinity College

Former Secretary To Mrs. Hoover Visiting Parents

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Allen Campbell and their daughters, Elizabeth and Alice, of Pasadena, Calif., are visiting Mrs. Campbell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Hall, of Berwyn Heights, Md.

Mrs. Capbell will be remembered here as Mildred Hall, secretary to Mrs. Herbert Hoover during the latter's White House days. She accompanied Mrs. Hoover to California in 1933.

Mr. Campbell is the son of former Gov. Thomas Campbell of Arizona and Mrs. Campbell.

Countess Potocka Back From Europe

Countess Potocka, wife of the Polish Ambassador, arrived in Washington last evening to take up the reigns of chatelaine of the embassy and escape the German blitzkrieg.

With her son, Stanislaus, Countess Potocka arrived in the United States several days ago via Clipper ship from Lisbon. She was met in New York by her husband, Count Jerzy Potocki, who returned to Washington earlier yesterday to keep an engagement at the White House.

It has been four years since the chic countess left Washington for Europe. Following the war in Poland, Countess Potocka, with her 8-year-old son, left for Biarritz, in the south of France, well out of the zone of hostilities.

Aquatic Day Planned By Larger Life League

The League of The Larger Life will hold an Aquatic Day for its members and their friends tomorrow at its summer clubhouse on Chesapeake Bay, at Calvert Beach, Md. A program of water sports will be followed by a dinner and bonfire on the beach.

Automobiles will leave from league headquarters, 1414 Sixteenth street northwest, for the lodge at 2 in the afternoon.

Frank P. Corrigan Leaves New York Today for Caracas

The United States Ambassador to Venezuela, Frank P. Corrigan, who spent some time in Washington recently, will sail today from New York for Caracas.

For the past few days he has been at the Essex House in New York, with Mrs. Corrigan and their sons-in-law and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Archer Berry Hannah, of San Salvador, and Dr. and Mrs. Earl Pappano, of St. Louis.

Mrs. Corrigan will leave New York today for Cleveland, where she will visit relatives.

Ann Griffith Host To Sorority Chums

Entertaining at a house party, Miss Mary Ann Griffith, daughter of Postmaster and Mrs. Howard Griffith of Silver Spring, Md., will be hostess to Miss Helen Seward, of Petersburg, Va., and three of her sorority sisters at the University of Maryland. The other girls are Miss Ruth Lee Thompson and Miss Martha Rainalter, of Cumberland, Md., and Miss Nancy King, of Annapolis.

Several parties have been planned for the girls during their stay. Mr. and Mrs. Morrison Clark will entertain at a dinner tonight at their home in Rollingwood. Mr. and Mrs. John C. Livingston entertained at a dinner party last evening for the visitors and their escorts.

Miss Stella Haines Is Capital Visitor

Miss Stella B. Haines, of Augusta, Kans., is stopping at the Dodge Hotel. She is a member of the Kansas Legislature and prominent in Republican circles of her State.

Miss Haines was a delegate to the Philadelphia convention. She is active in P. E. O. and the Federation of Women's Clubs, which she serves as State president. She will be in the city over the week-end.

Starks Leaving

Mrs. Harold Stark, wife of the Chief of Naval Operations, Admiral Clark, will leave today for their summer cottage at Lake Carey, Pa. Admiral Stark plans to join his wife for week-ends.

Richardson, Dillon Wedding Date July 25

Ceremony to Take Place at Harrisburg Home of Bride-to-Be

Miss Alice Richardson has selected July 25 as the date for her wedding to Goodwin Dillon, son of Capt. and Mrs. Roscoe Dillon. The ceremony will take place in Harrisburg, Pa., at the home of the bride-elect's parents, Col. and Mrs. W. A. Richardson. Col. Richardson has been in Harrisburg serving with former Surgeon General Reynolds on the State tuberculosis board.

The wedding will be a quiet one, with only members of the immediate family witnessing the ceremony. The couple plan to make their home here in an apartment at 1603 Nineteenth street. Miss Richardson met Mr. Dillon in Panama when both families were stationed there.

Following the wedding, Capt. and Mrs. Dillon plan to spend several weeks at North Hatley, Canada.

A number of other Washingtonians are planning to spend some time this summer at North Hatley. Col. and Mrs. Brady Mitchell, who have spent the past few summers at this resort, will return this year and will have as their guests during August Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Claytor. Col. and Mrs. Julius Conrad have taken a cottage at North Hatley for several weeks.

Another son of Capt. and Mrs. Dillon took a bride several weeks ago in Honolulu. He is Lieut. Roscoe Dillon, jr., U. S. N., who was married to Miss Betty Meyers, of Washington, daughter of Mrs. Howard Meyers. They will remain in Honolulu while Lieut. Dillon is on submarine duty.

H. J. Chernocks On Bridal Tour

Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Chernock, who are now at Yarmouth, Cape Cod, on their honeymoon, will arrive in Washington the end of this month to make their home.

The bride is the former Miss Irene Ruth Hirsch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Hirsch, of Omaha, Nebr. The wedding took place last Sunday in Fall River, Mass. Mr. Chernock is the son of Mr. and Mrs. I. S. Chernock, of that city.

Miss Hirsch appeared in a pale peach marquisette bridal gown, made with long sleeves, a full skirt and a heart-shaped neckline. Miss Ann Chernock, sister of the bridegroom, was her only attendant, wearing a frock of periwinkle taffeta. Alvin Natelson, of New York, a former college roommate of the bridegroom, was best man.

The bride attended the Creighton University in Omaha and the Maret School here. For the last three years she has been active in social service work here.

Mr. Chernock, who is a lawyer with the Federal Security Agency here, was graduated with honors from Brown University in 1933 and studied law at Harvard and Columbia, receiving his law degree in 1937. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Delta Sigma Rho.

Countess Sheltered London Slum Children

Tilly Losch, Arriving in New York, Relates How She Introduced Pajamas to Evacuees Who Were Billeted in Husband's Castle

By the United Press

New York, July 11.—One of the things the war did to England was to establish Tilly Losch, the Countess of Carnarvon and possessor of the most sophisticated body sway in the art of la danse, as house mother to 100 children of the London slums.

Associated Press WIREPHOTO
plays with one of young war refugees she is caring for

The countess, who has just arrived in New York via Canada, which she reached aboard the liner Duchess of Athole along with 1,500 child refugees, explained tonight that she loves children and has a genuine feeling for them, but hopes that she will not see a child again for a long time.

The 100 youngsters, billeted at her husband's Highclere Castle in Berkshire, ranged in age from 2½ to 5 years. They had had no previous experience with pajamas or other night clothing and the countess, after buying a sufficient quantity of such, along with shoes and socks, had herself a time persuading them to wear them. It was necessary to explain that, because of the war and Hitler, no one was going to bed in his underwear any more.

The 100 kids were turned loose at Highclere Castle while Miss Losch was honeymooning with the Earl of Carnarvon, son of the Egyptologist, whom she married a couple of days before war was declared. Eventually the government set 25 guardians to looking after the children but by that time the countess' nerves were so frayed she tried to get in another branch of war service.

"I tried to get into intelligence work," she said, "but that was impossible because they have a rule which seems stupid—no one who was not born in Britain can work for Intelligence. I know everyone in England from Winston Churchill down but, of course, I was born in Vienna and they would not have me. It seems stupid because there are some things only a foreigner can do.

"Because I have been ill, almost an invalid, for a year I could not do any physical work such as serving as a stretcher bearer. My husband, who is with his cavalry regiment on the East Coast, finally insisted that I leave England. There was nothing I could do there. They would not let me visit him."

So next week she plans to visit her mother in California. That brought up the subject of the movies, but Miss Losch said she was still too war-dazed to consider a return to dancing.

"If I can do something which will help in the war effort, I will do it," she said. "But of course the only things I can do are to act and to dance. Perhaps if I can make some money that way to help out I shall do it, but up to now I have not been able to think. At night in New York I start to draw the curtains before turning on a light, then I stop and look out the windows at all the lights blazing along Park avenue and I cannot believe it. I see the smiling faces, and I am amazed."

U. S. Employes Seek 5-Day Week in D. C.

The battle of the five-day week for Government employes in the District is about to begin again.

Congressmen returning from the ten-day recess, which began yesterday, are going to find mountains of mail on that subject awaiting them. At least that's the contention of one of the local unions which says it is going to ask a public hearing.

The Civil Service Commission put the added expenditure at $56,750,000 per year. The union says the cost would be negligible.

"Lighthouse Nan," the last presentation of the Federal Playhouse, will be given in the Agriculture Department Auditorium on July 16 and 17. This will be the last performance of the drama group this season. Admission is free.

The Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce has adopted a policy of announcing to its personnel all existent and prospective vacancies in order that promotions may be made from the staff whenever possible.

It has been noticed at the Commerce Department that many employes of the Labor Department have been patronizing the cafeteria in the Department of Commerce because it is not air-conditioned, while employes of the Department of Commerce have been patronizing the cafeteria in the Labor Department because it is air-conditioned.

A "Miss Popularity Contest" is being conducted by the Department of Commerce Post No. 45 of the American Legion. The most popular woman employe of the department will be crowned on a boat trip aboard the steamship Potomac on Saturday, July 20.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation, Administrator Jesse Jones announced yesterday, will begin shortly to move into its new quarters in the modern 12-story Lafayette Building, at Vermont avenue and H street northwest. He said the moving should be completed by August 1.

Inheritance Tax Amendment Signed

President Roosevelt yesterday signed a bill amending the District inheritance tax law to exempt estates held in trust in Washington for non-residents.

The act was passed upon request of Washington bankers, who pointed out that estates were subject to double taxation when held in local institutions.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Is It Permissible for Girl to Try to Promote Friendship With Shy Man, by Issuing Invitations To Him, When He Hasn't Asked to Call on Her?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have recently met a man whose better acquaintance and friendship I would like to win. Although I do not know how old he is, I believe we are approximately the same age, and he appears to be pretty much my type of person: churchgoing, conservative, rather shy and self-conscious, living away from home and employed at "white collar" work. I do not have an opportunity to associate with him casually from day to day—hence the problem, on which I need your advice.

A girl friend and I are planning to move soon from our boarding house to a small furnished apartment, and I am wondering if it is within the bounds of propriety to invite a man (who has never asked one for a date) to dinner or an informal evening party at one's home? If so, this possibly could be done, as my girl friend is popular and sociable, and it was her idea to take an apartment where she could entertain. Also, is it permissible to extend invitations to a man acquaintance, to join a group for an outdoors affair? Your recommendations will be greatly appreciated. ANN.

DEAR ANN: Theoretically, there is nothing improper about asking a conventionally met acquaintance to call at one's home. And when making such a gesture, it is rudimentary courtesy to set a date and an hour for the call, and to designate the nature of the occasion. It is witlessly discourteous to make vague noises of hospitality, such as "Do come and see us, etc."—which leave the party of the second part without retort, not knowing whether to register interest or polite regret.

It is gracious to say, for instance, "If you are free Saturday afternoon, drop in for tea, around 5 o'clock." Or, "Do you play bridge? We try for a good game at least once a week; usually on Friday evenings, and we are always on the lookout for new material." (From this beginning, you can lead on to cinching the deal, if the man takes to the idea.)

Or, if a picnic outing is in prospect, you might say: "By the way, are you a big outdoors man? How would you like to fight mosquitos in the interest of a broiled-steak supper two weeks from this evening? Our sorority is having a picnic and men are allowed. I know the girls would go for you in a big way, if you can be persuaded to come; etc."

However, the only justification for this type of carefree, point-blank invitation, from girl to man, is the mutual conviction (already registered in conduct if not spoken in words), that the two have genuine interests in common. This conviction or foreknowledge of congeniality usually is based on some preliminary conversational exchange which, though brief or formal, causes each really to "see" the other when their paths cross thereafter.

It is doubtful whether one of your temperament can take the initiative with face-saving nonchalance, yet if the man is as interested (even though as shy) as you think he is, he probably will contrive to help you over the rough spots, once you get started. Whatever overtures you make should be negotiated well out of eye-range and earshot of old friends and relatives who know you to be a novice at that sort of thing;—since their unconsciously cruel curiosity or derision (if injected into the picture) probably would throw you into complete, unbecoming confusion, and rob the exchange of any appearance of spontaneity.

Therefore, my advice to you is to wait until you are established in your own apartment before casting your nets in the man's direction. Indeed, when newly established, that fact in itself will give you a "natural" reason for issuing an invitation to him—with the air of one now engaged in dispensing casual hospitality right and left, out of her effervescent delight in having a place of her own. M. H.

How Does Servant End Letter to Mistress?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Will you kindly tell me how a servant should end a letter to her mistress? Thank you. M. C.

According to Mrs. Post, It Ends, 'Respectfully'

DEAR M. C.: Yours is a question for Emily Post, and she has the answer ready and waiting for you on page 468 of the 1935 edition of her classic volume, "Etiquette: The Blue Book of Social Usage." According to Mrs. Post, the proper closing of a letter from servant to mistress is, "Respectfully . . ." M. H.

Professor Lists Four Main Levels Of Cleanliness

Benjamin R. Andrews, professor of household economics at teachers college, Columbia University, New York, lists four main levels of household cleanliness in his book, "Economics of the Household," as follows:

1. Entire disregard of household cleanness manifested by indifference to dust on floors, furniture, walls, and windows, to tracked-in soil on floors and floor coverings, a standard that has a cleanness efficiency approaching zero.

2. Primary esthetic cleanness, or cleanness for the sake of "looks;" windows washed because callers would see the dirt; weekly dusting of rooms and possibly furniture because "things look dusty;" annual housecleaning for traditional reasons. This standard represents cleanness for the sake of appearance primarily, with a cleanness efficiency of perhaps 25 per cent.

3. Hygiene cleanness based on the efforts of the housekeeper alone, without community cooperation. There is a regular schedule of cleaning at frequent intervals; the methods provide for dust removal, for dust exclusion and for personal habits that will minimize dust and dirt.

4. Hygienic cleanness based on community and individual cooperation. With the individual doing all that is outlined above, and with the municipality doing its full part in reducing dust and dirt, in controlling smoke, in cleaning streets and removing ashes carefully, and in preventing the ignorant housekeeper from merely transferring her dirt into the home of her neighbor, a household may achieve a cleanness efficiency in terms of hygiene and esthetics of from 90-100 per cent.

The Furniture Inspired This Costume

Your eyes haven't deceived you this time—the girl above wears the same clan's plaid she will later sit on. It's a clever idea originated by a modern furniture designer. This forecast fall suit combines a dark worsted jacket with pocket fastenings of polished brass identical in pattern to the hardware on the walnut and ash chest. The travel tweed topcoat and flared skirt repeat the bright Highland colors of the plaid wool upholstery. Rather a daring motif but one that may "click" with hostesses who like to personalize their homes and their wardrobes

Swimming Will Improve Figure Whether It Is Skinny or Fat

Girl Who Attempts To Keep Slim by Diet Alone Is Just Silly

By Ida Jean Kain

THE GIRL who struggles to keep thin by exercise of sheer will power over the calories takes on a lean, hungry expression and a plucked look about the chest and shoulders which make any man with a speck of gallantry want to rush out and buy her a nice bottle of milk!

Probably this aura of malnutrition is responsible for the more or less solid masculine objection to the general idea of reducing. And we're here to back them up in their claim that these girls would be infinitely more attractive for a little meat on their bones.

Anyone who depends entirely on a diet to keep thin is silly. Since there is proportionately much less weight on the upper part of the body, it is highly important to provide good firm muscle tissue that will fill out the hollows as the weight is reduced. It can't be done without exercise!

We're not going to get on the subject of the weather, but you can exercise and cool off—if you swim. And if you will swim three or four times a week, you will be astonished and delighted at the figure you will have by the end of summer.

Swimming is the answer to any figure problem you may have. It makes the fat slim, the thin curved. It takes off fat where you are bulgy and rounds you out where you are bony, so it's equally good whether you are too fat, too thin, or just the wrong shape.

The arm and leg strokes stretch you out slim through the midriff and remove your spare tire. Kicking flattens the tummy and slims the hips. The reach of the arms improves the bust contour and gives you a lovely pair of shoulders.

If the shallow-chested girls who won't eat for fear of gaining or who can't seem to eat enough to gain to normal weight would swim a lot this summer, they could quit worrying. Swimming would turn them into bathing beauties.

Diving is grand exercise—if you can dive

This doesn't mean the girls who indulge in rich food can swim and make free with the calories and lose weight. Nobody can forget about calories and lose. But if you swim you can look slimmer than you actually are.

Discounting figures, one of the best things about swimming is the way it helps you to relax tense nerves. When you are keyed up, take leisurely strokes—but keep moving. After 20 minutes or so you will feel both relaxed and refreshed.

Weave Gay Fern Doilies

WHAT is daintier on your table than hand-woven fern doilies? They're of cotton yarn in cheery yellow, and they're as lovely in a delicate green or a soft blue.

You weave them easily on a cardboard circle, 11½ inches across. Cut 3 notches around edge and between any two, a thirty-fifth notch.

Now, for the warp, paste yarn to center of circle, draw thread through a notch and around through adjacent notch, then across face of loom and through another two notches. Continue in this way till you've wound yarn through all notches.

Next thread needle with yarn and, starting at center, weave over and under the warp threads till you have ten rows of weaving. For the "openwork" design—with needle and the same yarn pick up two warp threads and wind yarn around them five times—spirally down from the center. Continue, using always the next two warp threads to the right, till you have four spirals.

Now reverse on the next two warp threads, winding yarn up toward center, and so on to make four spirals. Continue winding: four down, four up; six down, four up—following this order three times. Then four up, five down.

Now separate warp threads and weave four rows of spider web (simply making a loop around each warp thread). Remove doily from loom, starch, pin to ironing

Today's Health Talk

Cold Water Wards Off Fatigue Until Collapse, Swimmers Warned

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

For old and young, swimming is a joyous and splendid form of exercise. It can be used by the lame and the halt, by those whose feet are sore or whose legs are too weak or crippled to use for walking, golf or tennis.

Natural water is best—the ocean, the lake, the river. But modern hygiene and the work of sanitary engineers have made pools safe and comfortable. The bacterial content and clearness of the water, personal cleanliness of bathers, laundering of suits, maintenance of sanitary conditions on the premises have led to great reduction in infectious diseases from bathing in pools. Filtration of the water and the reduction of bacteria by ultraviolet ray or passage of the water through ozonating machines, or the chemical treatment of the water by chlorine are themselves harmless and have practically eliminated contamination of the water as a source of infection of the sinuses and ears.

Other health hazards from swimming can be prevented by the application of common sense.

Chilling of the body surface is one of these.

No Warning

The specific heat of water is high. If you had every substance on earth collected together and experimented to find how much heat it would take to get them hot, and how long it would take to cool them off, water would just about head the list. It takes heat from the body ravenously.

That is one danger of swimming exercises. Nature's warnings—getting hot and perspiration and general discomfort—which slow us up in other sports do not appear while swimming. Then the cool environment tends to ward off fatigue until finally, suddenly collapse occurs.

Even water of the temperature of 70 degrees Fahrenheit causes a chilling shock, as can be seen from blue lips and chattering teeth. And this chilling of the body surfaces causes general changes which, as Dr. H. Marshall Taylor, of Jacksonville, Fla., who has added so much to our knowledge of the hygiene of swimming, shows, reduces resistance to infection. These general body changes include a reduction in the number of white blood corpuscles in the circulating blood, constriction of the blood vessels on the surface of the body, including the mucous membrane of the nose.

Not After Meals

Swimming after meals—there has been no change in the hygienist's ideas that this is a bad thing. The blood goes to the interior after a meal and if there is any tendency to cramps there is proportionately more danger. The blood is only partially diverted to the muscles after a meal, and exercise in cold water imposes a demand that results in cramped muscles and obvious attendant dangers.

A Woman's New York

By Alice Hughes

Screen 'Panther Woman,' Kathleen Burke, Finds Radio 'Blessed Relief'

By Alice Hughes

New York, July 11.

WHO remembers the day of the "Panther Woman" on the screen? It dawned in 1932, when Paramount ran a Nation-wide contest to pick a wild but beautiful girl to play the pantheress in a passionate epic of the studio jungles. That was before Hollywood discovered the sarong, and made Dorothy Toujours Lamour the queen of the South Sea beaches at Santa Monica, Calif.

Thus the panther woman was the sarong sweetie's direct ancestor, and now the one and only original jungle queen is living here in New York, her wild ways forgotten, and playing the role of Rebekah, mother of Jacob and Esau, in a radio series of Biblical playlets. Her name is Kathleen Burke—maybe you recall her slanting and burning eyes in many a hunk of movie villainy. Now the wife of Jose Fernandez, a Spanish dancer from Mexico, she divides her time between the microphone and the care of a snappy 2-year-old son.

Kathleen was a radio actress and fashion model in Chicago when she was picked as the country's prize pantheress. In the first jungle saga she leaped about the fake wildwood in a yard of silk with every sort of naughty roles, that being Hollywood's way. "They did it to Myrna Loy for ten years, because her eyes slant," Kathleen reminds us, "And Merle Oberon was in the same spot for a long time. Six years were enough for me, and Rebekah is a blessed relief."

La Burke is happy here with her family, but misses the sunshine of the film coast. She likes the radio, and would welcome a Broadway show. She'd even go back to the movies if they'd let her play a woman that was fairly nice. No panthers, jungle or domestic. So if you want to meet a domesticated movie cat, look in on Kathleen in the role of wife and mamma. She's a dandy.

Tobe predicts that one of the fall style smashes will be the "bell" silhouette in skirts. It clings to the hip and thighs (dear me!), but just above the knee it flares into plenty of fullness, with pleats, godets or gathers. Looks like a right snappy item from this vantage point.

The Gentler Sex

By Malvina Lindsay

'Men Are So Dumb'

When you are acting icy cold,
Retreating in your shell,
To punish him for things he's done.
It's strange he cannot tell
At once the cause—not blankly ask,
"Say, aren't you feeling well?"

Today's Social Notes

(From The Truthtown Torch.)

Truthtown is virtually a desert island socially as a result of the summer exodus. Socialites, notables, upper crusters and top-flighters all have dashed madly for mountain and seashore as the heat wave has advanced.

Mr. and Mrs. Ethelbert Vanderpuffer have left by motor for a vacation in the Canadian Rockies. "We are sick of civilization," said Mrs. Vanderpuffer. "We want to get back to simple things. Besides we are both very allergic to heat."

They were accompanied by a chauffeur, secretary, maid, valet and bodyguard; also a chef and man of all work as they expect to camp along the way.

Mrs. DeLancey Duffer, who with Mr. Duffer has just returned from an Hawaiian honeymoon, has joined her parents at Mosquito Bay. Mr. Duffer, who has made a connection in trade, will bravely remain in town, commuting by airplane for week-ends with his bride.

The Rufus Van Tinsels have gone to their ranch in Wyoming, where they will "rough it" this summer. They will commute back and forth by private plane to attend week-end parties at Clamport and other Eastern resorts.

Mrs. S. Edgerton Gilderlyly and her subdeb daughter, Eloise (Snooksy) are now at Clamport and will visit Mosquito Bay, Lake Silver, the High Hat Camp in the Adirondacks and several other resorts. Mrs. Gilderlyly is already assembling names for the stag line for her daughter's debut party next Thanksgiving.

'On the Burning Deck'

Although the Ladies' Parachute Patrol has disbanded for the summer, Mrs. Badgerton Bellwether, commander, will not leave town. "There is so much to do here," said Mrs. Bellwether, "that I will try to stick it out. I feel that with my organization experience I ought to be available to serve in an advisory capacity to groups doing war or charity work. Of course I cannot do any active work but I will be very glad to advise."

Sacrifice

Mrs. Elspeth Ermine has decided to brave a Truthtown summer in order to remain with her husband.

"Elspeth gets so lonely," she said "and besides his gout has been troubling him again."

Preparatory to the summer siege, the Ermines have had their home air cooled. They will spend their week-ends at the seashore.

Mrs. Beetle's Antics

A political convention party given last night by Mrs. Bartholomew Beetle, Truthtown's eccentric grand dame, in honor of socialites who attended the Republican national convention and those who are going to the Democratic convention ended in a near riot. A Democratic isolationist, a Republican interventionist, a short-of-war New Dealer and several Willkie, Taft and Dewey supporters were assailing each other with ice cubes and olive pits when J. Hollingsworth Dripp, bachelor, gourmet and man about town, restored order by starting the guests to singing "Sweet Adeline."

Mrs. Beetle's guest list included the more fiery members of all factions represented at both conventions.

"Parties are so dull where everyone agrees," she said today in discussing the incident. "That is why I enjoy getting people together whose vibrations are not in tune."

The Careerists

Mrs. Cuthbert Daubler has closed her gift shoppe for the summer and will leave soon for her Maine cottage. Mrs. LaRue Dasher, who sells real estate, antiques, and marmalades as a sideline, will be with Mrs. Daubler most of the summer.

Two other career women who will soon be heading North are Miss Gloria Whiffle and Miss Mimi DePace, glamorous post-debs. Miss Whiffle is resigning her connection at Sailem's department store, and Miss DePace is selling out her recently opened Olde Booke Shoppe. Both girls have been induced by their parents to take a rest this summer. This fall they plan to open a Doggies' Diet Kitchen.

Mrs. John John, who restores old houses in her spare moments, will be cruising most of the summer but will resume her career in the fall. Mrs. Artemus Abercrombie has given up her volunteer job at the Children's Emergency Clinic and will rest at her Canadian summer place. She is thinking of opening an advisory style service for underprivileged girls this fall.

Alligator Pear Goes Democratic

Los Angeles.—The avocado, or "alligator pear," for years a veritable symbol of superfastidious dining, has gone democratic and is on the way to becoming a standard mainstay for even week-day dinners in modest homes, judging from figures on the industry released today by the California growers.

The once rare and expensive salad food has been developed into an item of such general consumption that the industry—relatively small and unimportant five years ago—has expanded to a point where, during the season now ending, growers were actually faced with "peak season" marketing problems

Mrs. Gilbert to Preside Tonight As Women of the Moose Convene

New Senior Regent To Conduct First Regular Session

Tonight, Mrs. Anna Gilbert, newly elected senior regent of Columbia Chapter, Women of the Moose, will preside at the first regular session of the chapter since her installation.

The local organiation, in recognition of its growth in membership and work for Mooseheart and Moosehaven during the past year, will be in charge of a three-day conference on chapter development to begin August 31 in Baltimore, with representatives of chapters in the Maryland border States participating. Mrs. Marie A. Clark, graduate regent of the local chapter, will preside.

The Women of the Moose, auxiliary to the Order of the Moose, devote themselves chiefly to the support of Mooseheart, the "city of children," established for the care and education of orphans of members of the order, near Chicago, Ill., and of Moosehaven, a similar colony for aged members, in Florida.

1,000 Growing Up In Moosehart

More than 1,000 boys and girls are growing up in Mooseheart, surrounded by all the advantages that affectionate interest in their welfare and modern methods of education can give them. They live in cottages with a house mother in charge, have schools, stores, auditoriums, playgrounds, and even a bank conducted especially for them. They are taught to share the responsibility for the work in their cottage homes from the time they are old enough to perform the simplest duties. Later they learn to do larger tasks in the Mooseheart community, gaining a practical understanding of the meaning of American citizenship.

They receive academic education and are taught a trade by which they can be self-supporting when they leave Mooseheart at the age of 18. The interest of members of Women of the Moose follows them when they leave, just as would that of their own parents.

Members of Columbia Chapter here look after Dixie Cottage, the home of 12 boys between the ages of 8 and 12. The local women have made by hand 12 quilts for the boys' beds in the dormitory, and one for the house mother. Every month a box is sent to the cottage. Last month it contained 12 kites. Each boy in the cottage has been "adopted" by a member of the chapter, who writes to him and sends him gifts on special occasions, as she would her own son. The chapter also sees that the house mother and ach boy are remembered with cards and gifts on their birthdays.

Red Cross Unit Is Organized

The chapter members do various kinds of social service work here also and recently organized a Red Cross unit for the making of surgical dressings, sewing and knitting. Mrs. Catherine Hood, social service chairman, has directed the work. Regular meeting dates at Moose Hall, 1414 I street, will soon be announced. Mrs. Hood and Mrs. Ola D. Lee, another chapter chairman, have also enrolled in a Red Cross course in home hygiene.

Mrs. Gilbert will announce her newly appointed committee chairmen tonight. They are, Moosehaven, Mrs. Olive Henderson; social service, Mrs. Catherine Hood; membership, Mrs. Dolores Thompson; child care and training, Mrs. Jane Davis; publicity, Mrs. Ola D. Lee; alumni, Mrs. Emily Giles; ways and means, Mrs. Margaret Deegan.

Mrs. Gilbert will call a meeting of chapter officers and committee chairmen at her home, 516 Oglethorpe street, next Wednesday night at 8 o'clock.

Other new officers of the chapter include: Junior regent, Miss Margaret Mitchell; chaplain, Miss Mary Jane Small; recorder, Mrs. Ethel Phythian, who is serving for the sixth time; treasurer, Mrs. Anna Sullivan; guide, Miss Mary E. Ward; sentinel, Mrs. Pauline Miller; graduate regent, Mrs. Marie A. Clark.

Madame Chairman

JUST as a helpful suggestion to those interested in organization activities, I'll pass along the outline of a set-up for a model club, presented by Mrs. Genevieve F. Macliver, finance chairman of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, at its board meeting in Asheville, N. C.

Mrs. Macliver presented the ideal of all clubwomen in what she called "Snapshots."

Here is the model club:

One with dues adequate to meet the program and other activities of the year;

One which operates on a budget and lives within that budget;

One which, if it has to raise money, does one of the three following things, raises the dues, taxes or assesses the members or undertakes some project to raise funds.

Mrs. Macliver thinks that the model club would prefer to raise the dues. "Americans," she says, "even good American business and professional women, have a pet aversion to being taxed. This stems back perhaps to the stormy days of the Boston Tea Party.

"Money raising rojects, the model club has discovered to its sorrow, take time and energy which might go into activities which would have greater value to the members of the club. Moreover, the average money-raising project generally costs individual club members more money than a direct contribution.

"Money-raising ventures to finance club work perhaps belong to the last century of progress, when women were not in the business world and to obtain funds for financing their pet projects had either to beg from their husbands or the public.

"In our model club we would choose for finance chairman and members of the finance committee women who are realists about money, who know how to make a budget and how to present a budget and other financial problems interestingly and convincingly."

Mrs. Macliver said that of the State clubs organized in the 48 States, 42 had reported to her. All but two of these state groups reporting said that they live wihin their budget. Only about one-half of the entire number of 1,625 local clubs operate on a budget.

"All in all," Mrs. Macliver said, "the reports of State finance chairmen show growth, but still indicate that we have some way to travel before the model State is a reality."

Mussey Tent, D. U. V., to Open New Headquarters on Monday

Remodeling of Building Is Completed At 2015 Massachusetts Avenue; Delegates To National Convention to Be Elected

The Ellen Spencer Mussey Tent of the Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War, on Monday night will have its first meeting in the new headquarters, 2015 Massachusetts avenue, purchased last month. Remodeling of the building is now being completed and the furnishings have been moved there from 1222 New Hampshire avenue, which has served as the headquarters for the past six years.

The new home of the organization, opposite the Walsh Mansion, now Red Cross production headquarters, really came into its own when it was purchased by the Mussey Tent. In 1902, the year the tent was formed by Ellen Spencer Mussey, the national convention of the Grand Army of the Republic was held in the Capital. Col. Worthington, a member of the G. A. R., who owned the house, turned it over to his comrades for the period of the meeting. Members of his family stayed out in Silver Spring while he filled the rooms with cots to accommodate the veterans, and left his chef and porter to look after them.

The house was part of his estate and was purchased in June, with money left for the purpose by the will of Mrs. Marie Bricker, who was a member of the tent and widow of Samuel Bricker, a Union veteran. The funds she bequeathed were originally used for the purchase of the former headquarters on New Hampshire avenue, which was sold before this was bought.

The furnishings include chairs used by the Department of the Potomac, G. A. R., in the old headquarters, located for many years opposite the Willard Hotel, on the site that is now a park. Each chair was the gift of a member of the Daughters of Union Veterans in memory of her father, and bearing his name on a memorial plate.

There will be a G. A. R. room, in which will be also the old cabinet, pedestals and altars used by the department, the badges and Civil War swords of the members, and the department records. There are now but two members of the Grand Army left in this department, Commander John M. Kline and William F. Dorsey, adjutant general and quartermaster general.

The national headquarters of the D. of U. V. is located at 1326 Eighteenth street, and there are two national officers in the District—Miss Grace Hurd, national treasurer, and Mrs. Lizzie Bassett, immediate past president of the tent and a national council member. Miss Emma Hayward, who was first president of the tent, is still an active member. There are now 240 in the local organization and 35,000 members in the 715 tents throughout the country.

The board of directors in charge of the house includes Miss Jennie Hamilton, president; Mrs. Nan Thurber, Mrs. Anna H. McElroy, Mrs. Hester Warner, Mrs. Charlotte Cary and Mrs. E. Helen Temple.

Officers of the tent are Miss Jessie M. Lewis, president; Mrs. Amelia A. Yoder, senior vice president; Mrs. Mildred F. Poore, junior vice president; Mrs. Carrie H. Doyle, chaplain; Mrs. Rahn, treasurer; Mrs. Anna Ecker, Mrs. Anna Horn and Mrs. Anna Hausman, council members; Mrs. Esther Lippold, patriotic instructor; Mrs. Anna McElroy, secretary; Mrs. Alice Roberts Koch, press correspondent; Mrs. Sylvia D. MacLaughlin, guide; Miss Ruth Scott, guard; Mrs. Catherine F. Winkelman, assistant guard; Mrs. May R. Parker, musician; Mrs. Nan Thurber, Miss Alice Lippold, Mrs. Hester Warner and Mrs. Cora Dorsey, colorbearers.

D. C. Sand Strike Throws 1,000 More Out of Work

Defense Council Assigns Aide To Listen In On Negotiations

Nearly 1,000 additional workmen have been thrown out of employment by the Smoot Sand & Gravel Corporation strike, it was estimated last night as three Federal agencies sought settlement of the four-day-old controversy.

John Locher, executive secretary of the Washington Building and Construction Trades Council, estimated between 6,000 and 7,000 workmen have been made idle by a strike involving directly only 250 employes of the corporation.

The previous estimate of construction workers affected was 5,500 with the jobs of 15,000 men and $50,000,000 worth of local and Federal construction in ultimate jeopardy.

After a long conference last night, attended by representatives of the company, the union and the Labor Department, John L. Conner, department conciliator, reported "no change" in the strike situation. There will be another meeting today at 10 a. m., he said, when "we are very hopeful of reaching a settlement."

The National Defense Council entered the picture yesterday by assigning Joseph Keenan, assistant on labor relations to Sidney Hillman, the council's labor expert, to attend negotiations of labor and company officials in Conner's office.

In reply to announcement by Thurman Arnold, Assistant Attorney General, of a grand jury investigation of the strike and the "legality of the monopoly controlled" by the company, Thomas A. Butt, treasurer of the concern, challenged Arnold to "make public the findings of the investigation which his department has recently made and thereby save the taxpayers unnecesary expense."

Butt said he would have an additional announcement to make today as Arnold's office denied such an investigation had been made here. A Department of Justice spokesman declared:

"We naturally touched on the Washington situation in our national investigation of the building trades, but we developed no tangible facts. Our inquiry was limited because of inadequate personnel."

The department, it was said, hopes to get the investigation started by Monday.

1,200 Philatheans At Syracuse For Convention

Syracuse, N. Y., July 11 (AP).—Registration for the golden jubilee convention of the World Wide Baraca Philathea topped 1,200 today as more delegates poured into Syracuse.

Though two delegates from Canada have arrived, William Camelford, of Dunnville, Ontario, world wide president, and the main body of Canadian delegates remained across the border from Buffalo, N. Y., unable to obtain visas to enter this country. Camelford kept in close contact with the convention by wire and telephone and hoped tonight to attend the main business session before close of the convention Sunday.

Most of today's session was given over to a bus sightseeing trip. Edward Barrett, of Alexandria, Va., treasurer of the world wide board of trustees, was a leader at a secret prayer meeting and Mrs. Frank Brown, of Richmond, Va., led in panel discussions for seniors and young people.

Montgomery's Willkie-Nice Club Maps Campaign

Efforts to make Montgomery County go Republican in the coming election were mapped last night by officers of the Willkie-Nice-Johnson Club, with plans to communicate in person or by mail with all registered voters of both Republican and Democratic parties.

At the home of the club's president, Meredith M. Daubin, in Kenwood, Md., the group held a joint meeting with the campaign committee of Montgomery County, appointed by the Republican State Central Committee. An executive committee was set up, to include the five officers and seven other members.

Four of the seven were announced last night: Paul Coughlin and Merton English, Silver Spring; Richard Barker, Westmoreland Hills, and Charles S. Stock, Bethesda.

The club will set up headquarters in Bethesda next week.

Downtown Crash At Dinner Hour Injures Four

Four automobile passengers were hurt yesterday in a two-car crash that tied up dinner-hour traffic at Thirteenth street and New York avenue northwest.

Treated at George Washington University Hospital were the driver, Mary Bove, 26, and three passengers, Adeline Bove, 45; Mary Luzi, 44; Louise Minisi, 23, all of Newark, N. J. Michael Bove, 16, escaped injury, as did the operator of the other auto, Walter O. Colvin, 35, of Colmar Manor, Md.

Seven-year-old Marie Evans, of 417 Second street northwest, was knocked down by a taxicab yesterday when she ran into the street in front of her home. The cab driver, Theodore G. Beuhler, 39, of 47 R street northeast, took her to Sibley Hospital, where she was treated for brush burns to her legs and head injuries.

Jokers Harass Ambulance Men

Five ambulances answered a call for aid at the home of Park Policeman Bernard J. Beckmann, 4520 Fifth street northwest, last night. On arrival they found that no one in the family had phoned for help.

It was an old story to the drivers. And they're getting fed up with the practical jokers who for the past few weeks have been imperiling lives by sending ambulances screaming through Washington streets on fake calls.

Most of the ambulance service companies have been able to check up on calls and spot the phonies, but frequently the checkup system fails to uncover the fraud.

At 11 p. m. last night someone called one of the companies with the most efficient check-up systems, and impersonating another company, requested an ambulance at 4118 Seventh street northwest where Irving Gordon runs a grocery store. The ambulance was sent out on its fake errand of mercy to find a dark, empty grocery store.

Police have told the ambulance companies they are powerless to stop the business. Last night the men who frequently endanger their own lives to save others requested jokers to cut out their monkey shines for the sake of good sportsmanship.

Oram Asks Retirement From D. C. Service

Capt. Hugh P. Oram, director of inspection for the District since 1932 when the job was created, has filed an application for retirement due to physical disability, it was revealed yesterday by the Commissioners.

CAPT. ORAM

If the retirement is granted, the Commissioners are expected to abolish the job and transfer the duties to the office of building inspector, according to tentative plans reported at the District Building.

Capt. Oram, suffering from asthma, has been absent from work for six months. He is now in Florida. He served with the District as an Assistant Engineer Commissioner prior to his appointment as director of inspection.

Nurse Sues Rink After Skating Fall

Miss Anna Turek, Long Island City, N. Y., nurse, sued in the District Court yesterday for $5,000 for injuries she said she suffered in a fall while roller skating.

Visiting her sister, Stella Turek, 1364 Rittenhouse street northwest, last September, Miss Turek said, she went skating at the Capital Casino, 430 Delaware avenue southwest. She blamed defective skates for a fall in which she broke her wrist.

Her complaint, filed by Attorney Degrees, asks damages of S. G. Loeffler, jr., and Edward J. Farr, operaters of the Casino.

Officer Robbed In Court by Boys

Arthur Waller, 124 Randolph place northwest, a District probation officer, reported to police yesterday that his gold watch was stolen in Juvenile Court yesterday. He suspected a youth on probation and his companion.

While police were seeking the 15-year-old boys, they had gone to the store of Gustave Hartig, 509 H street northeast, and stolen two dozen eggs, police said. They tried to sell the eggs to Mrs. Lena Jacobs, who runs a store at 705 H street northeast, two blocks from that of Hartig, her brother-in-law.

Suspicious, Mrs. Jacobs called police. The boys fled, police said, but were caught by Motorcycle Private Charles Scott, who recovered eggs and watch.

The Tune's the Same, Words Are Different

Downtown pedestrians were somewhat startled yesterday noon on hearing what they believed to be the German national anthem, "Deutschland Uber Alles," ringing out from the tower of the Church of the Epiphany, 1317 G street northwest.

One citizen, in fact, was so startled that he called The Post "Can you hear those chimes," he asked? "I suspect there's a fifth columnist in the belfry."

Church officials scoffed at the implication. They explained that the tune was No. 468 of the Episcopal Hymnal, "Glorious Things of Thee Are Spoken, Zion, City of Our God," the music for which was written by Franz Joseph Haydn.

The Library of Congress music division threw some light on the matter. There it was pointed out that the melody of the hymn, composed by Haydn, was later adopted by the Germans for "Deutschland Uber Alles."

Winter on Way! Thief Takes 2 Stoves

Apropos yesterday's record heat—Charles S. Shreve, 3219 Klingle road northwest, reported to police yesterday that a house at 1631 Third street northwest, which he owns, was looted yesterday. The thief took two stoves.

'Lost Wagon Train' Found by Police

"The Lost Wagon Train" was at the Ninth Precinct Station last night, but none of the officers knew what to do with it. They've sent word over the police teletype system, but so far no one has claimed it.

Bound in a bright back and written by the late Zane Grey, the volume was one of half a dozen found in the possession of a 10-year-old colored boy Wednesday by Detective Irving Lubore.

2 Policemen Found Guilty In Rockville

Trial Board Fines Pair for Failing Duty in Mob Case; Restored to Jobs

After deliberating two hours, the Montgomery County Police Trial Board at Rockville, Md., early today found two policemen guilty of failing to prevent a breach of the peace in connection with the mobbing of a meeting of Jehovah's Witnesses in the town June 19.

The officers were Leslie B. Thompson, fined $250, and Charles Peter, fined $150. Both were restored to duty after having been suspended pending the trial.

B. Peyton Whalen, chairman of the three-man trial board, explained the penalty against Peter was smaller because of his inexperience. He was appointed to the force March 15. Thompson has been on the force for three years.

30 Witnesses Heard

The trial board heard the testimony of more than 30 witnesses. The trial started at 10 a. m. and continued, with recesses for lunch and dinner, until 10:30 last night. Charges of shirking their duty and conduct unbecoming an officer were dismissed against both officers.

Taking the stand in their own behalf, Thompson and Peter denied they had stood "with arms folded" while the mob broke up furniture in the sect's meeting hall when the Witnesses declined to salute the American flag.

The accusation was made by Bernard L. Rowe, of Silver Spring, one of two sect members, who were taken into "protective custody" following the riot.

Thompson told the Trial Board he was telephoning to his superior officer, Sergt. Guy Jones, when the mob surged into the meeting of the religious sect. Sergt. Jones was acquitted of charges of neglect of duty by the Trial Board Wednesday.

"As I crossed the street," Thompson said, "I saw a man with a club on a balcony outside the meeting room. I was afraid he would hit one of the mob and cause bloodshed, so I first tried to get out on the balcony, but the door was locked. The son of the owner of the store downstairs unlocked the door, but when I reached the balcony the man was gone. Then I went to the meeting room and ran everybody out, turned out the lights and locked the door. I didn't see anybody destroying property."

Feared Mob Action

Asked by Prosecutor Joseph Simpson if he didn't think the mob could have been stopped if either of the officers had stood on the narrow stairway leading to the meeting room, Officer Thompson replied: "If Officer Peter or I had stood on the stairway, we might have hit about four people with our night sticks, and then that would have been the end of us. That was a drinking mob, just waiting for a spark."

Thompson testified that he requested the Witnesses to salute the flag "to avoid trouble." When they refused because of their religious belief against the worship of "graven images," he said, he returned to where the crowd was assembled and warned against breaking into the meeting, which was largely attended by women and children.

Elwood Ritchie, jr., who said he was attending his first meeting of the sect, admitted he fled to the balcony outside the building when the mob stormed at the door of the meeting hall.

"I grabbed a piece of wood off the floor," he said. "I was so scared I didn't know whether I was picking up a stick or a shotgun."

Tick Fever Hits 3 In Prince Georges

Dr. J. M. Byers, acting health officer for Prince Georges County, revealed yesterday that three cases of Rocky Mountain spotted fever have been reported in the county within the past month.

There has been one death from the disease in Montgomery County, and another in the District this year.

Alexandria Invokes Sunday Labor Code

Only Necessary Businesses Allowed To Remain Open

All business establishments in Alexandria, not classified as community necessities, will be closed Sundays, beginning at once, Thornton J. Goods, northern Virginia inspector for the State labor department, said yesterday.

Only restaurants, drug stores, gasoline stations and other "necessary" establishments, will be exempt. Goods said he was ordered by Labor Commissioner Thomas B. Morton to enforce the law after numerous complaints from Alexandrians were received, including charges of violating the State wage-hour law.

A preliminary survey, he said, indicated about 30 businesses, including groceries, hardware stores and novelty shops, as well as building contractors, have been operating Sundays. Under Section 4570 of the Virginia Code, violation of the Sunday closing statute is classed as a misdemeanor, punishable by a minimum fine of $5 and costs.

Takoma Park Club Fetes Bride-Elect Member Tonight

The Orchard Club of Takoma Park, which has been meeting annually since it was formed 20 years ago, will honor one of its charter members tonight who is to became a bride next week.

The reunion will be held for Miss Lucille Stockberger, of 529 Cedar street northwest, who will be married to Earl W. Boyer, of Philadelphia, July 20. The gathering will be in the home of Mrs. Elnathan Kemper Nelson, 5 Belmont court, Sligo Park Hills, Md.

Miss Stockberger recently resigned as registrar of American University school of public affairs.

5 Downtown Parking Garages For District Urged by Hazen

Action on Recommendations to Relieve Traffic Congestion Is Deferred Pending Report; Methods of Financing Not Discussed

Erection of "at least five" parking garages in the downtown area was recommended yesterday by Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen.

He came to the District Building yesterday, although he is under doctor's orders to rest at home, to pursue the problem of eliminating traffic congestion and the need for off-street parking facilities in the downtown area. He has long been an advocate of off-street parking facilities in the form of parking garage buildings.

A conference was held with Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways, and Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor, at the completion of which it was decided to await the final report of the traffic survey board. The board is studying all phases of traffic in cooperation with the Public Roads Administration.

Under the plan proposed by Commissioner Hazen, the District would select certain sections of the city where the buildings could be erected, purchase the land, and place the garages under city supervision.

"One way to eliminate the problem of parking is to eliminate entirely all parking in the downtown area," Hazen said, "This, however, would affect adversely all business houses with the net result that property values in the downtown area would decrease and the city would lose in real estate taxes."

Methods of financing the project, which would run into millions of dollars, were not disclosed. The three officials did agree, however, that a nominal fee would be charged to customers of the parking garages.

Hazen also suggested the need of additional parking meters, pointing out that the mechanisms have worked out very well."

Capt. Whitehurst said the survey would be completed sometime this fall and would contain recommendations for locations, costs and other features of parking garage buildings, which were specifically requested by Congress in the 1941 Appropriations Act.

Beetle Blitzkrieg Gains on Farmers In Prince Georges

In the face of an unprecedented invasion on all fronts, Prince Georges residents are carrying on a merciless war against the Japanese beetles.

Antibeetle fortifications in the form of metal traps have been strategically placed at 28 towns in the county, County Agent P. E. Clark revealed in his latest communique yesterday. Spray guns have been issued to a large number of civilians.

In spite of these precautions, which last year caused more than 104 tons of beetle casualties in Maryland, the enemy is advancing. Destruction of property and foodstuffs by the insects has reached an all-time high, Clark said.

Girl Sharpshooter Fined in Hagerstown

Special Dispatch to The Post

Hagerstown, Md., July 11.—The police said Miss June Chalmers was sharpening up her aim by shooting at a tin can with a rifle in the back yard of her home. The defendant said she was only shooting at rats. Even if she was practicing in preparation for parachute troops, a local ordinance prohibiting the discharge of firearms within the corporate limits cannot be overlooked, said Magistrate Harry E. Snyder, in fining her $1.

Child-Placing Control Bill Must Wait

Action Goes Over At Least Until Fall; Welfare Board May Revise Draft

The proposed bill to check commercialized baby placements in the District appeared doomed yesterday to langish in inaction, at least until fall.

Robert E. Bondy, District welfare director, explained the delay by saying that the draft of the bill may be revised by the Board of Public Welfare to make it "more inclusive."

The bill, as drafted by groups in the Council of Social Agencies, provides for licensing of child-placing agencies or individuals. The Board believes "the bill should include child-caring agencies, also," Bondy said.

"We shall have to consult with child-caring agencies to get their viewpoints before we revise the legislation, and that will take time," Bondy said yesterday there was no danger that the measure would not be kept "alive" in the interval of possible revision.

To social workers' concern over the bandying of babies by commercial agents, was added public indignation after The Post printed a series of articles, "Babies for Sale."

"We are moving as fast as we can, but personally I don't think there is much prospect of the bill being introduced at this session of Congress—at least not until fall," Bondy said.

The "attitude up there" is not to take on any more District legislation at present, especially any of a controversial nature, he pointed out.

The bill has been referred by the board to its child welfare committee, head by Mrs. Spencer Gordon, who is out of town at present. Other committee members are Daniel O'Donoghue, jr., and Mrs. Milton King.

The draft of the bill was first considered by the board at its April 29 meeting, after it had been sent to the board by the Council of Social Agencies. At that time the board indorsed the purpose of the proposed legislation, but registered sentiment for including child-caring agencies.

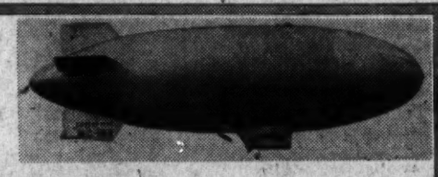
Odd Jobs:

Piloting Gas Bag Is Comdr. Lange's



COMMANDER LANGE AT CONTROLS OF BLIMP

Fifteen hundred men, women, and children on ice-locked Tangier Island in Chesapeake Bay faced starvation.

For more than two weeks all communication had been cut off with the mainland. Coast Guard cutters tried vainly to work their way through the 8-inch ice, then halted to wait for ice-breakers. Army and Navy planes could find no place to land.

Food sufficient for one more day remained when a strange and wonderful sight greeted the dumfounded natives.

The Goodyear blimp Enterprise floated serenely over the ice. In a few minutes it settled to a landing and its skipper handed out 1,100 pounds of life-saving flour, coffee, condensed milk, and canned goods.

The skipper in question was Commander Karl L. Lange, United States Navy Reserves, of 3700 Massachusetts avenue northwest. He has other and equally spectacular feats to his credit—battling through Atlantic gales aboard the Hindenburg with Commander Hugo Eckener, riding out a 90-mile-an-hour hurricane that threatened to rip the tiny Enterprise from its moorings at New Brunswick, N. J., another rescue in Chesapeake Bay six months ago, this time to take a passenger off a boat in danger of breaking up in the ice.

But to Lange these are only unimportant sidelights in the five years he has piloted the Capital's only dirigible, watching from the air the rising buildings and mushrooming suburbs that mean the growth of a city.

Every 20 minutes on clear days husky, 52-year-old Lange takes a group of sightseers aloft. Clear weather to the blimp skipper means a "ceiling" of at least 1,500 feet with a visibility of not less than three miles. The flying deadlines were set to afford passengers an adequate view of the Capital for their $3 fare. Without passengers, Lange would take off in "anything short of a hurricane," he says.

THE TAKE-OFF

The 125-foot bag rises swiftly from old Hoover Airport and heads across the Potomac toward the National Cathedral. The blimp flies at an altitude between 1,000 and 1,200 feet, her air speed indicator hovering around 45 miles. Top speed is 65 miles per hour.

Nosing over Griffith Stadium for a glimpse of the ball game, Lange can throttle down the ship's motors so that it seems to stand motionless. Held up by its 123,000 cubic feet of helium, the blimp maintains its altitude and drifts less than 20 miles per hour.

This "maneuverability" is one of the most important features of the blimp. This it was that enabled Lange to effect the Chesapeake Bay rescue of last February. It would be no less valuable for such duties as spotting mines, or submarines, Lange points out.

Once each day Lange pilots the Enterprise on an "overtime" trip of 45 minutes—the time allotted the hard working ground crew for lunch. He must stay aloft then because there is no one on hand to haul the blimp to its landing. Carefully skirting the Federal buildings' zone over which airships are barred, the skipper recrosses the river and prepares to land after preliminary instructions to the field via the blimp's two-way radio system.

This is the tricky part of the flight, particularly if the "whirlwind" air currents, of the riverside airport seize it as it comes down.

In that case for the benefit of the little old lady in the third seat, Commander Lange waves away the ground crew ready to catch the lines and moves off to come in again. But most of the passengers seem to have few qualms. You get the idea it would take a pretty stiff gale to down any ship piloted by the cool veteran who skippers the good ship Enterprise—George Thorpe

ENTRANTS IN THE HOOVER PLAYGROUND BABY BEAUTY CONTEST

Tigers Bow to Nats' Rookie Hudson, 7 to 3

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

In refreshing contrast to the bombast that emanated from the fight camps of Tony Galento and Max Baer before their late and unlamented "Battle of the Bums" are the thoroughly sane prefight statements of Henry Armstrong and Lew Jenkins.

POVICH

They have a fight to fight on July 17 and beyond being dead-serious about it, they are making no recriminations. They are not promising to "moider" any "bum" or chase anybody out of the ring. Not a threat has been made. Jenkins has said, simply, that he knows he'll be meeting the best fighter he's ever been up against. Armstrong, in reiterating his respect for Jenkins, wasn't building up the gate for the simple reason that the fight is a natural and requires little build-up.

At the promoters' request whenever he was meeting a push-over, Joe Louis would take pains to cast a deliberate doubt on his own ability to win the fight, but no such ballyhoo on Armstrong's part is required for the Jenkins fight. Jenkins is already an attraction, a better one perhaps than Armstrong, himself.

So Armstrong must be taken at his word when he says, as he did, the "because I took Ceferino Garcia's hardest punch without caving in is no reason for me to feel that I'll be able to take one of Jenkins' explosives. After all, I'm only human, and if Jenkins happens to nail me right, I suppose I'll go out the same as any one else." Anybody but Armstrong would be thrown out of the guild for any such prefight statement as that.

Armstrong says that he doubts that Jenkins is any harder hitter than Garcia, but the chances are that he will stand corrected on that point after the fight . . . if he is, indeed, standing. We've never been socked by either guy, but Armstrong may have our word for it that Jenkins hits harder than Garcia. We make our estimates from ringside views. Garcia's bolo punch carries none of the dynamite of Jenkins' straight right.

We find it easier to agree with Armstrong when he says "I certainly don't intend sticking my chin out for Jenkins to hit. I don't believe in trifling with fate. 'I think I know how to protect myself against Jenkins' big punches.' I plan to carry the fight to Lew from the start, stay inside and wear him down with body punches. I doubt if he will be able to hold up very long under the pace I intend to set."

If Armstrong does stick out his chin, it will be a new kind of Armstrong in the ring. The thing he does best, aside from his ceaseless punching, is tucking his chin on his breast bone away from a clean shot. In two fights, Lou Ambers could never reach Armstrongs' jaw squarely, and Jenkins, who is a stand-off fighter, has even less chance. It's easy to agree with Armstrong, too, when he says he'll try to stay inside and wear Jenkins down. It's the only kind of fight that he knows.

Jenkins' reputation was made, of course, by his three-round knockout, of Lou Ambers, who had beaten Armstrong for the lightweight title a year before. Ambers, too, was supposed to be a clever boxer, but Jenkins had little difficulty planting his Sunday punches on Lou's chin. However, Ambers that night was overwhelmed with the speed of Jenkins' attack and tried to clown himself out of danger by sticking out his chin. Armstrong will indulge in no such antics, you may be sure.

It's a proud name that Jenkins is carrying into the ring, and he has gone to the trouble to cite the fame of the Jenkins' in various vigorous callings. He says that the best rough and tumble fighter in and around Brownwood, Tex., a decade ago, was his uncle, Elmer Jenkins, and he is related, too, to Tom Jenkins, the world's catch-as-catch-can champion when wrestling was competitive and not exhibitionism.

A raw-boned little spot of a guy named "Wild Will" Jenkins, out of Jackson Hole, Wyo. could outride, outshoot and outfight any man in that bad country 35 years ago, says Lew, and one Lem Jenkins, a 135-pound lumberjack, could sink a double-edged axe deeper than any man in the Northwest. He held the record at splitting and piling a cord of green wood in fast time.

In the picturesque Alaska days of Rex Beach and the late Tex Rickard, one Joe Jenkins was known as the man who could mush farther in a given length of time with a heavier pack on his back than any of the hardy prospecting adventurers along the trails leading out of Nome. And the last word in endurance records in the dangerous pastime of auto racing is held by Ab Jenkins, of Salt Lake City, who has driven 24 hours without relief at 80 miles an hour and holds 290 racing marks.

Lew Jenkins has all the clippings to prove the fame of the Jenkins' but on the evening of July 17 the last thing we expect of Henry Armstrong is that he will be abashed.

On the Line

—With CONSIDINE

New York, July 11.—Sweet charity, whose front teeth have been kicked in by generations of remorseless sports promoters, who staged events supposedly in her name, will make some kind of a record comeback in this area during the coming weekend.

CONSIDINE

Saturday, Bobby Jones, greatest figure in golfing history and one of the two or three greatest individuals in sports annals, returns to competition long enough to play an exhibition at the Lido Country Club, out on Long Island. Sunday afternoon the all-star game of polo will be played at International Field, Meadow Brook.

The thing that distinguishes each event is not that Jones has been missing from such matches for a decade, nor that the world's best polo players will engage in the season's hottest match. The thing that distinguishes these charity events is that they are actually charity events. Every dime that is realized from them will get to the Red Cross. The polo players are so altruistic about the whole thing that they will pay their way into International Field, for the right to play.

It has been a long time since Jones was around this way, though he won the fourth and final championship of that amazing 1930 season right down the railroad tracks at Merion. He looks about the same—"The greatest swing in the history of golf, etc." What has gone from him is the old killer instinct. Golf has become a pleasant game for him, instead of a coldly fiery ordeal.

Jones was down in the 60's a couple of times while tuning up for the masters—his lone annual appearance in late years. But he came down with an ache when the tournament started and only recently has he shaken it off. He'll be down there in those low "70's" for certain, and a new generation can witness the well-preserved remains of the most thrilling golf game ever assembled in one human hide. Jones will play with Jimmy Thomson, Horton Smith and Charles Mayo.

The warring polo teams were chosen by Devereux Milburn, wearer of the most distinguished name in sports. For the Meadow Brook team he selected Mike Phipps, Jimmy Mills, Stewart Iglehart and Billy Post. On the Bostwick field team he placed Pete Postwick, Cecil Smith, Ebby Gerry and Bob Gerry. The handicaps of each team amount to 32 goals. We won't explain that except to say that it knocks polo fans off their walking-stick seat. Rarely, if ever, have so many outstanding players galloped on the same field together. It is certain to be the roughest piece of sports business seen around here in years.

Speaking of playing for nothing, the boxing boys are giving off some high-sounding threates these days, but never getting around to making the threats good. Max Baer threatened to flatten Tony Galento at the weigh-in. Galento came down to Mike Jacobs' office after the fight, to say he'd fight Baer for exercise, if Mike would only rematch them. Lew Jenkins told us the other day that his ambition is to get Pete Lello in a gymnasium and get even with Pietro for knocking him out last year. Now we hear from Lello, via his manager Issy Kline.

As alert as an undertaker at a G. A. R. convention, Kline writes: "I'm ready to accept the challenge that Jenkins issued and will let my fighter fight him in any gymnasium Jenkins chooses. The audience would be limited to reporters. Or if Jenkins prefers an alley, with no gloves, I'd suggest that he enter into this kind of scrap with Lello after the Armstrong fight. I'd hate to see my fighter spoil a good show for Uncle Mike.

"I've already sent you the clippings to substantiate my claims that Lello knocked Jenkins out, and did not win by a technical kayo as Jenkins claims. I'm enclosing other clippings to prove this. Now I hope Jenkins goes through with his challenge, and I can asure you that my boy is ready anytime, any place."

Detroit Falls Out of Lead; Griffs Move From Cellar

Hudson Wins Fifth Straight for Nats, Drives in 2 Runs; Newhouser Chased

By Shirley Povich.

Post Staff Writer

An important figure in American League circles yesterday was Rookie Sidney Hudson, of the Nats. The tall, gangling kid pitcher hauled the Detroit Tigers out of the league lead, he lifted the Nats out of the cellar and he achieved his fifth straight pitching triumph in the majors.

He beat the Tigers, 7 to 3, which enabled the Cleveland Indians to take over first place and the Nats to vacate eighth place. He was not took busy, either, to rap a two-bagger against the distant centerfield wall to drive in two important runs in his own behalf yesterday.

Behind Hudson, the unpredictable Nats romped to victory over the Tigers. They hammered Detroit's prize rookie, Harold Newhouser, out of the box in two innings, and gathered the last seven of their eleven hits against expensive Freddie Hutchinson, recently recalled from Buffalo to aid the Tigers in their pennant (?) drive.

The Tigers did not act or react like any pennant winners yesterday. They were kicking the ball around to a degree not altogther described by the two errors they were charged with, and seven of their nine blows were mere singles. They were also guilty of antics on the bases charitably described as quaint.

Given his four-run lead in the second inning, Hudson gave up a run in the third, and then pitched three innings of hitless bal. By that time the Nats had all of their seven runs and the big rookie was coasting at the finish.

Gee Walker Doubles

A spell of wildness precipitated Newhauser's downfall in the second inning, when the Nats stirred up four runs after two were out. He walked Travis and Pofahl, and Rick Ferrell produced the first run of the game with a single to left. Then it was that Hudson, who used to be some shucks as a hitter in the Class D Florida State League, swatted a long two-bagger against the fence in center scoring two more runs. Hudson scored when Case delivered a single to left. Lewis followed with a single that Gehringer knocked down and the rally ended when Case wandered too far past third and was thrown out by Gehringer.

Gee Walker greeted Newhouser with a double to left in the third inning and scored a cheap run with the help of Dick Bartell. Disdaining a sacrifice, Zeke Bonura flied to rightfield and Walker moved to third after the catch. When Bartell muffed Fox's throw from the

Bobby Doerr's Sixth Homer of Season Does It; Cronin Benched

By the Associated Press

Boston, July 11.—After being dropped from lead-off man to seventh place in the batting order, Bobby Doerr gave the Red Sox a 3-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox today by blasting his sixth homer of the season as first man up in the thirteenth inning.

Doerr surrendered his usual batting position after Manager Joe Cronin, who is suffering from a head cold, benched himself in favor of Tom Carey, his understudy.

The Red Sox used three pitchers against Johnny Rigney, who limited them to seven hits. The Red Sockers went ahead in the third inning, scoring twice on a pass, two bunts, Doc Cramer's fly and a wide throw by Joe Kuhel.

Kuhel lashed out his thirteenth homer in the fourth inning and the Chisox tied up the game against Starter Herb Hash in the eighth when Taft Wright bounced a double off the centerfield wall and scored on Luke Appling's single.

Cronin entered the game as a pinch hitter in the eleventh, but struck out with the winning run on second.

Indians Down A's and Take Over 1st Place

Keltner's Homer With 2 On Cinches Game for Cleveland

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, July 11.—Kenny Keltner's homer with two on in the seventh inning gave the Cleveland Indians an 8-to-5 victory over the Athletics before a ladies' day crowd of 13,206 at Shibe Park today.

The win put Cleveland into first place in the American League as Detroit lost to Washington.

The Indians pounded out 15 hits off Chubby Dean and Ed. Heusser, including three homers by Keltner, Ben Chapman and Lou Boudreau, but had their hands full. Three double plays stoppped the A's at critical times. The last twin killing came in the sixth when the A's had the bases full, one out and Cleveland ahead, 5-4. Boudreau made a spectacular stop of Al Brancato's sharp grounder to start the double play.

Although relieved by Joe Dobson in the sixth, Al Milnar got credit for his twelfth win of the year. Frankie Hayes hit his eleventh homer for the A's in the eighth.

Reds Defeat Dodgers, 6-5, In Night Battle

See-Saw Game For League Lead Marred by Rain

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, July 11.—In a game started in the rain the Reds trimmed Brooklyn, 6 to 5, tonight, running their victories to six straight and increasing their lead to a length and a half over the second-place Dodgers.

With first place at stake, Cincinnati batters jumped on three Flatbush hurlers for 11 hits to give Bucky Walters his twelfth victory of the season and his third in a row.

It was anybody's game until the last, although Walters allowed but five hits. Ival Goodman singled in Eddy Joost to break a 5-all tie in the eighth inning and provide the winning run.

The Dodgers capitalized on a walk, a wild throw and Joe Medwick's long fly for two runs in the first. The Reds came back with a series of singles off Whitlow Wyatt to score three times in their half of the round.

Vito Tamulis finished the game for the Dodgers but Presnell was charged with the defeat.

Sports Writer Loses Shirt Button in Scuffle With Newsom

Detroit Pitching Ace, Bob Ruark Tangle In Locker Room; Onlookers Call It a Draw

Buck Newsom, big pitching ace of the Detroit Tigers, was claiming his thirteenth straight victory last night, but unprejudiced eyewitneseses gave him no more than a draw in a pre-game scuffle yesterday with Bob Ruark, Washington News baseball writer.

Newsom and the sports writer tangled in the Detroit dressing room after the Tigers completed their pregame practice, and the premises were in an uproar for two minutes before peacemakers rushed Ruark from the room to rescue him from a mass onslaught by the Detroit players.

Ruark entered the Tigers' locker room to discuss with Newsom a story to which the big pitcher had objected and when the writer admitted its authorship, Newsom called him various and assorted names. As the pitcher doubled his fists, Ruark fended him off with a straight left and Newsom rushed for Ruark.

Attracted by the suffle, Paul (Dizzy) Trout, another pitcher, dashed the length of the room to pounce on Ruark, who had stumbled to the floor. A half-dozen Detroit players grabbed Ruark while Shirley Povich, another newspaperman, attempted to localize the battling. In the typical fate of innocent bystanders, Povich was struck on the back of the head. He was unhurt.

Neither Newsom or Ruark were marked. The extent of the damage was a button ripped from Ruark's shirt.

Manager Del Baker, of the Tigers, was not in the locker room at the time. Peace was restored chiefly by the efforts of Catcher Birdie Tebbetts.

Vines Beaten In Western Amateur Golf

Tennis Pro Loses On 4th Extra Hole; Goodman, Ward Win

By the Associated Press

Minneapolis, July 11.—Ellsworth Vines, of Pasadena, Calif., the tennis star, made the mistake of taking on the smallest player in the forty-first annual Western Amateur Golf Tournament at his opponent's own game today.

The Californian, who stood head and shoulders over little 100-pound Bobby Campbell, Minneapolis, bowed out in 22 holes in a second-round match, the longest set-to of the day. Two rounds of play today reduced the original field of 64 to 16 for two additional rounds on Friday.

While yielding physical advantages to Vines, Campbell gave away nothing in ability to play to golf and after missing a 6-foot putt on the eighteenth green fought back until on the twenty-second hole where Vines missed the green and needed a bogie four to lose. The two players had 75's at the end of a regulation 18 holes.

Two-Time Champ

Campbell's victory was not thoroughly unexpected despite his size, since he has been a thorn in the side of the big boys in Northwest golf circles for quite a while. He twice has held the Minnesota amateur championship.

The two rounds of play today failed to produce a single major casualty. With all the favorites still in the field, including Harry Todd, of Dallas, Tex., the defending champion, who got a scare and had to finish a birdie and a par before gain-

Team Threatens Strike as Manager Is Given Release

By International News Service

Fremont, Ohio, July 11.—The Fremont Green Sox baseball players of the Ohio State League threatened a strike today as the directors of the club released Manager Ray Caldwell, former Cleveland and New York pitcher.

Garland Sewell, 22, second baseman, was appointed in Caldwell's place as player-manager.

R. J. Rectenwald, club president, who was instrumental in hiring Caldwell, resigned.

Assistant Pro Tourney Scheduled July 31 at Woodmont Club

Local Pros May Boost Prize Money

Buck Worsham Will Be Favorite in 36-Hole Tourney; Stevens to Play

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

The assistant golf professionals, the boys who do 50 per cent of the work but receive little, if any, credit are going to take the spotlight from their bosses on July 31 when they get together in a 36-hole assistant pro championship at Woodmont.

The boys who work from dawn till dark and usually play 45 holes on their lone day off a week, planned a similar event for last year but something came up and it was cancelled. A week or so ago Buck Worsham, the long-hitting youngster in the Chevy Chase golf shop, and Raymond Willett, assistant to Gene Larkin at Woodmonth, got together and worked up the one-day tourney. Larkin assisted by securing the golf committee's permission for the boys to use the course.

To date first prize will be half of the entry fee pot, although Bob Barnett, at Chevy Chase; George Diffenbaugh, of Kenwood, and Wiffy Cox, Congressional, may meet with the other pros and boost the purse. However, the assistants would like a permanent trophy, and they'd gladly accept the donation of a cup or medal by any club member who would be interested.

36-Hole Event

A dozen or more of the golf shop assistants are expected to start in the 36-hole event and post a $5 entry fee.

Worsham, who has considerable tournament experience to his credit for just 20 years, will naturally be the favorite with Eddie Stevens, of Manor, just a step back.

Willett, who plays the Woodmont course well, will be a dark horse along with Warner Gray, the Congressional assistant who changes his swing to comply with the latest pro to win a tournament (he's in the groove like Lawson Little now). Gray's coworker at Congressional, Ernie Garlem, is also sharpening his sticks for the event.

The boys want to get Stanley Collings, of Columbia, and Brick Wood, of Washington Golf and Country Club, out of semiretirement for the event, while others expected to enter include Stanley Johnston, Beaver Dam; Eddie Lightbown, Army and Navy; Jimmy Craft, Capital; Joe Micker, East Potomac; Joe Curtin, Indian Spring, and Lew Fahrenwold, Kenwood. Any other assistants entered get in touch with Worsham at Chevy Chase, while assistants from Baltimore and Virginia are also eligible.

Busy Week Ahead

Meanwhile the club professionals are getting ready for the most important tournament week of the local card, July 23-27. Tuesday, July 22 the Maryland Open championship will be played at Columbia Country Club, with possibly a pro-amateur on Monday. Friday the 26th is the tentative, and probable, date for the sectional qualifying rounds for the National P. G. A. championship, to be played over the Five Farms course of the Baltimore Country Club. The Maryland Open and the qualifying rounds are both one-day, 36-hole tournaments.

Meanwhile several local mentors are planning to take in the Bedford Springs pro-amateur Sunday and the Bedford Open on Monday. Cliff Spencer and Martin McCarthy won the pro-am last year and Al Houghton the Open, after a playoff. With six sweepstakes victories to his credit this season, Houghton will be a threat to repeat. First prize is $100.

Tebbetts Honored by Providence Alumni

Providence College alumni of Washington tendered a testimonial dinner to George Tebbetts, catcher of the Detroit Tigers, last night at the Ebbitt Hotel.

Hailed as Providence's only alumnus in big league baseball, Tebbetts pointed out that he required two years to make the varsity berth at Providence and only one season to become Detroit's regular catcher.

Norfolk Trounces Charlotte, 10 to 4

Charlotte, N. C., July 11 (AP).—Norfolk bunched hits in the early innings tonight and walloped Charlotte, 10 to 4.

Sears and Caldwell led Norfolk's 13-hit assault with three blows apiece, Sears getting two home runs.

Capital Women's Golf Entries Close Today

District Mixed Scotch Foursome Play Scheduled Tuesday at Columbia Club; Anacostia Host to Similar Event Sunday

Entries for the second annual Capital Club Women's Invitation Tournamen close today with Mrs. Edward Fox, chairman of the women's golf committee, at Wisconsin 4765. The deadline is 1 p. m.

The tournament will be held Monday over the Capital Course, 18-holes medal play, with gross and net prizes to be awarded. All members of the District Women's Golf Association are eligible to enter the event. The entry fee is 50 cents. A field of more than 100 is expected.

The District Golf Association's goal in the annual mixed Scotch foursome Tuesday at Columbia Club will be to top the entry in a similar affair held by the Maryland State Golf Association Wednesday at Congressional when 64 teams competed.

The District event will be held on the same basis, with the mixed duos playing selective drives and alternate shots. Gross and net prizes will be awarded. The entry fee is $2 per team.

Dr. W. C. Barr, secretary of the association, is accepting entries at the Columbia Club until Sunday at 6 p. m. District Women's Golf Association officials are helping to build the tournament to its former standard this year. The date was changed from fall to midsummer to help boost the entries.

Manager B. Harry Graham of the Anacostia public links course will hold a mixed Scotch foursome event for the public links players Sunday at Anacostia, with the entry fee $1 per team. Entries must be in by noon and play will start an hour later.

Two other public links attractions are booked for Sunday, with the four local National Public Links qualifiers meeting Baltimore's successful quartet in a match at the Mount Pleasant course. A collection will be taken up to help defray the expenses of the Baltimoreans to the national tournament. The match will start at noon.

The East Potomac team will travel to Ocean View for a match with the Norfolk municipal players.

Entries for the Maryland State Golf Association Junior Open tournament will close Monday at the association offices in Baltimore. The tournament will be played Tuesday over the Roland Park course of the Baltimore Country Club, 18 holes medal play. Any boy under 21, regardless of club affiliation, is eligible.

Mrs. Stokes Wins Trophy Golf Play-Off

Downs Mrs. Randels At Manor in Schlosser Tourney

Mrs. Walter R. Stokes continued her low-scoring streak yesterday by winning the Schlosser Trophy playoff over Mrs. H. E. Randels at Manor Country Club.

The Middle Atlantic and Maryland State Champion played the course in 79 strokes and deducted a two handicap for a net 77 while Mrs. Randels was 86-54, 110-31, 79. They tied with net totals of 158 in the 36-hole medal play handicap tournament Monday and Tuesday.

Mrs. Stokes, who scored 79-83 in the first two rounds, was out in 38, three over men's par, and back in 41 for her second 79 of the tournament.

EileenQuinlan, Miss Tainter Meet in Finals

Play for Junior Title In Western Women's Golf at South Bend

By the Associated Press

South Bend, Ind., July 11.—Two 'teen age girls from the Northwest—Eileen Quinlan, of St. Paul, and Georgia Tainter, of Fargo, N. Dak.—match strokes tomorrow over the South Bend Country Club course for the 1940 junior title of the Western Women's Golf Association.

The 16-year-old St. Paul entry won her way into the finals today by eliminating Jeanne Cline, of Bloomington, Ill., one up in 19 holes. Miss Tainter disposed of Indiana's only remaining contender, Mae Louise Davisson, of Leesburg, 4 and 2.

The 18-hole final will wind up four days of match play. Fifty-five girls 18 years old or younger started playing the qualifying round Monday.

Miss Quinlan, a chubby Irish girl who wouldn't have qualified for the championship flight if it had not been increased from 8 to 16, played surprising golf from the third consecutive day.

She upset Phyllis Otto, of Atlantic, Iowa, tourney medalist, Tuesday, and staged an amazing rally on the last nine yesterday to win her match with Margaret Gunther, of Memphis, Tenn.

Miss Cline was one down in today's match, but squared things on the fifteenth hole with a birdie deuce. She took the sixteenth with a par four, but her brassie brought her trouble on the eighteenth. Miss Quinlan rang up a par five to even the contest, and then captured the extra hole and the match with a par four.

outfield and the ball rolled into short left. Walker scrambled to his feet and sprinted home on the error.

The Tigers came through for the Nats nicely in the sixth with a pair of gift runs. There was no taint to Rick Ferrell's double down the leftfield line, but when Case popped a fly to short left with two out, Hank Greenberg made such a menacing rush for it that Shortstop Dick Bartell gave up on the ball and the upshot was that it fell safely for a cheap double that scored Ferrell. Lewis singled to right to score Case.

Walker Makes Good Catch

Hudson was rescued from trouble by Walker in the first inning. The Tigers had two on and only one out after McCosky singled to center and Gehringer drew a walk. But at that point Walker made a clever one-hand grab of Greenberg's long line drive, and McCosky was doubled up at second base to his great amazement after he reached third.

Pinch Hitter Bruce Campbell batted for Newhouser in the third inning and his single to center led to the first Detroit run. Bartell and Gehringer scored him with singles.

In the seventh the Tigers made some mild motions toward getting back in the ball game when York and Fox led off with singles, but Hudson forced the next three batters to hit into force plays, thus limiting the damage to one run. In the eighth when the Tigers began to act up again on McCosky's double high off the wall in right and Gehringer's single to center, Cecil Travis helped Hudson over the hump by starting a double play on Greenberg's hard drive. The Tigers couldn't get to first base in the ninth.

Dodgers Parading To Hospital Beds

Hugh Casey, Beaned in Johnstown, Pa., Exhibition, Is Latest Member of Club Out of Action; May Not Make Trip

By George Kirksey
United Press Staff Correspondent.

Cincinnati, July 11.—The Brooklyn Dodgers may not win the National League pennant but they shoulld clinch the hospital championship of the majors.

When Leo Durocher, Dodgers' pilot, arrived today from the All-Star game in St. Louis, the sad news awaiting him was that Hugh Casey, his big righthander, was hit in the head by a pitched ball during an exhibition game in Johnstown, Pa., last night.

Casey is the third Dodger to be laid low by a pitched ball in a little over a month. Before him it was Peewee Reese and Joe Medwick. Although word came from the Mercy Hospital in Johnstown today that X-rays revealed no fractures, it's doubtful if Casey will be ready to pitch during Brooklyn's 11-day Western trip.

Only a handful of Dodgers have come through the first half of the season without something happening to them. Dixie Walker, Gus Mancuso, Herman Franks and a few of the pitchers are the only Dodgers who escaped injury.

First Baseman Dolf Camilli came here nursing a baldly bruised neck and isn't in condition yet to play. He was struck by one of Buddy Hassett's flying knees in a collision at first base in Boston Sunday. Camilli had played in more than 300 consecutive games when he was hurt.

All the other members of the Dodgers' infield have been laid up at one time or another. Pete Coscarart was out for ten days with a spiked knee. Reese was beaned once and was out another time with a Charley horse. Leo Durocher has had arm trouble and had to take himself out of the line-up another time after a collision with Ernie Koy at second on a double play. Cookie Lavagetto was troubled with a bad shoulder.

Joe Vosmik injured his chest in a collision with Slats Marion, of the Cards, and then after he recovered he hurt his hip sliding into the plate. Charlie Gilbert suffered a cut leg.

Miamian Wins Pennsylvania Junior Tennis

Jack Blair Beats Texan; Al Shafer Takes Boys' Crown

By the Associated Press

Jack Blair, 18-year-old Miami Beach, Fla., star, won the junior championship with a 6—4, 7—5, 6—3 victory over Frank Whaley of Corpus Christie, Tex., and Albert Shafer, of Tarrytown, N. Y., captured the boys' crown with an uphill 5—7, 6—4, 6—4 triumph over Howe Atwater, of Wilmette, Ill.

It was Blair's second title victory in this district in two weeks. He won the Philadelphia District Championship at Idle Hour handily.

After the opening game, which he dropped, Blair assumed command and was never headed.

Shafer and Atwater, both 14, gave the galleries the see-saw match of the tournament, fighting for every point in the intense heat.

Browns Bow To Yanks, 6-4; Russo Hurls

Red Rolfe Leads N. Y. Batting Attack In 1st of Home Stand

By the Associated Press

New York, July 11.—The Yankees barely lasted to beat the St. Louis Browns, 6-4, today as the World Champions opened a long home stand today.

Ahead 6-2 going into the ninth, largely through the fine three-hit hurling of Marius Russo and some heavy hitting by Red Rolfe, the Browns scored twice before Bump Hadley dashed in to rescue the faltering Russo.

With two out, Russo walked Heffner and Swift, hit Pinch Hitter Lyn Lary to fill the bases and then served up a single to Roy Cullenbine which scored two runs.

Hadley forced Rip Radcliffe to fly out for the third putout.

Eldon Auker, who started for the Browns, was the losing pitcher. He was relieved in the eighth by Howard Mills.

Bees Win 2d, 2-1; Cubs Take Opener, 8-2

Last Game Goes Ten Innings as Sist Is Boston Hero

By the Associated Press

Chicago, July 11.—The Boston Bees went 10 innings to win the second game of a double-header today, 2 to 1, after Chicago's Cubs had taken the opener, 8 to 2, before 7,347 spectators.

Larry French and Dick Errickson engaged in a scoreless duel for eight innings of the nightcap, which was played in 60 degree weather. Each gave up one run in the ninth. Then Sibby Sisti, who singled, and scored Boston's ninth inning run, drove out a long fly in the tenth to score Eddie Miller with the winning marker. Miller had doubled and gone to third on Errickson's scratch single.

The Cubs got their lone counter on Bill Nicholson's triple and Augie Galan's double.

Nicholson's three run homer helped Claude Passeau win his ninth victory against eight defeats in the opener. Passeau allowed nine hits and blanked the Bees until the ninth.

Cameo Faces Powers Ten in Softball Play

The Mid-Atlantic Softball Tournament enters the quarter-final round at the Ballston Ball Park tonight with Cameo Furniture, recent upset conquerors of Senate Beer, meeting Powers Builders at 7:45 p. m., and Dixie Tavern meeting I. B. M. at 9 p. m. Dixie Tavern advanced to the quarter-finals by a victory over Greenbelt Wednesday night as I. B. M. also advanced at the expense of the strong Bethlehem Steel Club of Baltimore.

The first game is rated even. Cameo Furniture appears to have a slight edge in the hitting department, but Powers Builders excel through the excellent pitching of "Popeye" Gross.

I. B. M., current tournament favorites, will find a hard team to beat in Dixie Tavern. I. B. M. has yet to lose this year to a Washington team, and Dixie Tavern is undefeated under the lights this season, defeating Cameo Furniture, U. S. Aggies, Cooper's Market and Greenbelt in order. Shanks, of Dixie Tavern, will be opposed by Temple Jarrell, star pitcher of I. B. M. Jarrell has pitched four games at Ballston Stadium this year, resulting in a no-hit, no-run game, two one-hit games, and sending Senate Beer down to defeat with but three hits in the fourth encounter.

The winner of the first game will meet the victor of the Tru-Blu-Oklahoma Cowboys contest in the semifinal round, and the winner of tonight's latter fracas will meet the advancing team of the Standard Linen-Trenton Democrats encounter.

Man of the Month

The Man of the Month contest is sponsored jointly by The Washington Post and Station WJSV. Following each of the Nats' games, Arch McDonald will award points to Washington players as he deems performances merit. The Man of the Month will be presented with a $50 merchandise order by The Post.

By Arch McDonald
Station WJSV Baseball Broadcaster

Sidney Hudson takes a commanding lead in the Man of the Month contest for July following his triumph over the Tigers. Points on the basis of that game were distributed as follows:

To Hudson, 15 points, because he won his game by protecting his early lead and because he doubled in the second inning to drive two runs across the plate.

To Rick Ferrell, six points, because he singled to drive in the Nats' first run and doubled later in the game to score a run.

To George Case, three points, because he made three hits, driving in two runs and scoring one.

To Gee Walker, three points, because he saved two runs with his first-inning catch of Greenberg's line drive and because he doubled and scored later in the game.

To Zeke Bonura, two points, because he made a double and played a clever game at first base. The totals:

Sidney Hudson	31	Jimmy Pofahl	6
Ken Chase	15	Zeke Bonura	6
Rene Monteagudo	15	Dutch Leonard	5
Cecil Travis	14	Johnny Welaj	2
George Case	13	Buddy Lewis	2

Anne Harrison and Charlotte Decker Meet in D. C. Net Finals

Baltimore Star Beats Margo Lee

Miss Decker Avenges Previous Defeats By Anne Dayette; Finals at 3 P. M.

Continuing to heap abuse on pre-tournament rankings which left her unseeded, little Anne Harrison, of Baltimore, held a return engagement of her recent upsets yesterday at Columbia, where she advanced to the final round of the District Open tennis tourney for women with a 6—2, 1—6, 8—6 triumph over third-seeded Margo Lee.

Keeping pace with her Monumental City rival was Charlotte Decker, a local entrant, who registered a 6—3, 5—7, 7—5 victory over second-seeded Anne Dayette, of Baltimore. Miss Decker, in winning, avenged two previous defeats suffered at the hands of Miss Dayette.

Finals Today

Miss Harrison and Miss Decker will thus meet in the final round this afternoon. The match is scheduled to start at 3 p. m.

Keeping her more experienced opponent from employing her dreaded net game, Miss Harrison continually shot baseline volleys to Miss Lee's backhand, forcing the local star to do her firing from long range. As a result, Miss Harrison captured the first set, 6—2.

Tires in Second Set

Miss Lee dominated the second set as the Baltimorean, visibly tired by the terrific heat, determined to conserve her strength and was forced into many errors by Miss Lee's brilliant placements. In the final set Miss Harrison overcame a 3-1 deficit, tied the score at 6-6 and won by breaking Miss Lee's service and capturing her own to complete the victory.

The doubles ran true to form as both seeded entries advanced to the semifinal round. The Lee-Herbert duo defeated the Baltimore pair of Anne Dayette and Ann Harrison while Charlotte Decker and Marian Cunningham trounced Marian Prichard and Hazel Bishopp.

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS

Singles

Ann Harrison defeated Margo Lee, 6—2, 1—6, 8—6; Charlotte Decker defeated Anne Dayette, 6—3, 5—7, 7—5.

Doubles

Cynthia Olmstead and Margaret Graham defeated Helen Fishburne and Elizabeth Sowers, 6—2, 6—1; Margo Lee and Willie Herbert defeated Ann Harrison and Anne Dayette, 6—0, 6—3; Marian Cunningham and Charlotte Decker defeated Marian Prichard and Hazel Bishopp, 6—4, 6—3; Elinor Finckel and Frances Rowan defeated Mrs. James Karrick and Helen Davis, 6—4, 6—3.

Consolations

Elinor Finckel defeated Mrs. James Karrick, 6—2, 6—2; Dorette Miller defeated Virginia McMenamin, 6—0, 6—2.

16-Year-Old Girl Springs Midwest Upset

Doris Popple Beats Helen Dyer in Omaha Tennis Tournament

By the Associated Press

Omaha, Nebr., July 11.—Diminutive 16-year-old Doris Popple, of Des Moines, Ia., captured the admiration of an appreciative gallery at the Midwest Tennis Tournament today by ousting Helen Dyer, Springfield, Mo., 4—6, 7—5, 6—4 in a gruelling two and a half hour match.

Doris lost the first set to Miss Dyer, last year's doubles champ, and was behind 5—1 in the second set before she turned on the fireworks. She brought the count to five all, then marched through Miss Dyer's service to ice the match.

The final set was a see-saw affair until the game count was four all, then Doris outsteadied her opponent to win going away.

Big Upset

Marguerite Letts, St. Joseph, Mo., scored an upset by defeating Mary Janet McDonald, Chanute, Kans., finalist last year, 6—2, 6—4.

Mickey McPherson, Omaha high school senior, defeated Helen Gruchalla, Jamestown, N. Dak., 2—6, 6—3, 7—5.

Don Kristufek, Crete, Neb., staged the biggest upset by turning back Gene Holbrook, Redlands, Calif., 7—5, 6—3, in a morning match.

Charley Sager, the double-upsetter from Crete, took it on the nose from Harold Rundle, Nebraska varsity man, 6—0, 7—5.

Doubles Victors Listed

In men's doubles, Coach Wally Smith, Muskogee, Okla., and Ed "Lefty" Brown, Baylor University, turned back George Dobson and Roy Larson, Plattsmouth, 6—2, 5—7, 6—1.

Wayne Anderson, Shenandoah, Iowa, and Lewis Hall, Omaha, won over Kristufek and Sager, 6—3, 6—3.

In the junior doubles, the Nebraska prep champions, Frank Ragen-John O'Hearn beat Jack Bush-Jim Reedy, Omaha, 6—3, 6—4. Rush and Reedy had previously dropped the Iowa High School champ doubles tandem, Harry Dunn and Marvin Davidson, Des Moines.

Dick Richards, Kansas City, played brilliantly to put away favored Jack Ormsbee, Kansas City, 8—6, 2—6, 6—3, in junior singles.

Don McNeill, Harman Win In Clay Court

Advance to Semifinal Round of N. Y. State Net Tournament

By the Associated Press

New York, July 11.—Don McNeill, of Oklahoma City, who is in the midst of a successful campaign to improve his No. 1 national ranking, and Bobby Harman, of Oakland, Calif., who is striving to regain the spot he once held in the country's seedings, advanced to the semifinal round of the New York State Clay Court Championships today.

McNeill, rated first in the draw, disposed of Tom Kelly, of Portland, Oreg., 6—0, 6—2, while Harman, seeded fourth, eliminated Joe Fishbach, of New York, 6—8, 6—0, 6—3. The dark-haired Californian was ranked seventeenth in the country last summer after a successful 1938 campaign but holds no listing this year due to recent inactivity.

McNeill and Harman will meet in the upper bracket semifinal encounter while the lower bracket opponents will be decided tomorrow when second-seeded Elwood Cooke, of Portland, Oreg., faces Bill Canning of Berkeley, Calif., and defending champion Frank Guernsey, of Orlando, Fla., seeded third, clashes with Vincent Paul, of Brooklyn.

Bill Gillespie, of Atlanta, and Dick McKee, of Miami, won their way into the semifinal round of the doubles by defeating their University of Miami teammates, George Pero and Bill Hardie, 6—3, 5—7, 6—2. They were joined in the lower bracket by Harman and Cooke, who breezed through Bill Pardoe, of Provo, Utah and Frank Mehner, of Salt Lake City, 6—2, 6—4.

Better Hurling

Pittsburgh, July 11 (AP).—The All-Stars baseball game demonstrated that the National League has "better pitching and more of it," in the opinion of Phillies' Manager Doc Prothro. However, the American League has better batters, he said. The Phils and the Pirates stage a night game here tonight.

Lucia Lhamon Again Wins in Girls' Tennis

Fourth-Seeded Margot Parsons Bows at Columbia, 5-7, 6-1, 6-4

Miss Lucia Lhamon, of Annapolis, continued to furnish the major upset of the girls' division of the District Open tennis tournament as she triumphed over Margot Parsons, fourth-seeded, in the semi-final round yesterday at Columbia, 5—7, 6—1, 6—4.

In the other girls' singles match, smooth, top-seeded Isabel Harvey wended her way into the final round with a hard-fought 10—8, 6—2 win over Betty Jacob, who upset favored Betty Simpson Wednesday.

Miss Lhamon was forced to come from behind after dropping a 7-5 decision to Miss Parsons in the first set, but after this she had things her own way in permitting Margot but five games in the other two sets.

Miss Harvey won in two sets but nevertheless was forced to shake off a determined bid by blonde Betty. Miss Jacob extended her to the longest count of the tournament before finally losing out. The second set was dominated by Miss Harvey, who forced Miss Jacob into numerous errors with her smooth play.

Miss Lhamon meets Miss Harvey for the championship this afternoon at Columbia, the match being scheduled to start at 2 p. m.

Parker Paces Spring Lake Net Tourney

Defending Champion Leads 4 Seeded Stars Into Semifinal Play

Spring Lake, N. J., July 11.—Defending Champion Frankie Parker today let a quartet of seeded stars into the semifinal round of the eighth annual Spring Lake Invitation Tournament.

The other semifinalists are Archie Henderson, of Chapel Hill, N. C., seeded sceond, who lost to Parker in the 1938 final; third-seeded Gardner Mulloy, of Miami, Fla., Parker's foe in last year's title round, and youthful Ted Schroeder, of Los Angeles, Calif., seeded fourth, the national junior singles champion.

Parker After the Title

Parker, seeking his seventh singles crown, whipped Gerard Poeresta, of Montclair, 6—2, 6—3, and drew Schroeder, as his semifinals opponent. Scroeder won from J. Gilbert Hall, of New York, 6—1, 6—2.

In the lower bracket, Henderson outlasted Jack Kramer, of Montebello, Calif., 6—4, 3—6, 6—4, and Mulloy defeated Ladislav Hecht, of New York, 7—5, 4—6, 6—3. Henderson and Mulloy will meet tomorrow. Parker and Schroeder are slated to play Saturday.

Favorites Advance

In doubles competition today the favorites advanced without the loss of a set. Gaining the semifinal bracket were the top-seeded pair of Kramer and Schroeder, beating George Lyttleton-Rogers, of Ireland, and Henry Betjer, of San Angelo, Tex., 6—2, 6—3; the second-seeded pair of Mulloy and Wilmer Allison, the veteran from Austin, Tex., defeated Alex Guerry, Chattanooga, Tenn., and William T. Vogt, Drexel Hill, Pa., 6—3, 6—3, and Parker and Charles Mattman, of Forest Hills, N. Y., who eliminated Henderson and Arthur MacPherson, of New York, 6—2, 6—1.

In the semifinal doubles Parker-Mattman will face Kramer and Schroeder.

Injured Casey to Be Out of Line-up For Five Days

By the Associated Press

Johnstown, Pa., July 11.—Hugh Casey, Brooklyn pitcher who was struck by a pitched ball in the Brooklyn-Johnstown exhibition game last night, will be out of the Dodger line-up four or five days, a physician said tonight.

Dr. W. J. Murray reported X-rays showed Casey suffered a "mild concussion" of the brain when he was felled by a ball hurled by Vince Shupe, 21-year-old Johnstown southpaw. The physician said Casey's condition was good but that he would need a few days' rest in a hospital here.

Casey was hurt in the third inning after going into the game, which Brooklyn won, 15-10, as a pinch hitter for Outfielder Dixie Walker. The ball struck him as he attempted to dodge it. Knocked unconscious, he was revived but collapsed again in his hotel room.

Lopez a Golfer

Pittsburgh, July 11 (AP).—Al Lopez, Pirates' new catcher, doesn't only shine in baseball. His 77 won him a first-place tie in a guest day kicker's handicap golf meet at Churchill Valley Club yesterday.

St. Louis Shows Largest Gain In American League Percentage

Habitual Tailenders 10 Games Ahead of 1939 July 11 Standing Despite 8 Straight Losses

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, July 11.—Although they have dropped eight straight games, the surprising St. Louis Browns showed the largest percentage gain of any team in the American League for the first half of the 1940 season.

Statistics prove the Brownies, habitual tailenders, are 145 percentage points and 10 games ahead of their figure on the same date a year ago, having jumped from .284 to .429.

The same, however, does not hold true of the fading St. Louis Cardinals of the National League. A year ago the Redbirds were over the .500 mark, with a percentage of .514, but today they were lodged in sixth place with .403, the largest loss shown by any of the National League teams.

Dodgers Have Large Increase

Only one club—Brooklyn in the National—has shown a larger increase than the Browns. The Dodgers have jumped from .515 to .662, a gain of 147 points.

That the powerful New York Yankees may be slipping is indicated by the figures at the halfway mark.

Joe McCarthy's men have skidded from .707 to .521, a loss of 186 percentage points. A year ago today the New Yorkers were 6½ games ahead of the field, while now the club is being kicked around in fourth place, about 13 games off the pace they established last year.

Tigers Move Up

The second place Detroit Tigers moved up from .514 midway last year to .620, a gain of 106 points.

The leading Cincinnati Reds of the National League show a gain of 38 points, the New York Giants 40 and the Phillies 35, while Pittsburgh dropped 74, Boston 66 and Chicago 6 percentage points.

Cleveland is 67 points ahead of last year and the Philadelphia Athletics gained 23, with the Chicago and Boston entries in the American League losing 82 and 63 points, respectively. The Senators dropped 5 points.

Bill Ackerman — On Fishing

From every indication now, and, of course, barring any further rain, there is real hope for bass in the upper Potomac and many of its tributaries over the week-end.

ACKERMAN

Artificial lures are the first choice, but it takes early morning and late evening fishing to get real results. Through the day live minnows, plus considerable patience, are what it takes.

In the coves down the Virginia shore below Washington the bait fishermen never seem to have a tithe of the luck of the fly fishermen. Even through the hot summer days the large-mouths are suckers for the tiny flyrod lures.

Striper fishermen can consider only two places right now unless they care to journey over to the Eastern Shore. At Tall Timbers the best catches during the week have been by trolling, but float-lining soft crabs is productive again and it brings in the largest fish.

There is a practice pursued by several boatmen in this section that is a real detriment to striper fishing by way of trolled lures—driving their boats into the surfacing fish. The best that they may hope for is to fill their lines but once before the stripers go down. Circling the school slowly would permit fishing until they went down of their own accord.

Because this is done by a few, other boatmen find it necessary to follow suit or get few fish. We believe that if parties refused to fish with such boatmen these unsportsmanlike methods would be greatly curtailed.

The other place for striper fishing on the western shore of Maryland is at Solomons. The methods are also the same—trolling and float-lining.

Solomons this year is experiencing a period of plenty after two seasons when the going wasn't all that might be expected. Hardheads are continuing plentiful, and a few trout are starting to appear in the catches.

The Fishing Rodeo of the Washington Ikes is being held there next Wednesday and from the looks of things right now it is going to be a bang-up affair. Prizes for fish of every species are in the Postal window at Fifteenth and New York avenue.

Tickets are five bucks each and obtainable at any sports store. A single fare for everything, including a seafood dinner such as has made Ed Bowen known far and near.

The large boats—finest fleet in bay waters—will be limited to ten anglers each. For that reason keep your gang together when you buy the tickets. Bill Garrison alone has disposed of five boats.

The guide book of the Chesapeake Bay Fishing Fair is off the press and it shows the increased interest in this annual affair somewhere on bay waters by being larger and more informative than ever.

North Beach and Chesapeake Beach are bidding high to bring it there in 1941, and there is considerable reason why it should go there.

Chesapeake Bay Fishing Fairs, since the first one at Tilghman's Island in 1936 have done much to publicize the bay country. For the past two years whole train loads of anglers have come from the Middlewest. They have enjoyed the outing so much that they are coming back again and again.

Gedwillas Honored In Home Town

Special Dispatch to The Post

Thomas, W. Va., July 11.—Barney Gedwillas, of Thomas, received a big ovation here in honor of his victory in the National Marathon at Philadelphia. This is his home and the Thomas Band turned out with the Thomas, Parsons and Davis fire departments, the Bicycle Club and the Girl Scouts. There were addresses.

Gedwillas, a graduate of Thomas High School, and West Virginia University, worked the past few years in Juneau, Alaska. He returned here where he has been in training to participate in outstanding races.

For Cape Charles, Wachapreague and Chincoteague, Route No. 213 to Salisbury, then Route No. 13.

Shadyside and Herring Bay reached by way of Marlboro and Route No 3. Herring Bay, North Beach and Seaside by turning right just beyond Hills Bridge on the new Route No. 416. Follow on down No. 2 for Western Shore of Maryland. Solomons Island and Brooms Island. Breezy Point Beach best reached by following through Seaside.

Note: The above predictions give the times of high and low water and not the time the current changes (slack water). In Chesapeake Bay, midchannel, between Chesapeake Beach and Annapolis, slack water occurs about 2½ to 4½ hours after high and low water by the shore. At other places given in the table, slack water occurs from one-half to 1½ hours after the times of high and low water.

Times given above are for Baltimore and Washington. Subtract or add the number of hours as the various points for time of tides at these points.

Time Her Captures Mayor Sweeney Handicap at Hagerstown

Ken's Pop Runs Second In Feature

Jockey Martinez Pilots Favorite To Victory; Lucky Jean, Third

By Walter Haight
A Staff Correspondent

Hagerstown, Md., July 11.—Time Her, a fleet 4-year-old filly owned by J. T. Harris, revealed that she lost none of her speed in the trip over from Charles Town by winning today's feature race for the favorite players. Her victory came in the Mayor Richard H. Sweney Handicap, named for the chief executive of this city. His honor not only presented Owner Harris with a floral piece but he picked Time Her as the winner.

Jockey F. A. Martinez, the little Cuban boy, booted Time Her to the wire a length and a half in front of a photo finish for second money, in which A. Gazzale's Ken's Pop took the camera's nod from Danny Shea's Lucky Jean. Time Her paid her legion of backers a $4.10 mutuel and stepped over the Mason-Dixon course of 5 furlongs in a creditable 1:04 2-5.

Time Her Bears Out

The race was a rough and ready affair with every member of the field suffering some trouble. Time Her bore out at the turns and carried Lucky Jean with her while the two were racing head and head in the opening stages. Time Her finally drew out, and from that point to the end there was not a catcher among the other seven entries.

The favorite players were off on the right foot in the first race when Capt. Ewart Johnston's Clay Hill made good as the chief portion of an entry with A. C. Randolph's Tellemoff. Clay Hill, capably handled by Jockey Mike Sarno, won by a length and a half over Ida Time, with Smoke Gal third. The entry paid $4.40.

The daily double paid $12.90 when Bowes Bond's Small Change took the second race at an individual payoff of $7. The 10-year-old led all the way and closed in advance of Kenner and Aster Princess.

Olivilo, owned by E. H. Cashell, of Rockville, Md., came from behind to win the third race under a good ride by Jockey Johnny Scocca. The 3-year-old filly paid $8.30 and won in going away fashion from Kamari, with So Fong in third position after a trip over the mile and a sixteenth course.

Jockey Martinez rode his second winner of the day aboard Chalotaur, owned by Danny Galotta, of Washington, D. C. The veteran mare were down Lyde, a long shot, to score by half a length. Artist, the favorite, was a distant third in the field of eight.

†E. Johnston-A. C. Randolph entry.
Two-dollar mutuels paid—CLAY HILL (entry), $4.40, $2.70, $2.30; IDA TIME, $5.30, $4.90; SMOKE GAL, $4.20.
CLAY HILL raced on inside of SMOKE GAL from start, bore out at first turn and drew clear in final test. IDA TIME was pinched back in opening furlong, came to outside entering stretch and closed with bold rush to be going fastest at end. SMOKE GAL ran lapped on outside of CLAY HILL and tired gradually in final eighth. TAR ANNE was sent to contention on backstretch and closed willingly.

SECOND RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:05½. Off 3:08. Winner, B. Bond's b. g. (10), by Aromatic—Petty Cash. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $275; second, $75; third, $35; fourth, $15. Time, 1:21⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SMALL CHANGE, $7.00, $4.20, $3.00; KENNER, $10.50, $7.10; ASTER PRINCESS, $3.50.
SMALL CHANGE assumed command in opening furlong when DABS ran out, drew clear and was kept to drive to end while not seriously threatened. KENNER was keen forward factor from start and closed willingly. ASTER PRINCESS was taken up leaving gate, worked way to contention on own courage and was in close quarters along rail at end. DABS ran out at first turn, was vigorously handled thereafter and weakened.

Daily Double, CLAY HILL and SMALL CHANGE, Paid $12.90

THIRD RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3 and 4-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:36. Off 3:37½. Winner, E. H. Cashell's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—OLIVILO, $8.30, $5.10, $3.40; KAMARI, $11.30, $5.40; SO PONG, $3.50.
OLIVILO, allowed to settle into stride, came wide for racing room, worked way to contention and wore down KAMARI in final sixteenth. KAMARI, rated while closest to early pace of WELSH STAR, took command when called upon, saved ground, but could not resist winner while strongly handled. SO PONG, unable to keep up early, closed full of run. NIGHT RIDER was keen forward factor from start and showed good effort.

FOURTH RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $500; handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:07. Off 4:10. Winner, J. T. Harris' ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—TIME HER, $4.10, $3.10, $3.10; KEN'S POP, $4.90, $5.10; LUCKY JEAN, $6.70.
TIME HER took command in opening furlong, bore out at turns, withstood challenges of LUCKY JEAN and drew clear under drive in final quarter. KEN'S POP was roughed about in early stages and closed resolutely. LUCKY JEAN forced pace of TIME HER and held on gamely. WALTER LIGHT was forced to be taken up repeatedly while in close quarters and closed full of run.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:41. Off 4:44½. Winner, D. Galotta's br. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHALOTAUR, $7.90, $4.20, $3.50; LYDE, $16.60, $6.80; ARTIST, $3.30.
CHALOTAUR, steadied while closest to pace of LYDE, rallied willingly when placed to drive and wore down LYDE on outside in final 70 yards. LYDE was sent to front with rush at first turn, could not shake off CHALOTAUR and held on gamely under punishment. ARTIST could not keep up early, came wide for racing room, but hung in stretch drive and pulled up sore. ACE OF TRUMPS was messed about while attempting to go through on inside at first turn and tired.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place same. Went to post 5:13¼. Off 5:14½. Winner, C. A. Gulotta's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—AMERICA FIRST, $13.30, $6.30, $3.90; BYNUM'S RUN, $29.60, $8.30; SEDATE, $3.00.
AMERICA FIRST, steadied while close up, came to inside to take command after a half, drew out gradually and won easily. BYNUM'S RUN, slow to begin, improved position while saving ground and was eased while holding place safe. SEDATE took command under hustling tactics and stopped when displaced. AUFOIN was outrun.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:46. Off 5:47. Winner, Flamingo Farm's b. f. French-Bred Colt Wins at Chicago

Chicago, July 11 (AP).—Raphael 2d, a French bred horse owned by Joseph E. Widener, Philadelphia, scored an easy victory in the Wilmette purse before 9,000 fans at Arlington Park today.

The War Refugee quickly displaced Centuple from the lead, then continued strongly to beat Charlton Clay's classy filly, Colosseum, by two and a half lengths. McKay and Sullivan's nightland was third in the 6 furlong race for 3-year-olds. A sloppy track reduced the number of starters to six.

The winner, ridden by Ken McCombs, was timed at 1:13 2-5 and paid $5.20.

Challedon May Run In Hollywood Cup

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, July 11.—General Manager Jack L. Mackenzie, of the Hollywood Turf Club, said today there was a good chance Challedon might be rushed to Hollywood Park late next week if he comes out satisfactorily in the Massachusetts Handicap.

Mackenzie said he talked by telephone with W. L. Brann, owner of the 1939 three-year-old champion, and had reason to believe Challedon would be shipped West to run in the $50,000 Gold Cup at Hollywood Park July 27.

Challedon was nominated for the big race and was handed an impost of 133 pounds—the same as the West's leading contender, Charles S. Howard's Kayak II.

Challedon came out of temporary retirement several days ago and won in his first start in many months. He rules as a favorite in the Massachusetts Handicap at Suffolk Downs in Boston next Tuesday.

Furr to Remain in New Jersey Camp Until Day Before Fight

Cocoa Kid To Arrive Here Today

Will Hold Public Workout at Arena; Willie Tapp Signed For Preliminary

Temperament, or a better word for it, superstition, led to Phil Furr's refusal yesterday to budge from his Summit, N. J., training quarters until the day before his fight with Cocoa Kid in a 10-round battle Monday night at Griffith Stadium.

As a final dash of ballyhoo for the encounter, Cocoa Kid will arrive this morning to conclude his training in public at Turner's Arena, and Fearless Furr was supposed to make his grand entrance tomorrow.

The 30-year-old former soldier yesterday, however, balked at that sort of thing and reminded his manager, Chris Dundee, that his knockout over Mamakos came after a full 10-day siege of training at Mme. Beys. Fearless Philbert reckoned he didn't want to interrupt his New Jersey work to take a chance on being thrown for a loss by Washington's humidity.

George King, Promoter Turner's first lieutenant, reported yesterday that tickets for the fight are going like hot cakes and that a house of around 6,500 is expected to see Cocoa try to win his forty-fifth straight victory.

The winner of the fight may get a shot at Welterweight Champion Henry Armstrong here in August or September, and Furr will have as his aim Cocoa's No. 1 ranking.

The preliminary card for the battle, completed yesterday, brings out Willie Tapp, Golden Gloves feather champion, in a four-round professional debut. A newcomer, Harry Hursh, of Canada, meets Oscar Wright, Frankie Wills meets Tony Ferrara, in sixes, and Ray Landis is in another four.

ing a 1-up margin over Lieut. Paul Clifford, of Franklin, N. H., in the second round.

National Amateur Champion Marvin (Bud) Ward, of Spokane, made a twin killing and he was joined in the round of 16 by former Open and Amateur Champ Johnny Goodman, who won twice by sizable margins. Wilford Wehrie, of Chicago, was another double winner among the prominent players.

Moller Advances

Also advancing was Larry Moller, of Quincy, Ill., who lost to Todd in the finals of the tournament at Oklahoma City a year ago. The two will be third round opponents. Moller defeated Robert Sulzer, of Cincinnati, 4 and 3, in the second round.

The comedalists, Art Roering, of Chicago, and Jim Ferrier, of Sydney, Australia, advanced handily through the two rounds, the former downing the Minnesotans, Church Boettcher, of Rochester, 4 and 3, and Lloyd Young, of Minneapolis, 5 and 4. Ferrier, four under par for 27 holes, trimmed George Pratt, of Pipestone, Minn., 6 and 5, in the first round, and Tommy Harper, of St. Paul, 6 and 4, in the second.

Doering is due to meet a Chicago rival, young George Victor, in the third round of the lower bracket Friday, the latter eliminating the veteran Chick Evans, of Chicago, 3 and 2, in the second round. Ferrier will meet Elmer Freed, of Cleveland, in the third round, in another lower bracket match. Freed had two tough matches in scoring 2 and 1 decisions over Joe Franco, of Chicago, and Walter Hargesheimer, of Rochester, Minn.

Helen Jacobs Reaches Net Semifinals

Topseeded Star Ousts Madge Harshaw in Philadelphia Play

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, July 11.—Helen Jacobs and Helen Bernhard, apparently destined to meet in the final, reached the semifinals of the Middle States women's tennis championships today.

Top-seeded Miss Jacobs, of Berkeley, Calif., former national and Wimbledon champion, took a little more time than usual to eliminate Madge "Bunny" Harshaw, Philadelphia, 6—2, 6—1, in one of four quarter-final matches.

Nineteen-year-old Miss Bernhard, who won the Middle States a year ago, was hard pressed by Nellie Sheer, of Miami, Fla., 6—3, 10—8.

Helen Pedersen, of Stamford, Conn., and Hope Knowles, Philadelphia, also reached the round of four. Miss Pedersen trounced Emily Lincoln, of Boston, 6—2, 6—2, while Miss Knowles won easily over Eunice Dean, of San Antonio, Tex., 6—1, 6—1.

Tomorrow Miss Jacobs meets Miss Pedersen while Miss Bernhard is pitted against Miss Knowles.

Crueger Returns To Charlotte Hall For P. G. Course

Special Dispatch to The Post

Charlotte Hall, Va., July 11.—Jimmy Crueger, star halfback of last year's Charlotte Hall Military Academy football team, will return to Charlotte Hall in September for a year of postgraduate study before entering college, he informed authorities here today.

Crueger, hard-driving 190-pound 6-footer from Baltimore, was the offensive spearhead of Coach "Pop" Ehringer's Cadet machine last year, handling most of the running assignments, doing all of the punting and backing up the line on defense.

Under the rules of the Maryland Scholastic Association, of which Charlotte Hall is a member, Crueger will be eligible to play during the coming season, as he has not participated in his full quota of athletic semesters.

The Baltimore boy's return will aid the basketball team, also, as Crueger was cocaptain and star center of the court squad last year.

Crueger's decision to come back to Charlotte Hall for another year was prompted by the fact that he may be appointed to the United States Naval Academy in 1941.

Maryland Aces Want Foe

The Maryland Aces desire a double-header for Sunday. The Aces have won 16 games thus far this season and have their own diamond. Teams interested should call Buck Nairn at Capitol Heights 675.

Lew Jenkins Gets Ring's Gold Belt

Symbol of Lightweight Championship Given Texan by Nat Fleischer

By the Associated Press

Ferndale, N. Y., July 11.—Lew Jenkins, training at Grossingers Lake for his fight in the Polo Grounds next Wednesday night with Henry Armstrong, was presented today with the Ring Magazine's gold belt emblematic of his world lightweight championship.

The presentation was made by Nat Fleischer, publisher of the magazine.

Jenkins boxed five rounds with Eddie Brink, Nathan Hall and Mickey La Marr and appeared a trifle too fine. His manager, Hymie Caplin, ordered him to "lay off" boxing tomorrow. He will spar again Saturday and Sunday and do only gym work Monday.

The Texas "thin man" scaled 136½ when he started today's workout and was 134½ when he finished.

It was learned that Caplin, under suspension by the athletic commission, has a "very good chance" of having the ban lifted in time to work in Jenkins' corner for the fight

Cumberland Holds Swimming Meet

Special Dispatch to The Post

Cumberland, Md., July 11.—The fifth annual Western Maryland championship swimming and diving meet, open to all swimmers affiliated with the Amateur Athletic Union, will be held Friday, August 2, at the Celanese A. A. swimming pool on the McMullen Highway. Arrangements for the meet's sanction by the South Atlantic Association of the A. A. U. have already been made. Blanks are being distributed to clubs in Baltimore, Washington, Pittsburgh and other cities.

Last year's meet was won by the Baltimore Knights of Columbus team with most of the 42 points being scored by the entries in women's and junior girls' events. The Celanese A. A. was second with 39 and Fairmont (W. Va.) Municipal Pool A. A., third, 26. There will be a trophy and medals.

Mayfair and Capitol Meet for Title

By virtue of their victories yesterday in the Night Owl Softball League, Mayfair and Capitol Theater will clash for first-half honors next Tuesday.

Mayfair trounced Earle, 13 to 4, with Niland providing the batting punch for the winners with two doubles, a home run, and a single in four trips to the plate.

Lotus bowed to Capitol, 22 to 8, after having scored eight runs in the first inning. Ross Deroy was the winning hurler.

Baer Ready For Louis—if It's in Chicago

Hoffman Says Maxie Is Willing to Fight But Scorns Gotham

By the Associated Press

Sacramento, Calif., July 11.—Ancil Hoffman said today he would be willing to match Max Baer against Champion Joe Louis in a title fight—if the bout were held in Chicago.

Returning home from the Jersey City battle in which Baer defeated Tony Galento, the veteran manager definitely ruled out New York as the site for a second Baer-Louis encounter.

He expressed the hope matters would be arranged in Illinois so that Mike Jacobs might promote Baer's attempt to regain the heavyweight boxing crown.

Anyway, Hoffman added, Max made his best ring appearances in Chicago.

Hoffman showed no enthusiasm for a proposal that Baer meet Arturo Godoy, of Chile, in South America, although he was reported to have been offered an advance of $25,000.

Bobby Riggs Advances in Western Net

Forced Into Extra Set To Beat Tom Brown; Alice Marble Wins

By the Associated Press

Indianapolis, July 11. — Bobby Riggs, of Chicago, seeded first in the men's singles of the fifty-third annual Western Tennis Tournament, was forced to play an extra set to beat Tom Brown, of San Francisco, today. The score was 2—6, 6—2, 6—4.

The start of today's play was delayed four hours by a rainstorm and only five matches were completed. Play will begin at 10 a. m. (E. S. T.) tomorrow to make up the lost time.

Alice Marble, of Beverly Hills, Calif., seeded No. 1 in the women's singles displayed her usual brand of tennis to win the only women's match played. She conquered Mary Ann Davis, of Columbus, 6—1, 6—2.

Olin Parks, of Mishawaka, Ind., extended Robert Kamrath, of Houston, Tex., seeded No. 3, but finally lost. The score was 6—2, 7—9, 6—3.

Bill Talbert, of Cincinnati, No. 4, defeated George Bauman, of Chicago, 6—2, 6—2.

Charles Hare, of England, and Bobby Carrothers, of Coronado, Calif., played to a draw in the only other match, halted by darkness. They split the first two sets, each winning one, 6—3, and each had taken one game in the third set.

East Side Ten Triumphs in Annual 'Classic'

The East Side ten of the Gulf Oil Co. swamped the West Side team yesterday, 22 to 8, in their annual softball battle at the Rock Creek diamond.

The game was the highlight of a field day and picnic held each year.

The East Side group also triumphed in the tug of war contest, Mrs. Mabel Peightel and Mrs. Alfred Sylvester won the sack race, also a feature on the day's program.

Egyptian Swimmer Commands Police

Alexandria, July 11 (AP).—Ishaak Helmy, the Egyptian who swam the English Channel in 1926, was given command today of a squad of athletes forming part of Alexandria's special emergency police.

He was credited with having saved the life of Gertrude Ederle, the American swimmer, when she collapsed in her first attempt to swim from Cape Griz Nez to England.

Out-of-Town Entrants Vie In Swim Meet

Airport Pool Scene of Event Monday Night

Out-of-town entrants continue to pour into the Airport Pool front office as plans are being rushed for one of the largest swimming events in Washington in recent years next Monday night at the Airport.

Added to the registrations of Lorraine Fischer and Dot Evans were a number of participants from Lancaster, Pa., York, Pa., and Bucknell University.

The meet promises to develop into a real dog fight between Penn A. C. and the Washington Golf and Country Club, with serious competition expected from the Shoreham's classy outfit.

On hand to defend his District laurels in four events will be Bill Wright, of the Washington Golf and Country Club, and former University of Virginia swimming captain.

Feature event of the evening will probably be the medley event in which Miss Fischer and Miss Evans will do battle. Miss Fischer holds the national championship in this event while Miss Evans proclaims this to be her specialty number, although she has not won any championships in the event.

The dark horse of the meet is the host Airport team. Athough little is known of the team in competition, Manager Hardy Pearce claims his boys are capable of pushing the more prominent entries and should not be sold short.

Carl Reynolds Named Linked With 'Scandal'

Former Washington Outfielder Laughs Off Coast Rumors

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, July 11.—Rumors in baseball, like history, seem to repeat themselves, so pull up a chair and listen to one that concerns an old friend.

His name is Carl Reynolds, of Texas, down Houston way. You remember him from the White Sox of 10 or more years ago, or possibly when he was with Washington, St. Louis Browns, Boston; for a short hitch with Minneapolis, or a player whose powerful bat was a big factor in the Cubs' pennant drive in 1938.

He's the guy who once, while playing for the White Sox against the Yankees, clouted successive home runs on his first three trips to the plate, and followed with three singles for a perfect day at bat. It was a feat that tied he American League record at the time and still stands as a brilliant performance in baseball.

Flop in Series

He's also one of the Cubs who couldn't hit anything but the ceiling in that 1938 series against the Yankees, but there's no use bringing that up. Carl's very beautiful wife, Ruth, says he still has nightmares over that disaster.

Well, Carl is with the Los Angeles club now as coach and pinch player par excellence, and the other day those elegantly inaccurate grandstand managers had a field day. They started the rumor that Reynolds, as hard working and as loyal a player as ever put on a suit, was trying to get Manager Jigger Statz's job. If it hadn't been so outlandish it might have been serious.

Statz, who is undoubtedly the most popular Angel of all times, heard about it and laughed. So did Carl. He laughed even more when he heard he had been quoted as "denying" managerial ambitions. The denial part was all right, except Carl said no one had even talked to him about the rumor, one way or another.

Started by Rumors

The big Texan, be it understood, was sent to Los Angeles by Owner P. K. Wrigley. That's where the rumor started with the rumorhounds. Two and two made four, and Wrigley wanted Reynolds to be manager. With this in mind, he signed Statz to a two-year contract at $10,000 or so a year, and made Carl coach. It made perfect sense—but only to these addlepated whisperers.

Statz should have laughed when he heard about the rumors. They started the same thing against him when Big Truck Hannah was piloting the Angels. Truck is now with Memphis and doing a good job. And Hannah, by the way, was accused of "undermining" Jack Lelivelt when the present Seattle skipper was leading Los Angeles.

And so it goes, history and odd ideas repeating themselves.

In the same vein, someone started the talk that the recent Los Angeles slump was due to the fact that Mr. David P. Fleming, the president, was running the club and giving all signals from his box. Yes, sir, kindly Dave Fleming, who in his 60-odd years has enough business matters on his mind running the Wrigley enterprises without taking on a manager's burden, was calling every sign.

Last year over at the Hollywood Club it was Mr. Robert H. Cobb, the vice president, who was doing the same thing. Cobb still laughs over that, because the only Hollywood signal he knew was the hit-and-run—and Jack Lelivelt or Lofty O'Doul or someone else let him in on that secret.

All in all, there's nothing like a good, unsound rumor to keep the baseball pot boiling.

Fred Bedore Named Waterloo Manager

Chicago, July 11 (AP).—The Chicago White Sox, owners of the Waterloo (Iowa) club of the Three-Eye League, today appointed Fred (Eagle) Bedore, of Chicago, manager of the team, succeeding Johnny Fitzpatrick.

Bedore, 33, an infielder, at one time played with New Orleans.

Duseks Split In 4 Matches At Stadium

Ernie and Rudy Win Joe and Emil Lose On All-Star Card

The four Dusek brothers did their "riot squad" act last night at Griffith Stadium, but only two of them—Ernie and Rudy—had anything to crow about after it was all over. Joe and Emil didn't have any luck.

Ernie defeated Lou Plummer, of Baltimore, in what amounted to the main bout, simply because the two were the more accomplished groan artists. Ernie ended the dramatic session after 35 minutes with a neat dropkick. The usual amount of histrionics was indulged in, and the finale saw Lou storming about the ring for 10 minutes demanding the hide of Referee Casey Berger.

Rudy's triumph came over Russell, and the method was a Japanese leg lock applied after 19 minutes of waltzing.

The Terror, or Bob Weatherly, won the championship of another Dusek (he holds the Rudy title by virtue of two victories) by slamming Joe down for the count of three. Emil lost to Paul Jones in 16 minutes, and Paul came right back to substitute for the missing Thor Johansen in the next bout to defeat Ed Newman in 18 minutes. The Children's Toy Fund received a cut the gate.

Washingtonian Lands 82-Pound Sailfish at Miami

Special Dispatch to The Post

Miami, Fla., July 11.—The outstanding sailfish of the metropolitan Miami summer fishing tournament was entered this morning by Jack Bane, Washington, D. C., and Alexandria, Va. The angler, fishing from the charter boat Hazel Mack with Capt. Harold Abbott at the controls, weighed in an 82¼-pound fish to assume a long lead in the summer event.

It was the first trip for big game fish ever made by Bane, who is now assigned to the Miami area in connection with the civil pilots training program of the Civil Aeronautics Authority. The big fish was over 10 pounds heavier than the winner of last year's big $10,000 open event.

Surface Upset By Greenberg

North Conway, N. H., July 11 (AP). Seymour Greenberg, national public parks champion from Chicago, provided the Gold Racquet Tennis tournament with its most surprising upset today when he defeated the second-seeded Hal Surface, of Kansas City, 4—6, 6—2, 6—2, in a quarter-final match.

The upset triumph moved Greenberg into the semifinals against George Toley, of Los Angeles, who advanced by running Frank Shields, the New York veteran, leg-weary for a 6—3, 6—2 victory.

Top-seeded Frank Kovacs, of Oakland, Calif., defeated Billy Reedy, of Los Angeles, 6—4, 6—3, but rain forced the postponement of the other quarter-finals match, between Larry Dee, of San Francisco, and Bob Decker, of Newton, Mass., until tomorrow.

Williams, Former W.-L. Athlete, Dies

Norfolk, Va., July 11 (AP).—Leigh Williams, one of two Washington-Lee athletes ever to win 16 letters, died at his home here today after a lingering illness.

Williams, 31, starred in football, baseball, basketball and track at Washington-Lee from 1927 through 1931. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Grace Mayo Williams, and his parents.

Funeral services will be held Saturday morning at St. Mary's Catholic Church here.

Little Forwards Entry for Charity Golf Matches

By the Associated Press

Detroit, July 11.—Lawson Little, National Open Champion, forwarded his entry today for the Red Cross matches next Tuesday and Wednesday in which Gene Sarzen's golf team meets Walter Hagen's Ryder Cup outfit.

Heretofore Little had been uncertain of being able to play because the dates conflicted with his exhibition schedule. The Open champion advised the P. G. A. committee here today, however, that he had arranged to play.

The committee announced that Sarazens' team would be composed of himself, Little, Jimmy Demaret, Ben Hogan, Craig Wood, Ed Oliver, Jimmy Thomson, Tommy Armour, Harry Cooper and Al Watrous. Clayton Haefner, Billy Burke and Frank Walsh will be alternates.

On the Ryder Cup team are Henry Picard, Byron Nelson, Horton Smith, Ralph Gudahl, Dick Metz, Jimmy Hines, Victor Ghezzi, Paul Runyan, Sam Snead and Harold McSpaden.

New Women's Soaring Mark Is Claimed

By the Associated Press

Elmira, N. Y., July 11.—Mrs. Helen Montgomery, Plymouth, Mich., only feminine entrant in the eleventh national soaring contest, appeared today to have established a new women's American altitude record of 4,125 feet above the point of release.

Robert A. McDowell, chief statistician of the Soaring Society of America, said her barograph will be sent to Washington for a check and calibration before the flight, made yesterday, can be accepted as an official record.

The international record for women is 6,794.605 feet, set by E. Zelenkova, of Russia.

Mrs. Montgomery already holds the women's American duration record of 7 hours 28 minutes.

Storms prevented flights today.

Chester J. Decker, Glen Rock, N. J., 1939 soaring champion, continued to lead in points over John Robinson, San Diego, Calif., his closest rival for the 1940 title, 1,814 to 1,615.

Putt Balances on Rim of Cup, Drops In; Player Wins

By the Associated Press

Eastern Point, Conn., July 11.—The question of when is a ball dead was raised in the Shenecossett Women's Golf Tournament today when a putt by Mary Fine of Scranton, Pa., balanced on the rim of the eighteenth cup for at least 30 seconds before it dropped.

The ball appeared to be turning on a springy blade of grass. The tournament committee ruled, the putt, one of 3 feet, valid under an interpretation of the rule which stipulates when a player's ball lies on the putting greens it shall not be played until the opponent's ball is at rest.

When the putt dropped it gave Miss Fine a one-up victory over Mrs. Fred G. Davis, of Providence, and sent her into the finals against Helen Waterhouse, also of Providence.

Neighborhood Wins

Neighborhood House took the measure of the Boys Club Red Sox, 11 to 2, yesterday on the Monument Grounds. Sam Brandenberg hurled four-hit ball for the winners. Hamburger and Saffell divided the losers' four hits.

Kansas City Player Loses in Junior Play; Texans Bow

By the Associated Press

Quebec, July 11.—United States hopes in the Canadian tennis championships, already shattered in the men's singles competition, were dimmed even more in other divisions of the tournament today.

Peter Stewart, of Kansas City, who had reached the quarterfinals of the junior men's singles, bowed out to Bob Watt, of Montreal, who scored a 6—1, 6—2 victory.

In the men's doubles, Jim O'Hara and Jim McDougall, Montreal, outlasted W. Driver and R. Feueille of El Paso, Tex., to win 6—3, 3—6, 6—3, 2—6, 10—8.

The men's singles finalists were Lewis Duff, of Montreal, who eliminated Ross Wilson, Toronto, and Don McDiarmid, of Ottawa, Canada's third-ranking player, who downed Roger Durivage of Montreal.

Bank Deposits Equal $462.72 A Person Here

$122,000,000 Climb In 10 Years Reflects Growth of City

Based on latest census and deposit figures, there is enough money in Washington banks to give every man, woman and child living in the city $462.72.

The per capita figure is arrived at by taking the 1940 census total of 663,153 for Washington and dividing it into $306,858,345, the June 29 deposit figure for the 22 local banks.

$122,000,000 Rise

Chiefly reflecting the sharp advance in the city's population, bank deposits here have increased more than $122,000,000 during the past ten years.

An extensive analysis by Audley A. P. Savage, auditor of the National Savings & Trust Co., shows that deposits here have advanced from $262,052,926 as of June 30, 1930, to $306,858,345 as of June 29, 1940.

In the last fiscal year alone, bank deposits here have jumped $60,995,273, reports Mr. Savage. On June 30, 1939, the deposit total was $323,681,232, he said.

Mr. Savage also pointed out that the sharp jump in deposit total for the ten years was accomplished despite the reduction in number of banks from 40 to the present 22.

Peoples Drug Sales Up

Peoples Drug Stores, Inc., reported yesterday that net sales for June totaled $1,869,094, against $1,800,713 in the same 1939 month. Net sales for the rst six months this year were $11,188,341, against $10,872,812 in the same 1939 period.

Air Traffic Jumps

The Pennsylvania-Central Airlines yesterday reported that revenue passenger traffic from its Washington station increased 80 per cent in the first six months this year over the same 1939 period. For June, the line reported, a 103 per cent gain over last year was noted here.

The gain at the Washington branch compares with a 69.7 per cent increase and a 93.9 per cent gain, respectively, for the first six months and June in the national total.

New Offices Here

New traffic offices have been opened in the Southern Building here by the Rock Island Lines. General agent is C. A. Cromwell and district passenger agent is Charles W. Jernigan.

American C. & F. Reports Backlog Tops $24,000,000

New York, July 11 (AP).—Unfilled orders of American Car & Foundry Co. on July 10 amounted to $23,590,736 and additional business representing $1,124,000 has since been confirmed, Charles J. Hardy, president, told stockholders at the annual meeting today.

Since the end of the company's fiscal year on April 30, Hardy said, bank loans totaling $4,500,000 have been paid off and the cash balance at present is in excess of $8,000,000.

Commenting on the recent tank order of between $11,000,000 and $12,000,000 awarded the company by the Government, Hardy said the bids for the work represented a reasonable and not extravagant profit."

May Oil Stocks Reported Higher

The U. S. Bureau of Mines reported yesterday an increase of 361,000 barrels in all oil stocks during May.

It placed total stocks of oils on May 31 at 563,794,000 barrels or 144 days' supply. This compared with 55,433,000 and a 145-day supply on April 30. May domestic demands reached 121,190,000 barrels as against 115,303,000 in April.

Motor fuel stocks totaled 100,288,000 barrels compared with 102,727,000 the previous month and were about 16,860,000 higher than a year ago.

May stocks of aviation gasoline totaled 3,945,000 barrels; exports, 15,000, and domestic demands, 455,000. All brackets increased slightly over April.

Chicago Livestock

Chicago, July 11 (AP).—Advancing 15 to mostly 25 cents, hog prices returned to within 10 cents of Monday's all-year high of $7. Fed steer and yearling values rose 25 cents in an active market. Spring lambs declined 25 cents.

Light receipts in the hog market helped check the fall in prices begun after the top rose to $7 on Monday. Loadings totaled 17,000, with 6,000 direct to packers. Shippers took 2,000 and holdovers amounted to 3,000.

Sharply smaller receipts of cattle than expected was the main factor which stimulated strength. The run of 3,000 cattle and 1,000 calves was well cleaned up. Demand for grass cows picked up slightly.

U. S. Dept. of Agriculture.—SALABLE HOGS—Receipts 11,000, total 17,000. Market active; 15 to mostly 25 higher than Wednesday's average; top 6.90; bulk good and choice, 180-270 pounds, 6.50@6.85; 270-300-pound butchers, 6.25@6.50, mostly 6.35; 300-330-pound averages, 6.00@6.35; 160-90-pound lights, 6.00@6.75; most good packing sows, 360 pounds down, 5.50@5.90; smooth, 400-500 pounds, 5.00@5.50. Shippers took 2,000; holdovers, 1,000.

SALABLE CATTLE — Receipts 3,000; calves 1,000. Fed steers and yearlings, including light heifers and mixed yearlings, strong to 15 higher; fairly active; sharply smaller receipts than expected main stimulating factor; crop well cleaned up; little more demand for grass cows, especially cutters and common fed cows selling at 6.00 down, with canners at 4.00@4.50; dry-fed cows up to 8.00. Yearling steers continued in broad demand at 10.00 upward; best 937-pound choice yearlings 11.35; 1,275 steers topped at 7.50; several loads medium-weight and weighty bullocks 11.00@11.25; grassy and short-fed kinds 7.50@10.00; fed heifers sold up to 10.60; grassy kinds 8.00@9.00; grass heifers 8.00 down to 8.50; bulls firm; heavy sausage offerings 7.40 and heavy fat bulls 7.50; vealers strong at 10.00@10.50 mostly.

SALABLE SHEEP—Receipts 2,000, total 5,000. Spring lambs 25 lower; fat sheep and yearlings weak; best sorted native springers 10.00; others 9.75; throw-outs mostly 8.25 down; two doubles Idahos, sorted, 9.75; others 9.50, with carry-overs from Wednesday 9.25; fed shorn yearlings 6.50 and 7.00; all fat native ewes 2.00@3.00; most throw-out Western springers to feeder dealers, 8.75.

Wheat Slumps As Crop Scare Diminishes

Other Commodities Move Irregularly In Narrow Range

By the Associated Press

Traders' indecision was again reflected in highly restricted price movements yesterday in speculative commodity markets.

Chicago wheat attracted some attention with a drop of 1¼ to 1⅝ cents a bushel. In place of the recent crop scare which had put prices up, traders had reports of good rains over the spring wheat belt and confident predictions the moisture would repair some of the damage. Corn closed ¼ to 1⅜ down.

New York cotton futures were "grooved," closing 3 points up to as much down. Moderately lower were Santos Coffee, world sugar futures, wool tops and hides. Unchanged to a little higher were cottonseed oil, domestic sugar and copper.

Wheat Off 1¼ to 1⅝

Chicago, July 11 (AP).—Wheat prices tumbled 1¼ to 1⅝ cents a bushel today to the lowest level in more than 10 months as a result of selling inspired partly by Northwest rains which grain men said gave much of the spring wheat crop a new lease on life.

Closing at lows for the session, July wheat was priced at 73¼, lowest any contract has been since last September 1, the day Germany invaded Poland. September at 74 to 73⅞, and December at 75⅝ to 75¼ were within minor fractions of the season's lows established earlier this month. Minneapolis prices closed 2¼ to 2¾ lower.

Hedging of new wheat and the sharp upward revision in the official estimate of domestic winter production added to the market's burden of selling.

Also reflecting the rainfall, corn prices closed ¾ to 1⅜ cents lower, July, 61⅝ to 61¾; September, 58⅜ to 58½. Oats lost ⅜ to ½, and Rye ¾ to 1 cent, but lard gained 2-5 cents and soy beans closed ¼ up to 1 cent off.

New York, July 11 (AP).—Cotton futures moved sluggishly within a 9-point range today, closing 3 lower to 6 higher.

Selling was kept in bounds by forecasts for widespread rains tonight and tomorrow over most of the belt. Hot dry weather is needed according to crop authorities.

Range follows:

New—	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.
July	9.95	9.95	9.95	9.95	—02
October	9.48	9.52	9.43	9.48	+08

Auto Production Rebounds in Week

Detroit, July 11 (AP).—Automotive News in its weekly survey of automobile plant activity today estimated output this week at 71,634 cars and trucks, compared with 53,783 in the preceding holiday - shortened week and 65,111 this week a year ago.

"A feature of the week," said the trade paper, "was the jump in operations at several plants still turning out 1940 models, as a result of the sharp upswing in retail sales in June. Field stocks are fairly low, as regards several companies, which are now endeavoring to build up sufficient inventories before shutting down for new model change-overs."

Morgan Partner Leaves Estate of $7,323,203

New York, July 11 (AP).—Thomas Cochran, a partner in the banking firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., left a net estate of $7,323,203 when he died on October 29, 1936, it was shown today through an estate tax appraisal.

Securities were valued at $3,224,589 and miscellaneous items, including his interest in the Morgan firm and Drexel Co., Philadelphia, totaled more than four millions.

SEC Suspends Timber Stock Registration

Harper S. Hoover Comes Under Fire Of Commission

A timber development concern, Resources Corporation International, collided head-on yesterday with the powers of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The commission suspended registration of 35,000 shares of R. C. I.'s common stock, charging "a wanton disregard for truth and accuracy" with respect to many of the items in the registration statement.

The commission's action brought under official fire Harper S. Hoover, owner of the stock, principal promoter, principal shareholder, chairman and treasurer of Resources Corporation International.

SEC's Statement

Hoover, a former Florida real estate promoter, organized R. C. I. to take over certain Mexican timber lands.

The registration statement filed by the timber company, the SEC said, failed to disclose the following:

"(1) The huge personal profit accruing to Harper S. Hoover, the principal promoter of R. C. I., in the acquisition by R. C. I. of the timber properties now constituting substantially all of the assets;

"(2) The misrepresentations made to R. C. I. by Hoover to induce the purchase of the timber properties for $9,000,000.

"Income" Questioned

"(3) The fact that practically the entire income of R. C. I., which is represented to have been derived from contracts for the cutting of its timber, and its source in Hoover, who supplied substantially all of the cash paid over to R. C. I. by contractors for the specific purpose of creating 'income' for R. C. I. to enable it to pay 'dividends' and 'distributions' and thus give it an appearance of earning power.

"(4) The use of R. C. I. and the direction of its activities by his personal holdings of R. C. I. stock."

The Securities Commission declared that a syndicate had been organized claiming to have acquired 2,000,000 acres of timber at a cost to members of $4.50 an acre, whereas at the time of an organization meeting in 1931 the syndicate actually had no more than 118,790 acres.

Cost of Land

While Hoover told stockholders the land cost $9,000,000, the SEC reported its aggregate cost as $2,573,531.

Said the SEC:

"Hoover has never spent one mill of his own funds in this venture. The entire cost—and a great deal more—has been furnished by syndicate members. Hoover's own testimony shows that the cash paid by him to ventures was the money received by him as subscriptions of syndicate members."

The official record shows that from 1931 through 1937, SEC said, Hoover sold from his personal stock 528,709 shares on which he realized a gross profit of $4,759,140. Between September and April, 1937, the stock's bid price on the over-the-counter market rose 400 per cent.

Accounting Criticized

The commission also found that Hoover and his associates, besides being principal stockholders, had maintained control of the company by domination of its officers and the members of its executive committee.

Further, the SEC found fault with the report on R. C. I. by Arthur Andersen & Co., accountants. Certain available information was not disclosed by the accountants and the examination was not sufficiently extensive, the SEC said.

Brokers' Loans Rise $3,000,000 in Week

By the Associated Press

The Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday that last week's loans to brokers and dealers on securities held by reporting member banks in New York City totaled $265,000,000.

The week ended yesterday and the total represented an increase of $3,000,000 when compared with the previous week. Loans for the corresponding week a year ago totaled $495,000,000.

Auto Finance Firms Report Average Loss Less Than 1.5%

Special Dispatch to The Post

New York, July 11.—Average credit losses of sales finance companies during the period 1935-1939 ranged from a low of 0.64 per cent of all retail paper liquidated in the first half of 1937 to a high of 1.87 per cent in the first half of 1938, according to a report soon to be published by the National Bureau of Economic Research.

The averages are drawn from a survey of 22 companies operating on a regional or local basis and handling automobile paper.

Individual companies differed widely from the average figures. The highest loss during the period was 4 per cent of retail paper liquidated and the lowest no losses.

Analysis showed the number of repossessions per 100 cars financed during this period was 2.7 for new cars. For used cars the repossession ratio was 11.8 per hundred cars financed.

"Repossessions occur most frequently within the first few months after contracts are written," the report says. "About half of new-car repossessions and seven out of ten used-car repossessions occur before four payments are made. Almost eight out of ten new-car payments, and nine out of ten new-car and practically all used-car repossessions come before the tenth payment."

On both new and used cars, it was found, the repossession ratio declines substantially as the down payment increases. For new cars the shorter the contract period, the smaller the repossession ratio. On used cars, however, the relationship is reversed, a surprising situation which the authors explain on the ground that the hazards involved in selling used cars on long contracts are so great that dealers and finance companies select customers to receive such terms with very great care.

Data on the relationship between cash selling price and repossessions were available only for used cars. They show that as used-car prices increase to $500 there is a tendency for repossessions to decrease. Above the $500 level there is no further appreciable change.

By Merryle Stanley Rukeyser,
Economic Commentator.

Wendell L. Willkie's nomination is a symbol indicating a changing public mood toward the voice of business.

The former scapegoat emotionalism has abated, and the people are now more inclined to accept on their merits data and ideas concerning the Nation's progress formulated by men of business.

With the emphasis in European events on the "efficiency" of totalitarian governments, believers in democracy over here are eager to explore how in the United States we can through the private enterprise system achieve unparalleled efficiency while retaining political, religious and social liberties.

In place of undiscriminating attacks on collectivism in any form, George H. Houston, former president of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, a consulting engineer and leader of business thought, has attempted to delineate proper spheres of activity for both government and business.

In giving me ihs views, Mr. Houston pointed out: "No thinking person will claim that all public enterprise should now be terminated and replaced by private enterprise. There would appear to be advantages to public enterprises in certain areas which outweigh, in public acceptance, the inefficiencies and abuses characteristic of it.

"The future of public enterprise must follow one of the three following alternatives: Ultimately it must displace all private enterprise; or it must be displaced completely by private enterprise; or these two types of enterprise must be so reconciled that they can operate side by side within the same social organization without continuing to be mutually destructive.

"In my judgment, private enterprise will never completely displace public enterprise in America. For public enterprise to displace private enterprise would mean the complete socialization of the country, which I believe would be an unprecedented disaster. The only solution to this situation would appear to be the harmonious organization of these two types of enterprise."

Asked to explain how the lion of Government ownership could lie down peacefully with the lamb of private enterprise, Mr. Houston outlined four conditions which public enterprise should respect. He suggested:

"(1) Each venture in public enterprise whether national, State, or local, should be clearly defined and segregated from private enterprise at all times, by a specific statute defining its metes and bounds. Public enterprise should never be permitted to have a roving mission through the Nation's economy.

"(2) Private enterprise should not be allowed to compete directly with public enterprise at any time. Whenever public enterprise thus enters a given area, previously occupied by private enterprise, such venture should be obliged to buy out the competitive private ventures by negotiation or by the exercise of judicial condemnation proceedings as may be found necessary.

"(3) Public enterprise should be required to assume and carry as a part of its operating costs, the same tax burdens and other social services which private enterprise would have to carry if operating in a like area. If this is not done, the growth of public enterprise will continually erode the tax base upon which the support of government both local, State, and national, must depend.

"(4) Public enterprise should be required to maintain the same standards of factual recording, accounting practice, and public disclosure that government requires of private enterprise in like areas."

The fourth condition would put an end to the new double standard of morality whereby Government-owned corporations are permitted to carry on procedures which would violate the standards fixed by the SEC for private corporations.

Incidentally, Dr. Arthur A. Morgan, former chairman of the TVA, broke with his colleagues because he felt the majority was not insisting on accounting standards which made the TVA a dependable yardstick for measuring the cost of electric utility services.

In the city of Seattle, Wash., a private utility competes actively with a municipally owned enterprise operating in substantially the same field.

Mr. Houston's views are especially timely because they may to some degree foreshadow the battle lines in the economic sphere during the forthcoming domestic Presidential campaign.

War Issues in Demand, General List Improved On Proposal to Revise Excess Profits Tax

New York, July 11.—The new amortization agreement reached by Administration leaders on excess profits tax revision imparted a fair degree of strength to stocks today. The best buying was noted in the aviations and other war issues while the steels and better grade rails made slight upward progress. Trading was the best in about a week, a total of 328,330 shares changing hands.

Reports from Washington indicate that if the above provision is written into the law it will go a long way toward clearing up one of the most prominent hurdles in the path of arming the country quickly. There is also a report that the Government may drop the proposal to limit the profits of ship and airplane builders to a flat 8 per cent and instead tax these companies the same as others, under its general excess profits tax measure.

Would Speed Output

Both of these suggestions would contribute yeoman service toward speeding up industrial production. In its anxiety to forestall the making of money out of war orders, the Administration has been tempted into a course which would seriously hamper the production of the vital necessities of defense. No industrial concern could risk investing its capital in new machinery and other industrial equipment if the Government refused to permit quick amortization of the investment and in addition taxed the profits from this new equipment at a high rate.

It would be a case of paying high taxes now and then having on your hands, for 10 or 20 years, machinery which could be used for war purposes only.

Curtiss-Wright was the day's most active stock but closed unchanged, the best advances in the aviations including Douglas, 2¼, United and North American ⅞ each and Martin, Lockheed and Grumman ½ each. New York Shipbuilding closed up a fraction but lost most of an earlier advance, Hercules Powder gained 1½ and Dow Chemical was up three in light trading. International Nickel issues were popular, the common adding a fraction and the preferred 4¼.

Sterling Slumps

Sterling was off sharply in the foreign exchange market in restricted trading, falling 7¼ cents, while in the bond market the possibility of a German invasion of Ireland brought a decline to the Irish Free State 5s of 1960. They were off 5 points at 50.

Listed bond trading remained quiet today, with the tone still firm in almost all departments. United States Treasury issues advanced slightly, owing to the good impression made by the terms of the new financing. The books on the issues will be closed immediately, it was realized, and there is already talk of a two-point premium over the offering level for the new issue. Best grade corporate issues did well on the rapid sale of $32,000,000 Indianapolis Power & Light bonds. Trading in all issues was 4,$620,000.

Foreign dollar bonds continued to attract a little attention. Norwegian and Danish issues were the favorites of the session, with Belgians neglected and French bonds unchanged. Irish Free State 5s fell anotner 5 points, owing to fears of invasion in the course of the war.

Reich Bonds Dip

German bonds were easy, and small recessions appeared also in Canadian and Australian securities. Italians failed to maintain their gains of the previous session. Latin-American issues were in quiet demand.

Speculative rails remained the outstanding issues of the corporate department. Gains were small in most cases, but Boston & Maine bonds were singled out and advanced 1 to 4 points. Western Union bonds led the communications group upward. Small gains appeared in local tractions, and New York City transit bonds again advanced. The share privilege group was firm.

Time Index Shows Gain, First in Five Weeks

New York, July 11 (AP).—Time Magazine's index of business condition advanced last week to 98.5 from 97.0 the previous week, the first rise in five weeks.

The gain in the index, which reflects not business volume but changes in underlying conditions likely to affect business, was caused by a slight increase in spending occasioned by month-end settlements.

Bank Reserves Up 20 Millions; New Peak Set

$40,000,000 Decrease In Money Circulation Noted in July 10 Week

By the Associated Press

The Federal Reserve Board said yesterday lendable excess reserves of banks increased $20,000,000 to a new record high of $6,839,000,000 in the week ended July 10.

The increase, as in past weeks, was caused primarily by Treasury purchases of foreign gold.

The board's statement said:

"During the week ended July 10 member bank reserve balances increased $27,000,000. Additions to member bank reserves arose from an increase of $103,000,000 in gold stock and a decrease of $40,000,000 in money in circulation, offset in part by increases of $76,000,000 in Treasury deposits with Federal Reserve Banks and $28,000,000 in nonmember deposits and other Federal Reserve accounts and a decrease of $12,000,000 in Reserve Bank credit. Excess reserves of member banks on July 10 were estimated to be approximately $6,830,000,00, an increase of $20,000,000 for the week.

Changes in member bank reserve balances and related items during the week and the year ended July 10, 1940, were reported as follows:

Vega Airplane Gets $30,000,000 British Order

Burbank, Calif., July 11 (AP).—The Vega Airplane Co. said today it had been given a $30,000,000 contract to build a quantity of new-type twin engine bombing planes for the British government.

Courtlandt S. Gross, president of the company, said the order was on a subcontract from the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation, which has already delivered several hundred fast bombers to England.

The bomber, engineered for a speed in excess of 300 miles an hour, will be known as the Lockheed-Vega Model 37 and will be larger and faster than the Lockheed Hudson bomber, which has been acclaimed by the British air service for its success against German war planes.

Refined Copper Stocks Increase

New York, July 11 (AP)—Stocks of refined copper in the United States increased 20,922 tons in June to 199,586 tons, the highest reported since July, 1939, the Copper Institute announced today.

Partly offsetting the rise in refined material was a drop of 7,013 tons in supplies of blister copper. In May the combined stocks were up 6,197 tons. Consumption in the domestic market and exports of U. S. origin copper were both lower.

Engineering and Mining Journal said today the average price of copper, net at Atlantic seaboard refineries (about .225 cents under Connecticut Valley), declined during the week ended yesterday to 10.610 cents a pound compared with 10,788 cents the previous week.

Holiday Cuts Rail Loadings 15.3% in Week

636,901 Total Remains 14.7% Above That Of 1939 Period

By the Associated Press

The Association of American Railroads reported yesterday 636,901 cars of revenue freight were loaded during the week ended last Saturday.

This was a decrease of 115,425 cars, or 19.3 per cent, compared with a year ago, and an increase of 135,920, or 27.1 per cent, compared with 1938.

The report classified the loadings as follows:

	This Week.	A Year Ago.
Miscellaneous freight	248,760	+34,107
Less-than-carlot merchandise	127,240	— 421

J. C. Ward Elected New President of Fairchild Aircraft

Special Dispatch to The Post

New York, July 11.—J. Carlton Ward, jr., former vice president of United Aircraft Corporation, was elected president of Fairchild Engine & Airplane Corporation at a directors' meeting here today. He succeeds Sherman Fairchild, who resigned as president to become chairman of the board.

Mr. Ward returned on the Yankee Clipper last week from Paris. While there he attended the luncheon at the air ministry during which a German air-raid bomb fell close to the diners.

"Mr. Ward is a recognized American authority on organization for precision manufacturing and his views have frequently been sought on these matters by the United States Government," Mr. Fairchild said.

Mr. Ward assumes his duties as president of the Fairchild Engine & Airplane Corporation immediately. Fairchild operates at Farmingdale, Long Island, a plant for the manufacture of aircraft engines, and at Hagerstown, Md., a plant for the manufacture of aircraft.

Construction Awards Reach New 1940 Peak

New York, July 11 (AP).—Engineering construction awards this week totaled $98,039,000, the highest level of the year, Engineering News-Record reported today. The previous high of $96,286,000 was reached in the week of June 20.

Both public and private projects contributed to the gain. Public awards were 170 per cent greater than the previous week, which included the Fourth of July holiday, and 57 per cent larger than a year ago. Private contracts were 330 per cent above the week before and 90 per cent greater than the corresponding week last year.

Largest contracts of the week were $16,175,000 for shipbuilding docks at the Philadelphia, Pa., and Norfolk, Va., navy yards, and $12,500,000 for the two hydro-electric projects for the Nantahala Power & Light Co. of Franklin, N. C.

Philadelphia Deficit To Exceed $2,000,000

Philadelphia, July 11 (AP).—City Treasurer Luther A. Harr predicted today Philadelphia would have a $2,000,000 to $3,000,000 cash operating deficit at the end of 1940.

The 1½ per cent wage tax yielded only $6,853,624 during the first six months against a yearly estimate of $18,000,000, he said, adding "it is now obvious" that the estimate would not be reached.

Johnson Dies; Built Roads Of Maryland

Former Engineer Of State Highways Passes in Baltimore

Dr. A. N. Johnson, who built Maryland's first hard-surfaced road, and, as State highway engineer, developed the State's $5,000,000 roads' system, died yesterday in Baltimore. He was 69.

JOHNSON

He was dean emeritus of the University of Maryland's College of Engineering and an international authority on highway construction.

A native of Lynn, Mass., Dr. Johnson was graduated from the Lawrence Scientific School, Harvard University. He was assistant highways' engineer of Massachusetts when he was invited in 1898 to Maryland to direct a survey for a hard-surfaced road system, such as he had been developing in his home State.

In 1905 he left Maryland to become chief engineer of the United State Bureau of Public Roads, and the next year he became State highway engineer of Illinois, where he remained until 1914. Then he became highway engineer of the New York Bureau of Municipal Research, a post he left in 1916 to become consulting engineer to the Portland Cement Association.

Dr. Johnson became dean of Maryland's College of Engineering in 1920 and held the post until his retirement in 1936. In 1925, he was named by President Coolidge as a member of the American delegation to the Pan-American Road Congress in Buenos Aires

He leaves his wife, the former Miss Mae L. Ash, of Massachusetts, and three daughters, Mrs. Lewis P. Shanks, of St. Augustine, Fla.; Evelyn N. Johnson, of Baltimore, and Mary White Johnson.

Funeral services will be held Saturday in Baltimore. The Rev. George Parsons, of College Park, will officiate.

Model of Immaculata Seminary Is Work of Art

Last Rites Today For Mrs. Brooke, Rockville Resident

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary K. Brooke, 60, of Rockville, who died Wednesday at Emergency Hospital here, will be at 3:30 p. m. today at Christ Episcopal Church, Rockville.

Mrs. Brooke, former resident of Washington, moved to Rockville in 1922. The Rev. Charles T. Warner, of St. Albans Episcopal Church, Washington, will conduct the services. Burial will be in Rockville Union Cemetery.

The widow of William Adair Brooke, she is survived by five children, Irvin Adair Brooke and Mrs. Carl C. Crampton, both of Washington; Mrs. Dowell Hatcher, Warrenton, Va.; Mrs. W. Sinclair Bowling, Bethesda; Mrs. Joseph Fouts, Indianapolis; a sister, Mrs. Robert W. Farmer, Redland, Md.; four brothers, Edward S. Dawson, Washington; Harry A. Dawson and J. Somervell Dawson, sr., Rockville; Lawrence Dawson, California.

U. S.-German Unit Hits Dictators; Backs Roosevelt

Denouncing, in resolutions, the European totalitarian ideologies, the Roland German American Democratic Society, Inc., yesterday urged reelection of President Roosevelt and denounced the Republican platform as an invitation to fifth column votes.

". . . the platform of the Republican Party is smeared with a cringing conciliation to Fascism in an outright attempt to capture the fifth column vote in this country and offers not the slightest assurance of protection against the spread of totalitarian principles in this country," said the resolution.

The Roosevelt Administration, it said, "has pursued vigorous foreign policies of determined opposition to the encroachment of totalitarian ideas in the Americas." The resolution was adopted by the organization in New York City.

John Story, 83, Claysville Man, ToBeBuriedToday

Claysville, Md., July 11.—Funeral services will be held today for John W. Story, retired miller and longtime resident of this community who died here Wednesday at the age of 83.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mary W. Story, and two daughters, Mrs. Elmer Ayton, Claysville, and Mrs. Charles R. Hawkins, Brookeville, Md.

Services will be conducted by the Rev. D. C. Sturgis, pastor of the Brookeville Methodist Church, at 2 p. m. today from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hawkins. Burial will be at Brookeville Cemetery.

Mr. Story, a native of Virginia, had lived in Montgomery County about 40 years. Until his retirement a few years ago he owned and operated the Claysville mill.

Annenberg Pleads To Escape Prison

Chicago, July 11 (AP).—H. L. Annenberg, Philadelphia publisher who has been sentenced to three years in prison for evading $1,217,296 in income taxes, made a new plea for clemency today.

His attorney, Weymouth Kirkland, presented to Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson a memorandum and several affidavits supporting his previous petition for probation and contending that imprisonment would endanger Annenberg's health. Three affidavits signed by Philadelphia physicians set forth that Annenberg, 63, was not well, and needed immediate operations and that imprisonment would endanger his health.

D. C. and Four State Delegates to Attend 6-Day Conference

By the Associated Press

Frederick, Md., July 11.—Delegates from Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, District of Columbia and central Pennsylvania are expected to attend the annual missionary conference of the Evangelical and Reformed Church which opens Saturday at Hood College.

A feature of the conference, which continues until July 19, will be an address by the Rev. George R. Snyder, missionary to China, in this country on furlough. The Rev. Mr. Snyder will tell of his Sino-Jap war experiences next Thursday. He also will teach a course on "China Today."

The daily morning schedule includes a Bible study hour, under the direction of Dr. John Lentz, student-pastor of Ursinus College, Collegeville, Pa. Courses in home and foreign missions, missionary education for children and methods for women, young men and leaders of children will be taught during the mornings.

The afternoons will be devoted to study, fellowship and recreation.

The Rev. Irvin A. Raubenhold, York, Pa., will be in charge of the opening session Saturday. It will conclude with a social hour, under the direction of the recreational director, the Rev. Edwin L. Werner, assistant pastor of United Church, Baltimore.

Dr. A. V. Casselman, secretary of the board of foreign missions, will deliver an address at 8 p. m. Sunday. Miss Eleanor Porter, recently elected instructor in the music department of Miyagi College, Sendai, Japan, will sing. She will leave next month for Japan.

At the worship service at 11 a. m. Sunday, Dr. Henry I. Stahr, Hood College president, will deliver the sermon. That evening, the Rev. Frank A. Rosenberger, pastor of Faith Church, Baltimore, will lead the first in a series of sunset services.

Miss Gertrude Hoy, missionary to China, is expected to speak Wednesday evening. The conference will close Friday at noon.

Nassau Awaits Duke Eagerly, Expects Boom

By George Thorpe
Post Staff Writer

Nassau, July 11.—Nassau impatiently awaits the arrival of its new ruler, the Duke of Windsor, former Monarch of Britain, whose appointment is deemed here not only flattering but certain to bring a distinct improvement in business.

From Sir Charles Cecil Farquarson Dundas, the present governor, to the natives, the reaction to the Duke's appointment as governor is the same.

"It should be a great thing for Nassau," declared Sir Charles in an interview with The Post today. A native police sergeant commented: "Good advertising for the islands."

Sir Charles, 55-year-old veteran career diplomat, said he would go to his new post with mixed feelings. He will be unable to take Lady Dundas with him because Uganda is considered in the war zone.

Windsor's governorship would greatly boost the prestige of the resort islands, Sir Charles pointed out.

Sir Charles is being transferred two years before expiration of the regular five-year term, but the shift is regarded as a promotion. He will go to a populous and strategically important colony with a salary increase of $8,500.

The sentiment in official circles was: "They had to find a place for Windsor. We're sorry to see Dundas go, but this will mean a lot, both for the islands and in strengthening the ties with the home government."

Along Bay street, waterfront "Pennsylvania avenue" of this sunny city of 20,000, the rejoicing was general. The appointment was considered flattering to Nassau, as it had been expected Windsor might be appointed to one of the more important dominions but not to this relatively unimportant crown colony.

Edward, it was recalled, has a large estate on nearby Hog Island, site of Paradise Beach, famed for its honeymooners.

"I wonder if the duke's salary will cover Wally's wardrobe expenses?" queried a member of the British colony which comprises about 20 per cent of Nassau's otherwise colored population.

Sir Charles said he had no idea when he was expected to vacate the palm-fringed governor's mansion.

Md. Employers Start Rush for Birth Proofs

Hagerstown Workers Seek to Establish Citizenship

By the Associated Press

Hagerstown, Md., July 11.—Industrial and other workers are swamping the Washington County health department for copies of birth certificates.

Because of reports of "fifth column" activities, many industrial plants are demanding that employes prove they were born in this country, it was explained.

Dr. W. Ross Cameron, city health officer, said his office had received numerous requests for birth certificates from persons employed in Hagerstown and elsewhere in the county.

Births of many of the applicants were not registered, he said. To assist them, the health department has started to accumulate information from church records, photostatic copies of family Bibles, school census records and from other sources, he added.

When reords of applicants are completed, their births will be certified by the health department, Dr. Cameron declared.

District Junior Commerce Board Installs Officers

A. Z. Foster Wood, Washington attorney, was installed as president of the Washington Junior Board of Commerce at the regular luncheon meeting yesterday at the Annapolis Hotel. Wood, a member of the board of directors for the past two years, succeeds Minor Hudson, who now assumes the role of national director.

The following officers and directors also took over their new duties: Harold D. Fangboner, first vice president; Charles Effinger Smoot, second vice president; James DeValse Mann, secretary; Paul B. Oehmann, treasurer, and Richard K. Lyon, general counsel.

Directors (two-year terms), Hartford E. Bealer, James S. Beattie, Howard deFranceaux, Preston W. Grant, Stanley Pearson, Millard F. West, jr. Directors (one-year terms), L. W. Lawder and Hugh B. Nesbitt, jr.

Canada Creates Defense Ministry

Copyright by New York Times

Ottawa, Ontario, July 11.—In less than three-quarters of an hour the Canadian Senate today put through all three stages a bill creating a minister of naval defense and authorizing the appointment of an associate minister of national defense. The associate minister will be C. G. Power, who is also air minister.

He is thus clothed with special authority at the request of the defense minister, Col. J. L. Ralston.

Morgenthau Pleased With U. S. Bond Sale

Disclosing that the reception to the $650,000,000 issue of 2¼ per cent bonds, offered yesterday, was "excellent," Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, last night said books on the offering had already been closed.

However, subscribers for amounts up to and including $5,000 and where they specify that delivery be made in registered bonds 90 days after the issue date will have as of the close of business Saturday, July 13, in which to purchase the issue.

Announcement of the amount of subscriptions and the basis of allotment will probably be made on Wednesday, July 17.

Mrs. Harry E. Conway Files Suit for Divorce

Mrs. Dorothy Louise Conway, of Burtonsville, has filed suit in the Circuit Court at Rockville for an absolute divorce from Harry Campbell Conway and asked to be allowed to resume her maiden name of Jenkins. It is represented in the petition that the marriage took place in Frederick, Md., January 8, 1936, and it is charged that the plaintiff was deserted May 10, 1937.

Occupied Parts Of France Miss Red Cross Aid

Blockade and Other Problems Prevent Relief, Says Davis

The American Red Cross is not extending any relief in the occupied portions of France because of problems of blockade, transportation, and delivery and control of distribution, Chairman Norman H. Davis announced yesterday.

Shortly after word was received at national headquarters here that more than a million French, Dutch and Belgian refugees have been aided by Red Cross funds and supplies, Chairman Davis declared that "none of the supplies of the Red Cross have been interfered with by any government or diverted from the needy for whom the supplies were intended."

Great Britain, the unoccupied portion of France, and the territories occupied by Germany are the three areas where assistance has been requested, he said. Medical equipment, food and clothing is being sent to Great Britain as rapidly as tonnage is available, while the mercy ship, S. S. McKeesport, loaded with supplies for France, is due at Marseille July 15, Chairman Davis pointed out.

Only in Poland and the vicinity of Paris is aid being extended in the German-occupied regions, it was said. The American Hospital and the French Red Cross are cooperating with the American Red Cross in relief work in the Paris section.

Methodist Camp Will Observe International Day

"International Day" will be observed today at the Methodist Junior High School camp in session at Western Maryland College, Westminster. More than 200 youths of the Baltimore Conference, comprising the District, Western Shore of Maryland, and three West Virginia counties, are attending.

The International Day celebration is linked with the "Working for Peace" project being taught by the Rev. Richard W. Buckingham, pastor of St. Mary's Church, Leonardtown, Md.

Members of that project group will conduct the opening assembly, being followed by "Olympic games" in the afternoon, and also traditional legends, dramatics and festivities of countries. The camp closes Sunday, and the senior group opens its assembly on Monday.

Forsooth, Tommies May Don Armor LikeOlden Knights

London, July 11 (AP).—Steel-corseted shock troops like knights of the Middle Ages may fight the battle of Britain in armor capable of stopping rifle and machine-gun bullets.

Walter Distillator, representing the United States Armor Corporation of New York, said today the war office is considering his proposal to have Britain's Tommies wear khaki-covered corselets of steel and rubber to protect their chests and abdomens.

One 14-pound corselet, he said, has been proved capable of stopping bullets and shell and bomb fragments of medium velocity (1,200 feet per second muzzle velocity) at 25 yards and claimed a 16½-pound corselet is proof against standard machine guns and rifle fire.

Md. Plane Crash Hurts Instructor And Student Pilot

Baltimore, July 11 (AP).—William H. Koester, jr., a student pilot, and Charles F. Thompson, an instructor, were injured today in the crash of a training plane at the Curtiss-Wright Airport here.

Witnesses said the engine of the ship stopped as the plane took off and Thompson turned back to land with about 50 feet altitude. The plane was damaged considerably. Thompson escaped with a bruised forehead and Koester suffered a wrenched back. They were hospitalized.

Lady Ribblesdale Renounces Title

New York, July 11 (AP).—Lady Ribblesdale, the former Mrs. John Jacob Astor, long a leader of London society, renounced her British title today and was repatriated as an American citizen.

She became plain "Mrs. Ava Ribblesdale" in a Federal court ceremony bestowing citizenship on 250 other aliens.

Military Service Voted in Uruguay

Montevideo, July 11 (AP).—The Chamber of Deputies today approved a bill requiring compulsory military service. The Senate already has passed it.

Uruguay thus will become one of the few Latin-American states requiring army service of its youth. The Chamber's vote, 48 to 8, came after a ten-hour session.

Wine-Tasters' Zeal Costs Soviet $400,000

Moscow, July 11 (AP).—Wine-tasters on the pay roll of the main Soviet wine trust are showing too much enthusiasm for their work. The result, the newspaper Izvestia complained today, is that their activities are costing the Soviet treasury about $400,000 annually. Some of the wine-tasters, said Izvestia, have carried their professional exuberance to the point of organizing "collective tasting parties."

Burned Girl Loses 6-Month Fight for Life

MISS RHEA THOMPSON

Student, Whose Robe Caught Fire Jan. 22, Dies in Takoma Park

Miss Rhea Thompson, 19, of Allentown, Pa., a second-year student at Washington Missionary College, who was burned January 22, died yesterday after a half-year's fight for life at Washington Sanitarium, Takoma Park, Md.

The young woman was in her room at 723 Carroll avenue, Takoma Park, when her house robe was swept into the flame of a gas heater. Although a neighbor rushed in and beat out the fire, Miss Thompson suffered third degree burns of the lower part of her body and underwent numerous blood transfusions to save her life.

Miss Thompson was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Thompson, of Allentown. Funeral services will be held there tomorrow.

Last Rites Set For Boy Drowned At Church Picnic

Funeral services for Samuel P. Lyle, jr., 17, drowned at Kenwood Beach, Md., Wednesday while picknicking with members of the Eldbrooke Methodist Church, will be tomorrow at 10 a. m. at the Hines funeral home, 2901 Fourteenth street northwest, with burial in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Surviving are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel P. Lyle, and two sisters, Marion Elizabeth and Alice Louise Lyle. His home was at 4435 Davenport street northwest.

Lyle was drowned while attending the annual outing of the Epworth League of the church at the home of the pastor, the Rev. Walter M. Michael.

Liner America to Make West Indies Cruises

New York, July 11 (AP).—The new $17,000,000 liner America, largest merchant ship built in the United States, will be placed in the West Indies cruise service, the United States Lines said tonight.

The 27,000-ton vessel will make her maiden voyage from New York August 10. The ship is at Norfolk being fitted out.

Contract Bridge

Here is another "hopeless" contract which turned out successfully for the declarer who kept on doggedly trying one thing after another. Finally, one of his plays worked and he and his partner were glad they had bid the slam after all.

Frank K. Perkins, Boston expert, reports the hand which is presented in today's box. Here is what he says of the play:

"South won the first trump and led his lone heart but the king lost to East's ace and the easy way to make the contract was gone. East returned a heart and South ruffed. The ace of clubs was cashed and dummy discarded a spade. Then a low club was ruffed by dummy and the last heart was ruffed by South.

"Declarer had hoped to find West with the heart ace, or either adversary with the doubleton king-queen of clubs. Either event would have taken care of the spade situation. But both had failed and declarer now had to make a guess about the spades.

"He might try to drop the doubleton queen, or he might try to catch West with both honors. Declarer decided on the latter chance, so led a low spade from South, and when West played low the nine-spot was played from dummy and held the trick, making the rest routine.

"It was South's dying gasp, but it worked, and it would not have helped West to play the ten-spot for then the double finess would have been marked for declarer."

England Was Never Like This Before

Government Now Can Force Citizens To Break the Law

Copyright by New York Times

London, July 11.—The complex task of organizing the detailed defense of a nation that has fought its battles on European soil and on the sea for hundreds of years presents new problems daily demanding revolutionary measures.

Under powers assumed today by the government, a citizen may be called on to break existing laws and if the orders are not carried out force may be used.

Under other drastic measures adopted as a guard against every possible conceivable emergency, people can be made to clear their rooms to minimize the effects of incendiary bombs and carry out measures for hindering hostile attacks. Strikes may be prohibited, the law regarding paid holidays altered and prisoners and convicts paroled on certain conditions.

With a view to preventing the work being interrupted by trade disputes, the minister of labor was empowered to establish a tribunal for their settlement. He can prohibit a strike or lockout and require employers to observe such terms and conditions of employment as may be fixed—not less favorable than the recognized terms.

He can also make provision for recording the departures from any rule, practice or custom respecting the employment or nonemployment hours and conditions of any person.

Where the minister of agriculture thinks it necessary to move livestock the owner or occupier of any land can be made to provide alternative pasture in return for payment.

In addition to other powers regarding motor cars, their use on any road may be prohibited or regulated.

Other steps taken today dealt with persons who have to leave districts declared to be evacuation areas and go wherever they are ordered. Householders who lock up their homes will not have to pay rent, water, gas, electricity or telephone charges while they are away. No money will be recoverable under installment plans and there will be no remedy arising as a consequence of default in rent. Regulations empower regional "dictators" to remove property and sell or otherwise dispose of goods owing to their perishable nature or for any other reason they think necessary.

Reich Posts Bail Of $15,000 to Free Nazi Agent Suspect

Los Angeles, July 11 (INS).—Dr. Herbert Hoehne, Nazi agent suspect, was released from the county jail tonight on $15,000 bail supplied by Capt. Fritz Weidemann, German consul general at San Francisco.

Bail was reduced from $25,000 after the suspect's attorney, H. A. Gebhardt, pointed out Hoehne had not been accused of espionage.

The San Francisco consul general said that the bail money was advanced by the German Reich in behalf of the Berlin pharmaceutical firm which employs the young German.

Hoehne was indicted by the Federal grand jury on a charge of failure to register with the Department of State as a foreign agent when he arrived in this country.

The suspect will be arraigned Monday and his trial is to be set on the fall term calendar.

Ranch Hand Slays 1 Woman, Wounds 2d for Revenge

Petaluma, Calif., July 11 (U.P.).—Americo Bragga, 23-year-old vengeful ranch hand, was in critical condition tonight after kidnaping two wealthy ranch women employers, killing one of them, critically wounding the other and attempting to kill himself.

Bragga abducted Miss Olympia Garzoli, 40, shot her through the chest and left her in a roadside ditch then drove away with Mrs. Louise Carminetti, 50, her sister.

Police said Bragga drove his car near the ranch of T. Talamantes, who notified police. As police approached, Bragga shot himself in the chest. Mrs. Carminetti apparently had been shot twice through the heart and had died a half hour earlier, police said.

Deputy Sheriff Lester McGinnis said a dispute began over Bragga's purchase of a used car from the Carminetti and Garzoli families.

Mrs. K. W. Boyd, 75, Dies; Member of Willard Family

Mrs. Kate Willard Boyd, 1621 Twenty-first street northwest, member of the family which had built the Willard Hotel, died yesterday at her summer home in Blue Ridge Summit, Pa. She was 75.

The widow of Capt. John C. Boyd, U. S. N., who died in London in 1927, sh was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Caleb Clapp Willard. Well known for her philanthropies, Mrs. Boyd was president of the Girls' Friendly Society for six years and had been associated with the Home for Incurables. She was an active member of the Church of the Epiphany.

Surviving are a son, Dr. Walter W. Boyd; a daughter, Mrs. Arthur Cama Stanley, and six grandchildren. Private funeral services will be held tomorrow.

Sen. Norris, 79, Landed in Senate

Nebraska's white-haired senior Senator George W. Norris, received plaudits of his colleagues in the Senate yesterday on his seventy-ninth birthday.

Unaware that others had remembered the day, Norris sat unsuspecting when Senator Reynolds was "glad to" yield to Majority Leader Barkley, who told the Senate:

"No man who has ever served in the Senate has contributed more to this Nation than has Senator Norris."

Today's Radio Highlights

7:30, WOL—Alfred Wallenstein conducts his Sinfonietta: "La Tombeau de Douperin," Ravel; "Menuette Serenade," Brahms, and the Dance of the Cammorists from Wolf-Ferrari's "The Jewels of the Madonna."

7:30, WJSV—Gene Tunney stakes his sports knowledge on Choose Up Sides, that program on which, two weeks ago, Joe Louis scored 'way high up. Devereux Milburn, the 12-time ten-goal polo player, is the other guest. Arthur Mann and Cas Adams, of the Herald-Tribune, are the regulars.

8, WJSV—"Murder for Malice"—and what else might murder be for?—is the armchair detective's favorite period of Johnny Green's program.

8:30, WOL—Life in a summer barn theater and who should play the leading role but Henry Aldrich's Ezra Stone, who takes time from his regular and many chores to play the rural handyman with theatrical ambitions in "Now Playing" for Commance Performance.

9, WOL—Mutual boasts a half-hour of commentary, with Raymond Gram Swing leading off, succeeded by five minutes of A. P. news at 9:15 and then by ten minutes of military analysis from Maj. Leonard H. Nason.

9, WJSV—Representative Sam Rayburn, of Texas, talks to his State and to the Nation.

9, WRC—"Errand of Mercy" is a Red Cross yarn suggested by Irene Rich's recent offer on a benefit broadcast to collect in person any gift over $1,000. Don Ameche and Claire Trevor play this on their program.

9:30, WRC—Circle this one with a red pencil: Quiz Kids. From Chicago comes this juvenile Information Please. Two newcomers join the two survivors of the two previous broadcasts. What the kids seem to know is beyond belief.

10:15, WMAL—Colonel Philip B. Fleming, Wage and Hour Administrator, discusses the question: "Did the 40-Hour-Week Defeat France?"

with Glynn

A proud daddy couldn't be much prouder than Columbia is at the moment about the new musical and dramatic series it's starting next Monday at 8 p. m., called "Forecast." You'll hear it over WJSV for eight Mondays at that time while "Radio Theater" is vacationing.

"Forecast" is to be a full hour show—half from Hollywood, starring Hollywood's best known names in hit plays, and half from New York, featuring the cream of the musical world, both classical and popular.

The first broadcast starts off with a musical half hour from New York, highlighted by the joint appearances of Albert Spalding, the internationally celebrated concert violinist, and Joe Venuti, the equally famous violinist in the popular field. There should be a battle of music of fairly sensational proportions for you. But, in addition, on that part of the show there'll also be Frankie Hyers, Songstress Fredda Gibson and Gordon Gifford. Raymond Paige, the CBS conductor whose specialty is leading 100-piece orchestras in either the popular or classical metier (he likes both) directs the two orchestras on hand.

But, as we said, that's only the half of it. The program switches to Hollywood at 8:30 and from there "The American Theater" will present Fredric March and Florence Eldridge in Booth Tarkington's lovable play, "The Gentleman from Indiana."

DEDICATED TO THE REST IN YOUR LIFE

INNERSPRING MATTRESS & MATCHING BOX SPRING

Twenty dollars buys a pair . . . a pair dedicated to your comfort and to giving you the rest of your life at night. The finely tempered coil unit of the mattress is simply billowing in layer after layer of felt, with a sisal pad to insulate it properly. Then held firmly by a well-tailored blue-and-white striped cotton ticking that has plenty of ventilators and convenient handles. The box spring is its perfect mate both in construction as well as appearance . . . and you have a choice of single, double or three-quarter sizes.

LIVING ROOMS

Two distinctive modern styles, one covered in Shelton Looms Needletex boucle frieze . . . the other in Shelton Looms kinki-glo, a splendid-wearing, deep-piled mohair fabric. Graceful 18th century adaptations with all exposed parts of solid Philippine mahogany. Two-piece Chippendale, Tuxedo, Georgian and knuckle-arm suites covered in cotton tapestries or rayon-and-cotton damask.
